About Noble Airmen And Crime and Graft And Russian Gold And Swimmers From the Sea

By Arthur Brisbane

IN THE AIR RACE from Los Angeles to Chicago, Wylie Post of Oklahoma beat Lee Schoenhair by just 13 seconds. Very close for a race more than half way across the continent.

Mrs. Phoebe Omlie won the Dixie derby flight of the great Chicago air meeting.

The energetic Capt. Von Gronau thinks he will "hop out there," land on Lake Michigan with his sea plane and see the great Chicago meeting.

He surely ought to go, and so ought you, if you can.

A fine young man is Capt. Wolfgang Von Gronau, who came from Germany via Iceland, Greenland and Halifax, more than 4000 miles, in 47 hours of flying time, stopping on the way for fuel.

He will live to make that and longer flights in one "hop," and to cross the ocean in 20 hours.

Animosities die out. Fliers of our army and navy welcome a Gronau, who only a few years ago had his mind concentrated on bombing our ships and those of our allies.

He tells interesting, simple stories of his experience in the war and the various occasions on which he and his airplane were "shot down."

He ought to meet our crack American war flier, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, who brought down more German planes than any other American. Perhaps he was one of those that had the honor of bringing down the genial Gronau.

After the war Von Gronau went back to farming on his estate in Prussia, and then started a flying school. He flew over here to give one of his pupils a really good lesson.

Mayor Walker, head of the biggest, richest city in the world invites approximately 100 conspicuous citizens to discuss privately conditions of graft, bribery, etc.

The mayor is in earnest and has every reason to be.

But one hundred or 100,000 "leading citizens" could not deal with graft, bribery and crime while bootlegging and its allied trades take in yearly a bigger income than that of the United States government.

Most startling in the revelations of New York corruption which include purchasing of public officials, magistrates, judges, etc., is the statement that one judge paid $200,000 for his seat on the bench.

The amount would be about $35,000 more than the total salary that he could earn in his 14-year term.

This means that someone else supplied the $200,000 and common sense indicates that the "somebody else" must have been a boss criminal, able, with the aid of a judge "owned by him," to get back his $200,000 with interest.

It is a strange picture of American civilization and "good government" in the year of our Lord 1930 and the 11th year of the era of prohibition and bootlegging.

A British newspaper says that Stalin, boss of Russia, expects trouble ending his power, and has deposited in banks outside of Russia twenty million pounds, about $100,000,000.

The statement probably is not accurate. Few men at the top ever realize that they may fall. Trotzky didn't believe it, or Danton, or Robespierre, who killed Danton, or Marat, stabbed in his bathtub by a girl.

But, the mention of 20,000,000 pounds is interesting, and Stalin could easily send that much out of Russia.

Where there is so much money there will gradually come conservatism.

A true story from Atlantic City, N. J., reminds you of Ulysses landing on the beach where a pretty princess and her young companions were playing ball in costumes that would surprise even our modern young ladies.

In the place of one Ulysses, three powerful sailors from Nova Scotia staggered through the surf to the shore after swimming eight hours to get help for those left in distress on their schooner, the Francis D. They said nothing about seeing any Nausicaa, but were grateful for hot drinks at the police station.

Crime continues to develop new features.

In New York four are shot in connection with a "gambling slot-machine racket."

Early yesterday Joseph Silverman, aged 25, was shot. Later Martin Fishbaum, sitting in a restaurant was ordered by four men, avengers of Silverman, to come out and take a ride. Knowing what that meant, he replied "nothing doing, I stay here." He went far away. They killed him.

Fishbaum took his medicine submissively, did not fight back when the murderers said "All

EMERSON WINS HEARST MATCH FROM QUINN

Wollaston Golfer Vanquishes Chestnut Hill Opponent 3 and 2; Both Nervous

By BILL GRIMES.

Leon K. Emerson, Wollaston, defeated John Quinn of Chestnut Hill, 3 and 2, in the finals of the second William Randolph Hearst junior championship of New England this morning at the Wollaston Golf Club.

Neither Emerson nor Quinn played up to his usual form. Emerson encountered considerable trouble on the greens, while Quinn was noticeably nervous throughout the match.

Emerson piled up a three-hole lead going out and was four up with five to play going to the 14th. At this point Quinn staged a comeback, taking two holes in a row but a dead stymie at the 15th brought the match to an end.

After Quinn had skied his drive off the first tee Emerson connected with a long one and was home with his second after Quinn had pulled a mashie shot to the left of the green. Emerson was down in two putts for a win when Quinn missed his four.

They halved the second hole with

WOMAN FELLED BY FUMES OF FILM BLAST

Suspicious Fire Is Third to Occur on Second Floor of Wakefield Block

A woman was overcome by fumes from burning photographic film, and a man injured, during the third of three fires of suspicious origin in the Kingman block, Main and Albion sts., Wakefield, this afternoon.

An explosion in the photographic studio of L. E. Bordon, on the second floor, where the third fire occurred, blew a hole through a partition, through which rushed fumes, which felled Mrs. A. C. Braxton of Wakefield.

Firemen wearing gas masks found the woman unconscious on the floor, and she was rushed to the Melrose Hospital, where her name was placed on the danger list.

William G. Brockbank of Wakefield, watching firemen fight the blaze, was severely injured when he was struck on the head by falling glass. He was treated by a physician and sent home.

The three fires, all suspected of being incendiary, started on the second floor within two hours.

The first two were discovered on different parts of the floor by occupants and extinguished without calling the fire department.

The third, which caused the liberation of gasses similar to those in the Mt. Sinai hospital, Cleveland disaster in which 150 lives were lost last May, occurred during the absence of Bordon from his studio.

He had gone for some time on business, but had left the door open for the convenience of customers.

FUME BOMBS AFFECT BIG CROWD IN STREET

Demonstration Empties Former Bank Building in Summer St.; Police Rescuers Suffer

A demonstration of tear gas bombs at 167 Summer st. in a building formerly occupied by the Old Colony Bank today filled the four-story building with fumes, driving occupants to the street and affecting pedestrians.

The demonstration was being given by the American Bankers' Association and apparently too many bombs were used.

The fumes seeped through the building, penetrating into every office by way of the elevator shaft, and affected all occupants.

Employes of the First National store next door were also driven weeping to the street, and passing pedestrians on their way to or from the South station were affected.

Policemen, called to the scene by the sight of men and women stumbling out of the building, holding hands and handkerchiefs to their eyes, rushed in only to be stricken themselves.

In the meantime, the offices where the demonstration took place, had been vacated by everyone, the door being left open as the last victim struggled into the open air.

Police, who recovered in a few minutes, roped off the sidewalk in front of the gas-filled building, after it was learned that all occupants were out.

The incident took place shortly before 4 o'clock, at a time when pedestrian traffic was heavy on Summer st., and resulted in creating something like a panic until the cause was learned.

Prague, Aug. 28 (AP)—The newspaper Pravo Lidu today asserts that Count Beth Len secretly visited the former Empress Zita at Lequeitio in the beginning of August to assure her the moment for Prince Otto's return to claim the throne of Hungary had not arrived.

Anti-Fixing Traffic Rules Promulgated

New instructions for handling traffic violations, ending all "fixing" and giving Boston what is believed to be the most rigid regulations of any city in the country, were issued today to the police bureau of traffic by Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman.

The new system becomes effective Monday when police will be equipped with new tags and the various divisions will start keeping an index on all violators.

Commissioner Hultman put teeth into the regulations when he provided under rule No. 6 of his new code that "on a third violation a summons SHALL be obtained, regardless of any excuse that may be offered." This is the "anti-fixing" clause of the new rules.

The new regulations also call for reports to the registrar of motor vehicles. In a letter to the traffic bureau, Registrar George A. Parker, who has the authority to suspend registrations for any cause whatsoever, has promised full co-operation.

The regulations are as follows:

1—Notice shall be served on the owner of the automobile in accordance with the record on file in the registry of motor vehicles whenever a particular automobile has been tagged for violation of a traffic rule or regulation.

2. The name of this registered owner shall be sent to the Registry of Motor Vehicles when the car is tagged for a fourth violation.

3—The name of a particular operator of an automobile which has been tagged for a violation of a traffic rule or regulation the fourth time, shall be sent to the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

4—The notice to the owner of the car shall be served on the owner by a member of this department, who shall certify that he has made this service. If the owner lives

9 Killed, 4 Dying, in Auto Accidents

Nine New Englanders, including two women and two girls, were dead today, four others were dying and a score or more were suffering lesser injuries as a result of auto crashes in Barnstable, Methuen, Saugus, Canton, Newton, York, Me., Chesterfield, N. H., and Four Falls, N. B.

One of the victims was Miss Florence Wells, 20-year-old Southbridge heiress, daughter of J. C. Wells, vice president of the American Optical Co.

She lost her life when a machine driven by Robert D. Peryer, 16, of Dayton, O., skidded and turned on a curve between Wianno and West Yarmouth on Cape Cod.

The couple were returning to their Summer homes at Wianno after playing on a miniature golf course at West Yarmouth. Peryer escaped injury. He told police that fog obscured the curve and that when he applied the brakes the car skidded.

FOUR OTHERS MAY DIE

The four who are dying are a mother and three children, family of the victim of the Canton crash.

DEAD

BOOSTS DUE IN AUTO RATES

State-wide increases in certain cases are contained in the tentative schedule of automobile compulsory insurance rates, to be made public tonight, it was learned today.

While no sweeping boost in rates is planned, it is understood many motor car owners will have to pay more for liability insurance than they did last year.

The increases are based on the fact certain sections have showed more accidents resulting in claims upon insurance companies and consequently greater cost of writing the insurance.

Department agents have made detailed studies of the experience of motorists in 22 cities and are said to have obtained sufficient data to make possible an almost exact rating.

There will be no changes in the number of zones, nor in the classification of passenger cars for insurance purposes.

The tentative schedule will be taken up at a public hearing early next month, with the rates officially promulgated Sept. 15.

NEAR-DISASTER FOR LINDBERGH

Indianapolis, Aug. 28 (INS)—Only luck and the right direction of the wind saved Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh from what might have been a serious disaster at the Mars Hill airport here today.

Lindbergh's safety belt caught on a rip cord leading to the "dust" valve in the gasoline tank as he was preparing to resume his flight to the Chicago air races and more than 100 gallons of gasoline gushed out.

Flames spit from the exhaust pipe, for the Colonel was warming up the motor. Seven mechanics rushed up with fire extinguishers.

Col. Lindbergh immediately shut off his ignition switch.

Boy, Teasing Man, Is Killed by Bottle

Brockton, Aug. 28 (AP)—Everett L. Stoughton, 10, died en-route to Brockton Hospital today because he had persisted in teasing a man. Death was due to a fractured skull, which police say was caused by a bottle hurled by Anthony Sutkus, 40, who, arrested on a charge of murder, was held without bail.

Police said the boy with a number of others was playing on Ashland st. dump, while Sutkus and a companion, Anthony Reakus, were picking over the litter for goods worth salvaging.

The boys teased the men and this so enraged Sutkus that he hurled the bottle at them, police said.

The Stoughton boy, knocked unconscious, was picked up by police officers and died on the way to the hospital.

Sutkis is alleged to have fled to adjacent woods, but was found hiding in an unoccupied house a mile from the scene. Reakus was held as a witness.

DRIVER HELD AT CANTON

The McBrides were involved in the Canton crash, when the car in which they were riding struck a truck on the Turnpike near Farm st., during a mixup that involved the McBride car, the truck, a motorcycle and another car.

Alyre Arsenault, driver of the McBride machine, was unhurt but police charged him with driving while under the influence of liquor.

In Stoughton district court today Arsenault, whose home is in Canada, but who is living at present in Fenwood st., Roxbury, was held for the grand jury in $3000 after pleading not guilty to charges of manslaughter and operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

In the Newburyport turnpike, Saugus, Skall met his death and seven others were injured when a roadster crashed into a machine Skall was helping to push to a gas station.

The roadster was driven by Veronica Perry, according to police, with John Williams, the owner, sitting in the front seat.

Miss Gingras, the Misses Caisse and Ayotte and Chaput were passengers in a machine that left the road at Marston's Corner, Methuen, early today.

For a time the driver could not be found and it was feared that he too was a victim, but Methuen and Lowell police arrested William Villandrey as the driver several hours later. They found him at his home, 1171 Lakeview ave., Dracut.

Margaret Gormly, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gormly of 8 Ship st., Newburyport, received a fracture of the right leg and severe lacerations of head and face when she ran in front of an automobile on Pleasant st., in that city.

When his car crashed into a parked car on High st., near Atkinson st., Newburyport, George J. Ouellette of 5 Tremont st., Newburyport, suffered a deep gash over one eye, a fractured hand, and broken jaw, and had several teeth knocked out.

Guns Ready to Avert Coup in Argentine

Buenos Aires, Aug. 28 (INS)—Extraordinary precautions were taken today by the Argentine government here to frustrate a possible coup by political opponents of President Hipolito Irigoygen.

Machine guns and mounted police carefully guarded all approaches to the Executive Mansion, while officers were reported under orders to hold troops in readiness for instant action.

Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, President Irigoyen received the Argentine War Minister at his private residence for a brief, urgent conference, after which all members of the cabinet were summoned to the President's chambers.

News of this extraordinary meeting spread through the city and large crowds gathered outside the President's home during the early hours of the morning.

The newspaper La Prensa, which gave first details of the widespread military preparations to stem a possible coup, declared two traintant, for an immediate summons to Buenos Aires.

At the moment of dispatching this message, there were approximately 100 armed constables and a detachment of mounted police staloads of troops were being held in readiness at La Plata, 30 miles distioned in the vicinity of President Irigoyen's home. It was reported the commanding officers of all regiments had been ordered to remain at their posts pending developments.

It was unofficially stated the preparations were taken partially as a result of the strike of 3,000 employes of the International Telephone Company, owing to fear that opposition elements might use this situation as a cover for their activities.

Cerro in Complete Control in Peru

Lima, Peru, Aug. 28 (AP)—A new military government, headed by Lieut.-Col. Cerro who initiated the revolutionary movement at Arequipa six days ago, assumed complete control in Peru today.

A new junta, headed by Cerro, was formed and sworn in. It displaced the junta of Gen. Ponce which Monday forced the president's resignation.

Arriving by airplane at 5 p. m. Wednesday from Arequipa, Cerros' triumph was complete. Hundreds of motor cars filled the grounds of the Country Club where his plane, an appropriated Fawcett commercial air liner, escorted by six army planes, landed after first flying over Lima to the cheers of the populace which gathered in the streets.

An hour later, followed by his new ministers—whom he calls secretaries—he entered the reception hall where the new junta was sworn in. Hundreds jammed themselves into the reception hall to witness the ceremony.

DRAPER'S SIGN PUTS BUTLER'S IN THE SHADE

Beacon St., at Hotel Bellevue, Is Scene of Excitement at New Phase of Battle

A war of signs enlivened Beacon Hill today as the Draper dugout, in a vacant lot adjoining the Hotel Bellevue was opened in the interest of Col. Eben S. Draper's candidacy for the Republican nomination for senator.

Just before the dugout was due to open, a huge sign was erected against the Bellevue on the dugout side, carrying a slogan to vote for William M. Butler for the Republican nomination.

The sign caused temporary confusion in the ranks of war veterans who put in the dugout, but before another hour had passed, workmen were on hand, erecting a bigger sign for Draper—one that blocked off the Butler sign from view.

Both Draper and his wife were speakers at the formal dedication of the dugout, Mrs. Draper predicting victory for her husband at the primaries on September 16. She was applauded by the onlookers, numbering about 100.

"DIG FOR DRAPER"

Col. Draper named prominent persons who had endorsed his candidacy, including B. Loring Young, Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., and Col. Percy A. Guthrie, but said the endorsement which pleased him most was that of his wartime "buddies."

The ceremonies included remarks by Maj Roland Choate, who introduced the candidate, and music by a bugle and drum corps. The Draper workers in the dugout wore jumpers with the slogan, "Dig for Draper."

The campaign was also featured today by the receipt of a hard jolt by Butler from within the labor ranks, even as Butler and his forces were attempting to capture the vote of organized labor on the Butler proposal for a national 48-hour amendment to the Constitution.

William H. Thornton, former president of the Worcester Central Labor Union and several times president of the International Moulders' Union, taking sharp issue with John Gatelee, labor man of Springfield, who has endorsed Butler, challenged Gatelee to publicly debate Butler's labor record.

SAYS STATEMENT FALSE

Thornton insisted that the debate take place before the primaries "before the laboring people of Massachusetts are tricked by the trap now laid for them."

"I have read with amazement," he said, "the statement of John Gatelee of Springfield, a vice-president of the Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor, in which he is quoted as saying that:

"'After careful study of the labor records of the candidates for United States Senator the record of William M. Butler was found to be the most favorable and support of labor should be given to Mr. Butler.'

"The fact is that Gatelee's statement is absolutely false. The records of the federation convention, held in Boston during the week of August 4, will bear this out. Furthermore, the true labor leaders in Massachusetts know that William M. Butler has the worst labor record of any candidate for public office in this state in half a century.

GERMAN FLIERS TO SEE NIAGARA

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—The sturdy trans-Atlantic flying boat the Dornier-Wal, was being groomed today for a holiday jaunt to Niagara Falls, the National air races at Chicago and the James Gordon Bennett balloon race at Cleveland.

Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau and his crew of three planned to take off tomorrow morning for Buffalo, as all four German fliers believe their trip to this country will not have been complete unless they see Niagara Falls.

Remaining overnight in Buffalo, they expect to take off Saturday morning for Chicago for the week-end, and then go to Cleveland to see the balloon race start.

An official reception at City Hall to be followed by a luncheon at the Advertising Club featured today's program.

A BROTHER'S REVENGE for a pummeling administered to his sister was wreaked upon Rex Lease (above), when Harold Duncan met him in a fashionable Hollywood cafe last night. Duncan, brother of Vivian, one of the dancing sisters, had much the better of the encounter, witnesses said.

BEATS UP LEASE OVER SISTER

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 28 (AP)—Harold Duncan, brother of Vivian Duncan, exacted summary revenge for the pummeling his famous sister received at the hands of Rex Lease recently, by soundly beating the motion picture actor in a hoted cafe here early today.

Eyewitnesses of the encounter said Lease's eye was blackened, his face cut and his nose was bleeding when the fight was halted. Duncan also was marked, although not so badly as his antagonist.

The fight started, according to witnesses, shortly after Lease and Duncan met in the cafe, a place much frequented by Hollywood motion picture elite. The brother of the famous dancing sisters was seated at a table with his father, S. H. Duncan, and two companions when Lease entered. The actor was pointed out to Duncan as the man who had beaten Vivian Duncan at a Malibu Beach cottage and in a few moments a torrid battle ensued.

The participants struggled around the cafe and out into the lobby of an adjoining hotel, where they were separated.

"I gave him a bad beating," Duncan informed newspaper reporters, "and I felt like kicking him when he was down, like he did my sister."

The elder Duncan said:

"It was a good fight while it lasted."

right, then, let him have it here."

But Harry Harris, shot a little later in Villa Joe's restaurant, fought back when invited for a ride. He was alive when he reached the hospital, in spite of a bullet in the forehead and another near the ear, laughed when asked who shot him, and replied, "Don't you guys bother about that, these things are always taken care of."

He will die, and probably before long the man that shot him will die. These things "are taken care of."

There is still money in the oil business. Thomas B. Slick, well named it appears, dies and leaves $100,000,000.

That is a good deal of money, although one American with a great deal more than $100,000,000 said that when he thought about Rockefeller or Carnegie he felt "like a Gipsy."

START RACE FOR FUNERAL SHIP OF ANDREE

Special Expedition Leaves Today From North Coast of Norway

By KURT STUBBENDORFF

Tromsoe, Norway, Aug. 28—A special expedition prepared today to leave Tromsoe, on the far north coast of Norway, aboard the S. S. Isbjorn, in an effort to reach the sealing vessel Bratvaag.

The Bratvaag is bringing the bodies of Salomon Auguste Andree and his balloonist companions back from the polar regions which claimed their lives 33 years ago.

At the same time, advices from fishermen in far-away West Tromsoe Fjord said that a strange vessel of the Bratvaag type had radioed a position near Nikkeby, Kaasund, at the farthest northwest corner of Tromsoe district.

SIGNALS NOT CLEAR

The signals were not clearly understood because of bad weather conditions, and much conjecture has arisen as to whether it is the ship of the explorers which found the remains of the ill-fated Andree expedition of 1897.

The start of the Isbjorn, planned for Tuesday, was delayed because of faulty radio equipment and necessary repairs to the motors. The trip should take a week.

Four other small vessels, hired by newspapers, are making ready to race the Isbjorn to the Bratvaag—to find the returning sealer in a sea area thrice the size of Scandinavia, and at present obscured in a dense and dangerous fog.

DIARY GUARDED

Carl Saeter, Tromsoe representative of the official Norwegian Spitzbergen office, known as the Svalbard-Kontorgt, said today that Prof. Adolf Noel, director of the Svalbard-Kontoret, now approaching the Norwegian coastal town of Aalesund with the Vestekari expedition, is endeavoring to communicate with Dr. Horn, leader of the expedition which found the bodies of Andree and his companions on Giles Island, Fridtjof Nansen Land.

Dr. Hoel has instructed Dr. Horn that no official account of the finding of Andree, his two companions, and Andree's diary shall be given out except through the Svalbard-Kontoret, under whose auspices Dr. Horn set out into the nortland.

Capt. Gustave Jensen, commander of the cutter Ternigen, which was in contact with the Bratvaag some time ago and first brought back news of the finding of Andree's body, is constantly being questioned here for more details.

WATCH FOR VESSEL

Capt. Holmboe, commanding the Isbjorn expedition, visited Fridtjof Nansen Land later even than the Ternigen, and is certain that the Bratvaag will return to Tromsoe sooner than Sept. 10.

Norwegian authorities are keeping a close watch along the coast line and will be in constant communication with the Isbjorn after her start.

Paul Bjoervig, Norwegian polar veteran who accompanied the North Pole expedition of Walter Wellman, American explorer, in 1894, which was lost at Walden Island, and who also was with the Swedish expedition of Prof. De Geer in 1896, set forth an interesting theory regarding the Andree expedition.

Bjoervig believes Andree and his fellow explorers spent only a short time on Giles Island after their balloon came down, and, as he put it, "arrived there just in time to die."

The man whose body was found in the small boat, Bjoervig says, undoubtedly was first to break down, and he was dragged along by the other two, both of whom died within a short time without having time to set up a camp on Giles Land. According to Capt. Jensen, Dr. Horn found the body of the boat-sled and the other two bodies far apart.

NEW RUM ROW OFF JERSEY

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 28 (AP)—Existence of a new rum row off the Jersey coast was seen by coast guardsmen today in the reported drifting at sea of the schooner Francis T.

Three members of the schooner's crew landed on the beach here yesterday and said they had left the ship in a sinking condition 18 miles at sea with four members of their crew aboard. They said they were ordered by their captain to obtain help, and reached shore after rowing 18 hours in a dory and then swimming two and one-half hours after their boat capsized.

French Aviatrix Gets Sunstroke in Air

Le Bourget, France, Aug. 28—Maryse Bastie, French aviatrix and holder of the women's endurance record, was resting comfortably at her home near here today, following her collapse from sunstroke while she was attempting to shatter her own endurance mark yesterday.

Maryse Bastie

Attending physicians declared that the aviatrix would be all right within a day or two, but flying men here declared that she narrowly averted death when she brought her plane to earth just before she collapsed.

Miss Bastie had been in the air 18 hours, when she was nearly overcome by the terrific heat. She brought her plane to earth and made a safe landing. Mme. Bastie recently broke the endurance record held by Elinor Smith and was attempting to shatter her own mark of 26 hours.

Senora Gil Advises Women Stick to Home

New Orleans, Aug. 28—Senora Gil, vivacious and charming wife of Portes Gil, former president of Mexico, declared to interviewers yesterday that American women need not be chary in trusting their husbands if they follow the first rule of home-making.

Senora Gil

"A woman's first interest should be in her home and family. If she makes a good home she need not worry that her husband will forget her," said Senora Gil. "She should know how to prepare a good meal for her husband, how to keep house and look attractive and sweet at the same time," she continued.

Senora Gil expressed a keen delight in talking of her love for children, beautiful laces, dancing and tennis. Of her dislikes—divorce and the American game of bridge—she had little to say. Senora Gil, accompanied by her three-year-old daughter, Rosaiva, is vacationing here.

Lord Beaverbrook, Poisoned By Food, Getting Well

London, Eng., Aug. 28—Physicians attending Lord Beaverbrook, London publisher and dominant figure in England's political life, declared today that his condition was not considered serious. Lord Beaverbrook was stricken on board his yacht and was found to be suffering from food poisoning.

Lord Beaverbrook

Lord Beaverbrook has become almost overnight one of the most forceful and picturesque figures of British politics. During the past few months he has been engaged in a vigorous campaign against the Conservative organization headed by Stanley Baldwin. He has directed his campaign against the Conservative forces because of their reluctance to favor the imposition of food taxes as part of the free trade plan in the British Empire.

Young Movie Star Comes "Home" to Sing Sing

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 28—Inmates at Sing Sing are preparing today to welcome a movie star within the portals of the grim gray walls of the prison. Joan Lawes, 8-year-old daughter of Warden Lewis Lawes, is enroute from Hollywood to her home here.

Joan Lawes

An old sailor, an inmate at the prison, has made a miniature five-masted schooner for her and many other prisoners have contrived presents and surprises for the young star. The winsome ways, blue-gray eyes and long brown curls of the child have made her the pet of the prisoners, who call her Cherie.

Joan recently signed a long-term contract with the Fox Film Co. and since then has made her first screen appearance in a comedy depicting prison life. She has been accompanied by her mother and an older sister during her stay in the film capital.

YANKEE LOST IN "FREEZE-OUT" GAME, SAY BOSTON RACE FANS

ENTERPRISE MAY FAIL IN BIG BLOW

Vanderbilt Boat Hasn't the Stuff in Her, Is the Belief; Trial Races Criticised

Asserting that "a sinister force seems to have been at work," Frank S. Davis, manager of the maritime bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, today voiced indignation apparently felt generally among local yachting enthusiasts over selection of Harold S. Vanderbilt's sloop Enterprise for the international cup races with Shamrock V.

Choice of Enterprise by the cup committee, members of the New York Yacht Club, which holds the trophy known as America's cup, came without a fair and decisive contest between this boat and the Boston-owned Yankee, it was declared.

Critics also called attention to disclosures previously made of huge expenditures by Vanderbilt and the Morgan group, owners of another contestant, Weetamoe, of their alleged cornering of the sailcloth and bronze plate markets and their apparent aim "to win at all costs."

EXPECTED MORE TRIALS

Announcement of the choice at a late hour last night was a big surprise to followers of the cup trial races all over the country, as it was thought decision would be reserved until Enterprise and Yankee had raced each other under varying conditions of wind and weather.

"From my personal observation, I'd say it is extremely doubtful that the best boat has been selected," said Davis. "There seems to have been some sinister force at work.

"The showing of Yankee in the trials was certainly such that the Boston boat was entitled to a more thorough test against Enterprise, these two boats having proved themselves better than the other two contenders.

"This sort of thing has happened before in the selection of cup defenders. It is an unusual selection and hardly fair.

ALL FAITH IN YANKEE

"Practical navigators, familiar with conditions existing at the time the races are to be held, will be 100 per cent in sympathy with the idea that Yankee is best qualified to meet all tests.

"Conditions at the locale of the races have been studied over a period of years and the lessons learned went into the construction of the Boston sloop. Yankee was constructed to meet those conditions and, I believe, is the best boat. The America's Cup committee is courting disaster."

Yankee is a big boat and at its best in a strong wind and rough sea, while Enterprise, a relatively small craft, with a huge spread of canvas, is fastest when the wind is faint, say those who know.

Other yachting followers agree with Davis that when the races with Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger are held next month the conditions will be more favorable for a boat like Yankee than one of the Enterprise's design.

Capt. Mortimer Nickerson, president of the Boston Towboat Co., said:

"I have not yet recovered from the shock of the selection. It is certainly too bad.

"There is not the slightest doubt that the selection is unfair. There should have been more trials and under fairer conditions."

DESIGNER IS SILENT

Frank C. Paine of Paine, Belknap & Skene, naval architects, had no comment. He designed Yankee and his disappointment was evident.

Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams of Boston arrived back here from Newport, scene of the trials, today. Asked what he had to say about the selection, he replied:

"Nothing."

"Do you think Enterprise a good choice for the cup races?" he was asked.

"Yes," he said.

Yankee and Enterprise both broke the record for the cup course last week, but Yankee raced against Whirlwind, while Enterprise was paired with Weetamoe. Enterprise and Yankee had their first official setto yesterday but the race was called off when the wind failed.

No explanation of the selection was made by the cup committee, whose sole statement read:

"The America's cup committee has selected Enterprise to defend America's cup."

Fine Mexican Bishop $100 for Confirming Outside Church

Mexico City, Aug. 28 (AP)—Riva Palacio, Secretary of the Interior, announced today a fine of $100 would be levied against Mgr. Pascual Diaz, archbishop of Mexico, for violation of the Mexican religious laws.

The archbishop was charged with conducting a ceremony in Belen prison for confirmation of a group of children of prisoners.

Hawks Clocked at 220 Mile Speed in Trial

Curtiss-Reynolds Airport, Chicago, Aug. 28 (AP)—Capt. Frank Hawks, holder of both cross continent speed records of the United States was unofficially clocked at 220 miles an hour today in practice flight around the five-mile course of the National air races. He flew a Travelair plane with a special Wright motor.

Hawks flew through a drizzling rain to accustom himself to the course for the $10,000 Thompson trophy race.

Capt. Hawks picked an early hour for the trial. He clocked his own speed accurately, but declined to let it be known.

"I knew others would be clocking me, and for that reason I did not let the motor out," he said. "I didn't hold it back much, though. I wanted to get accustomed to the pylons. I will fly around them again before the races."

The Thompson trophy race is to be run Labor Day and many famous pilots are expected to start. The distance will be 100 miles, 20 laps around the course, and any type of plane with any sort of motor is eligible. First prize is $5000, second $3000 and third $2000.

The rain stopped before the start of the day's program and the sun popped out as bright as it has been for the five previous days.

The army air corps introduced an innovation at the meet today when Lieut. Arthur Innes directed a squadron of army bombers from the ground by radio. His directions were heard by Columbia Radio listeners and the spectators at the field as well as by the pilots in the planes.

WEDDING BELLS IN HOSPITAL

A romance which began on the Tufts College campus culminated last night, it was revealed today, in a bedside wedding at Melrose Hospital, where the groom is convalescing from an appendicitis operation.

The couple are Lester R. Moulton, Jr., 23, of 14 Stratford rd., Melrose, a member of the Tufts College senior class, and the former Miss Evelyn Elsie Pullman, 20, of 62 Howard st., Newtonville, a junior at Jackson, the girls' division of Tufts.

The couple were engaged and planned an elaborate wedding in the fall. Their marriage last night was surrounded by the greatest secrecy and was a big surprise to their friends who learned of it today.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Henry T. Secrist, pastor of the Melrose Unitarian Church.

Whether they are to return to college could not be learned, both Mr. and Mrs. Moulton expressing surprise that anybody knew of their marriage, and refusing to talk about their plans.

Moulton is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity at Tufts and Mrs. Moulton is a member of Sigma Kappa sorority at Jackson. Moulton's family is socially prominent in Melrose. His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Pullman.

American Yacht in Spain Race Arrives

LOVE SUIT HITS CONNIE COLLIER

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—Constance Collier, actress of note on the stages of England and the United States, was sued today for $100,000 by Mrs. Bruce Bairnsfather, who charged the actress had won away the love of her husband, the English cartoonist and the creator of "Ole Bill" and "The Better 'Ole."

Mrs. Bairnsfather said her husband had been unfaithful while he was collaborating with Miss Collier on a play, and while she was in Europe they tenanted an apartment together in the West Fifties in New York and were known as "Mr. and Mrs. Bruce."

When she went to Europe in May, her complaint recited, her husband was to have followed a few weeks later. She charged Miss Collier with exercising influence to prevent his proceeding to Europe.

3 in Prison Uprising Go to Chair Tonight

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 28—Three convicts will die in the electric chair in Sing Sing tonight for the death of a fellow convict, unless Gov. Roosevelt reprieves them.

The doomed men are Claude Udwine, William Force and Jesse Thomas, who participated in the Auburn Prison uprising last year.

Ulster Yachtsmen on Way to U. S. Race

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Aug. 28 (AP)—Four former rear commodores of the Royal Ulster Club will sail on the Caledonia Sunday for the America's cup races as guests of Sir Thomas Lipton. The yachtsmen are Mayor Robert Workman, Col. R. Groves Raines, J. C. Lepper and William McCalla.

CARDINAL GUEST AT LAWRENCE

Lawrence, Aug. 28—With Cardinal O'Connell present as guest of honor, several hundred members of St. Mary's Church attended a high mass today marking the 1600th anniversary of the death of St. Augustine.

St. Augustine, bishop of Hippo in Africa, was founder of the order of St. Augustine, whose priests have served in Lawrence churches for 70 years.

Beginning tonight and concluding Sunday night, the church will conduct a tridium, with the Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O. S. A., pastor of the Church of St. Nicholas at Jamaica, L. I., as preacher.

When Cardinal O'Connell arrived in Lawrence to attend the high mass, members of the church sodalities, the Catholic Daughters of America, the Holy Name Society, the Knights of Columbus and Irish National Foresters and members of the city government formed in a procession in the yard of St. Mary's Parochial School, Haverhill st., and marched to the church with the Cardinal following.

The Cardinal was escorted by a guard made up of members of the fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, of Lawrence.

Cardinal O'Connell addressed the congregation briefly, declaring it a pleasure to be in Lawrence and to attend the services.

Heavy Damage Done in New Jersey Storm

Camden, N. J., Aug. 28 (AP)—Thousands of dollars' damage in widely-scattered sections was caused last night and early today by a series of electrical storms that swept southern New Jersey. At Moorestown a downpour raised the level of Rancocas creek several feet in a few minutes.

ASKS PROBE OF CAMPAIGN IN COLORADO

G. O. P. Committeeman Sees Attempt to Purchase the Senate Nomination

Colorado Springs, Col., Aug. 28 (AP)—Expressing belief there is foundation for charges of efforts to purchase the Republican senatorial nomination in Colorado, C. C. Hamlin, Republican national committeeman, has asked an immediate investigation of campaign expenditures in a message to Senator Gerald P. Nye.

Hamlin urged Senator Nye and the Senate campaign investigating committee to complete its work in Colorado and make the findings public before the primary election, Sept. 9.

"We are entitled to have the country know that our state is not for sale," Hamlin wired. "As Republican National Committee man from Colorado and as publisher of two daily papers in this city I most earnestly urge that your committee proceed immediately with its investigation to the end that the electorate may vote with full knowledge of the facts."

2 LET HUSBANDS GO TO RIVALS

Two Winchester women, living side by side in Yale st., have been granted divorces at Reno, according to dispatches from that city today, another woman figuring in each case.

Mrs. Dorothy K. Billings was granted a divorce from Roger Billings, insurance man, of 20 Yale st., Winchester, on the ground that he was infatuated with another woman.

Billings did not contest and an agreement made out of court provides for payments of $4250 annually for Mrs. Billings and the two children, this to be reduced to $3000 in case of remarriage.

Mrs. Rachel S. Woodard of 18 Yale st., Winchester, was granted a divorce from Donald K. Woodard, 32-year-old construction engineer, on the ground he admitted to her he could not give up another woman.

Woodard failed to contest the action, and an out of court agreement provides that Mrs. Woodard shall have custody of two minor children and Woodard shall pay her $5000 a year. This amount is to be reduced to $2500 a year for the children, if she remarries.

RAID POOL THAT WON'T PAY

A woman's tears, induced by an alleged refusal to pay her $100 won in a pool, led today to a raid on a restaurant in Sumner st. and the arrest of Arthur B. Grandone of Gladstone st., East Boston.

Gradone was charged with maintaining a gaming nuisance, maintaining a liquor nuisance, setting up and promoting a lottery, keeping and exposing liquor for sale and possession of lottery tickets.

The raid was conducted by Detectives Paul Crowley, Peter DiSessa and William Condon following a telephone complaint. According to the complaint, a woman won $1 in the pool and went to the restaurant to collect. Refused, she left, weeping.

Police seized more than 100 pool tickets, a half pitcher of liquor and a gallon of wine.

Squirrels Lure Two Children; Police Seek Mother

Found crying on the common today, Leonora Goudey, 9, and Buddy Goudey, 8, explained between sobs to Traffic Officer John J. McCarthy:

"We've lost our mother."

McCarthy also learned that they had just arrived by automobile from their home in New York and had gone with their mother to the Common, where they had been playing with the squirrels and pigeons.

They were taken to Station 4, Lagrange st., and an officer sent out to search for their "lost mother."

SAVE CATTLE IN $250,000 FIRE

Charlton, Aug. 28 (AP)—Lack of assistance at the start resulted in loss that will reach approximately $250,000 at the Masonic Home in Charlton last night when fire, believed to have started by spontaneous combustion in the hay loft, destroyed the big cattle and storage barn at the farm.

Loss is partly covered by insurance. Thirty head of cattle, including a prize cow, prize bull, six horses and a team of work oxen, were removed.

According to officials, four of the men employed at the home were at the barn. They had just completed the installation of fire fighting apparatus and had been testing the siren when smoke was seen curling from the upper windows.

They turned in another alarm, but other helpers, thinking it another test, did not respond.

Intense excitement prevailed among the residents at the home, but at no time were they in any danger officials said. Lepreløt Logee, who was 104 years old in February and who has lived at the home a number of years, was one of the principal spectators. So interested was he that attendants had to compel him to go to bed and one had to remain with him to see that he stayed there.

STUDENT HELD AS BURGLAR

Worcester, Aug. 28—George C. Cheever, 23, of West Boylston, an honor student in the 1932 class at Harvard, pleaded guilty in District Court today to a charge of breaking and entering and larceny. He was held in $300 for the grand jury.

Cheever admitted he was one of two men who broke into a garage in West Boylston and rifled the cash register. He said he needed money to get to Brockton to visit a girl.

The student's father, George W. Cheever, contends that the arrest of his son by state troopers last night in Onset was illegal and that the son's constitutional rights were not observed.

CAPTAIN DIES AS SHIP SINKS

New York, Aug. 2 (AP)—Caught by shifting freight, a captain was carried down with his ship in New York harbor last night after a collision with a scow. His crew of 24 was rescued.

The collision between the Clyde-Mallory freighter Neches and the third of a string of scows in tow of a tug occurred in the narrows off Staten Island. Coast guard boats and police launches saved all the officers and men but Capt. Estes of the Neches. He was wedged in by a load of pipe on the after deck.

1000 Greco-American Veterans in Athens

Athens, Greece, Aug. 28 (AP)—More than 1000 members of the Greco-American Legion arrived today on the liner Saturnia. Among them were M. Dimos, who was a member of the Byrd expedition to the South Pole, and a Miss Elliott, granddaughter of an American volunteer in the Greek Revolution of 1821.

ONE ARREST IN 'LOVE KILLING'

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 28 (AP)—The slaying of Miss Lois M. Kentle, Los Angeles student of the University of California and her fiance, Francis Conlon, Monrovia, remained as much a mystery today as when their knife-hacked bodies were discovered Monday on the beach at Ensenada, Mexico.

The net result of an intensive investigation by American and Mexican officials has been the reported arrest of Masotomi Miyashiro by Southern California authorities after he was found, they said, armed with a knife, wandering in a dazed condition eight miles from the scene of the murder.

Officers have been unable to find any motive for the slaying. Evidence of a terrific struggle were found about the tent Conlon and his fiancee had pitched on the sand.

The bodies had been placed in a shallow grave. No money was found in Conlon's pockets, although he was reported to have taken $100 on the trip.

CLUBMAN DIES, DRUG VICTIM

New York, Aug. 28—William Stephen Van Rensselaer, member of one of New York's oldest families, who was reported to have died in a New York hotel last Thursday, actually died while undergoing a secret treatment for narcotic addiction in a sanitarium at Englewood, N. J.

This was learned exclusively by Universal Service from attendants of the sanitarium and by verification of the original death certificate.

Van Rensselaer was born in this city on April 7, 1886, the son of the late Kiliaen and Olivia Atterbury Van Rensselaer.

His family dated its American history back to the days when the first Kiliaen Van Rensselaer, a wealthy Amsterdam merchant, became a power in the Dutch Settlement here.

Van Rensselaer served at different times at the American Legation in Lisbon, Portugal, and in Rome. He retired after the war and devoted much of his time to his clubs, the Pilgrims, the St. Nicholas Society and the Union League Club.

The cause of Van Rensselaer's death was revealed by an examination of the death certificate signed by Dr. Harry M. Peters, a specialist in treatment of narcotic addicts by a secret medical formula, and head of the Englewood sanitarium.

N. H. Father Is Killed While His Family Holds Reunion

Milford, N. H., Aug. 28 (AP)—While his seven sons and daughters enjoyed a reunion at the family home in Nashua today, Daniel Sweeney, 60, a Boston & Maine section foreman, was instantly killed in a collision between a gasoline handcar and a work train at Ponemah station. Sweeney was riding on the handcar.

Among the sons gathered for the reunion were Lieut. Daniel Sweeney, Jr., of the navy and John Sweeney, a Boston school teacher.

EARRINGS CLUE TO AUTO VICTIM

Five days on a cold slab, unclaimed.

It is the fate of a gray-haired woman of 60, Boston's traffic victim.

Devoid of jewelry but for a set of earrings, which, it is hoped, may identify her, and shorn of worldly goods but for a mere dime. Her face is kindly, even in death.

But toil worn from working for somebody during life.

Today, the fifth day since she met her death at Kneeland and Washington sts., a victim of bewilderment at the new traffic lights, brought no visitors to Southern mortuary to claim her.

HUNNEMANS IN COURT AGAIN

Charging that Benjamin A. Hunneman, former Harvard football star and wealthy clubman, had failed to pay $100 a month to his wife, Mrs. Helen B. Hunneman of 4 Commonwealth ave. during the past 10 months, as directed by the court, a petition for contempt proceedings was filed against him late yesterday at Suffolk Probate Court.

Legal action was taken on behalf of the former Boston society belle by Atty. Esmonde T. Doherty, former Harvard half-miler, who last year presented her petition for separate support on the charge of cruel and abusive treatment.

The petition, which is returnable Sept. 11, alleges that Hunneman made the payments to his wife as ordered by the court for four months only, but during the past 10 months has neglected to give her the monthly allowance ordered last year by the court.

Not only does Mrs. Hunneman demand $1000 from her husband, according to the petition, but also requests the court to increase the allotment and to require her husband to pay $2100 in hospital and doctors' bills.

Raccoon and 6 Cubs Stars at White House Party

Washington, Aug. 28 (AP)—Star performers at the White House, where they helped entertain at a garden fete, Susie, a four-year-old raccoon, and her six cubs, were back in the Washington Zoo today after an exciting journey in an old trunk.

Ike Hoover, attendant at the executive mansion through the regime of many presidents, conceived the idea of having the animal performers for President and Mrs. Hoover's party. And in doing so he revived the mystery of the unfortunate Rebecca.

Rebecca, for a time, was the cynosure of all raccoon and many other eyes. Presented to President Coolidge by an admirer, she roamed the White House grounds for many months, until suddenly she vanished.

Ike Hoover was busy for a time yesterday denying rumors that Rebecca had returned, since Susie and her menage occupied the especially constructed cage that once housed the former White House pet.

Among the 3,000 animals now in the capital zoo are King, 35-year-old ostrich, presented to President Roosevelt in 1904 by an Abyssinian king; Billy, a pigmy hippopotamus, given to President Coolidge by Harvey Firestone, and a lion and lioness, Joseph and Johanna, presented by the mayor of Johannesburg, South Africa.

Arrest 18 Chinese in Tong War Raid

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—Eighteen Chinese were arrested on a charge of possessing weapons when police raided headquarters of the Sam Hip Association in lower Broadway today on a "tip" that the murder of two Chinese was being plotted. Three loaded revolvers, several boxes of ammunition and a hatchet were found.

Women now buy ginger ale this money-saving way . . .

"No more near-quarts . . . no more scanty pints," say housewives here. "You get the most for your money in a full size pint of Clicquot Club Pale Dry"

Clicquot Club
Pale Dry
Ginger Ale

The Clicquot Club Eskimos—every Friday at 9 p. m., New York Time, over WEAF

WOMEN who like to get their money's worth have found a way of buying ginger ale that saves them untold waste. A way that has been adopted by thrifty housewives everywhere.

When they go to their dealer for ginger ale, they ask for Clicquot Club Pale Dry. It comes in a full 16-ounce bottle . . . a standard, full size pint.

So many ginger ales sold today come in near-quart or family size bottles. They often "go flat" before they are used up. And the scanty little 12-ounce bottle, so widely offered, is never quite enough to go around.

And so these women now insist on Clicquot Club Pale Dry. "It is," they say, "the most economical way of buying ginger ale."

Get better flavor, too

And Clicquot offers women more than full measure. It offers a quality and flavor found in no other ginger ale.

Every pint of Clicquot Club is aged 6 months in the making to give it a rare and mellow flavor that can't be copied, can't be duplicated.

Made from the finest Jamaica ginger, pure table sugar, real fruit flavors and clear spring water, its quality is assured. And to give it added zest and sparkle it is fully carbonated.

To further insure its purity, Clicquot is put up in clean new bottles that have never been used before. The all too common practice of using second-hand bottles is not employed by Clicquot Club. Every care is taken to insure the absolute purity and matchless flavor of Clicquot Club Pale Dry.

Right now, today, your dealer can supply you with Clicquot Club Pale Dry. Just try it. Note the full pint bottle, sample its rare and mellow flavor. See if you don't agree that Clicquot gives you more for your money in more ways than one.

Notice to the Public!

Food products which are not afraid to point to facts and statements on their packages deserve the confidence of the public! Packages give you scientific marketing information. Learn to examine them and get better results.

Other quality products besides Clicquot Club which frankly advise women to buy more intelligently through examining their packages are: Chase & Sanborn's Dated Coffee . . . Dole Pineapple . . . Heinz Oven-Baked Beans . . . Royal Baking Powder . . . Swift's Premium Hams and Bacon.

Women Voters to Conduct Citizenship School

By NANCY BREWSTER

Through the courtesy of Mrs. James J. Storrow, the Massachusetts League of Women Voters will use the Little Red Schoolhouse, a feature of the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield, September 15 to 20, as a citizenship school.

Not only conducted by the Massachusetts League but by the leagues of all the New England states, the school will run on a two-session basis, at 11 a. m. and 2 p. m., a school bell calling the students to class. Experts will be presented during the week to outline the different systems of government, illustrating the state and national systems diagrams and League publications.

Mrs. Mary Tenney Healy, president of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters and Miss Mary Bulkley, regional director, are making a special effort to have these features fully helpful to women who may wish to vote for the first time in the November elections.

The Little Red School House, brought from Wakeby, is the last building to be added to the New England Village. The Eastern States Exposition at Springfield is recognized as one of America's institutions, devoted to commercial, industrial and educational advancement.

General Federation Directors Meet in Washington, Jan. 12

Do you know that the board of directors of the General Federation of Women's Clubs is to meet in Washington, January 12, at Federation headquarters and that five days later, a conference will take place between the chairmen of committees, state presidents and state directors?

Thus the club season gets under way.

Legion Auxiliary Plans Two Teas for Gold Star Mothers

Special entertainment is being planned for the Gold Star Mothers and relatives, officials of the American Legion Auxiliary national convention which opens in the Hub, October 6, announce.

In addition to providing them with grandstand seats for the legion and legion auxiliary parade, it is expected that the Boston convention committee will hold two teas in their honor, one of which is scheduled for October 6, the opening day, at the Salada tea room, Stuart and Berkeley sts. This is specially for the Massachusetts Gold Star Mothers.

Chairman of this particular event is Mrs. Charles Crowell of Pittsfield, who will have as her assisting hostesses, wives of the former department commanders of the Massachusetts American Legion. They are Mrs. William Doyle, Malden Mrs. Leo M. Harlow, No. Easton; Mrs. Frank J. Good, Cambridge; Mrs. John Reth, Roslindale; Mrs. William McGinnis, Wollaston; Mrs. James T. Duane, Framingham; Mrs. John F. J. Herbert, Worcester; Mrs. William Griffin, South Boston, and Mrs. John O'Connell, Amherst.

The famous Y. D. Club of Boston has offered the facilities of their home at No. 200 Huntington ave. for the entertainment of the out-of-state Gold Star Mothers and of this affair, Mrs. Walter G. Williams of New Bedford is the chairman.

Her committee includes: Mrs. Buswell, affectionately known as "Mother Buswell" of Revere; Mrs. Elizabeth Giblin, Jamaica Plain; Mrs. Abbot, Swampscott; Mrs. Beals, Lawrence; Mrs. Burcke, Lowell; Miss Margaret Campbell, Woburn; Miss Mary Carey, Ashland; Mrs. Lottie Cummings, Revere; Mrs. Daly, Arlington; Mrs. Dickie, Dorchester; Mrs. Foss, Somerville; Mrs. Emma Howland, Plymouth; Mrs. Mary G. Kane, Dorchester; Miss Cynthia McLaughlin, East Boston; Mrs. Martha O'Hagan, Dorchester; Mrs. J. E. Rheinhalter, West Newton; Mrs. Rolfe, Cambridge; Miss Mary Shea, Dorchester; Miss May Thompson, Waltham; Mrs. Catherine Woods, Medford.

This group is composed entirely of relatives of men who lost their lives in service during the World War and includes several whose names have been perpetuated by their local legion posts. This tea is also scheduled for the opening day, open only to Gold Star mothers.

FREDERICK AYER, JR., oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ayer of Hamilton, will be one of the junior exhibitors at the Labor Day Horse Show at the Myopia Hunt Club. Fred, Jr., has taken several blue ribbons with his hunter this season.

There are 20 clubs in the 15th district under which jurisdiction the aforementioned groups are headed. Of this district, Mrs. Robert O. Harper of Great Barrington is the director.

Prepare for Shipwreck Party

York Harbor Folk Are Invited to Mystery Ball; Location Is Kept Secret

A SHIPWRECK PARTY! Isn't that new and original? It took a group of handsome New York bachelors to think up that one. On Saturday night York Harborites will don their deep sea finery to attend the annual mystery ball given by Mr. Sherry Rollins, Mr. Harold Richards, Mr. Penny Lamontaine and Mr. Valentine Hollingsworth.

Guests are requested to assume any character befitting the occasion, such as mermaids, sea-nymphs, various kinds of fish but no crabs allowed. Clarence Bush, New York artist, is decorating the interior with under-water scenery, the location of which is unknown, as guests are bidden to meet at a certain place and are then transported to the bottom of the sea. An orchestra sent from New York for the occasion will interpret what the sad sea waves are saying 12 miles out. This is the biggest evening show at York Harbor and can you wonder that the girls are looking over their sea-weeds in the hope of catching a fish?

MR. AND MRS. BAYARD WARREN of Hamilton are stopping at the Savoy-Plaza in New York for a few days. They will return for the Labor Day festivities around the Myopia Club.

MRS. FREDERICK R. SEARS, JR., of Manchester is also staying at the Savoy-Plaza during a short shopping tour in New York.

Hammond Castle Will Be Open to Public Tomorrow

FRIDAY, NOT THURSDAY, will be the day when Mr. John Hays Hammond, Jr., will open his Tudor Castle and gardens to the public, for the benefit of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. A number of society post-debutantes and young matrons will act as guides for the visitors, among them being Miss Susan Sturgis, Miss Anita Sturgis, Miss Rosamond Borland, Miss May Murray Kay, Miss Elizabeth Stewart, Miss Mabel Welch, Miss Julia Raymond, Mrs. Carlton Lester deCourcy Hinds, and Mrs. E. Preble Motley, Jr., Treasures will be on display from Italy, France, Germany and England, depicting the art of the 12th, 13th and 14th centuries.

MRS. JAMES J. STORROW is attending the fourth annual session of the English Folk Dance School at the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst. Others from this vicinity attending are the Misses Eleanor Garrison, May Snelling, Elizabeth W. R. Perkins, Louise Chapin, Mary P. Cunningham, Marguerite Sargent, Eleanoe Brodie, Ruth Berry, Mary Chamberlain, Constance Conant, Mildred Stone, Anna Faull, and Messrs. Maurice Menard, Andrew Yoemans, Michel Yatsevitch, Everett Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Torrey Allen, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Conant, Mrs. Malcolm McNajr and Miss Ruth Dewing.

MRS. A. WINSOR WELD OF Chestnut Hill is one of the visitors at the Convalescent Home of the Children's Hospital in Wellesley during August and September. Mrs. George P. Denny of Manchester and Mrs. Daniel Sortwell of Boston will assist Mrs. Weld during those months. The officers of the home are: Mrs. George H. Monks, Miss Mary B. Lothrop, Mrs. Horatio G. Curtis, Mrs. Henry S. Hunnewell, Mr. Samuel H. Hooper, Mrs. I. McD. Garfield and Mrs. Robert Amory.

First Felt Hats Cleverly Shaped

By ANN ARDEN

Models From G. M. Wethern Co.

WHETHER YOU find a brimmed hat most becoming or are a devotee of the little toque, you'll be able to satisfy your heart's delight because fall styles offer a wide variety of tams, berets, turbans and brimmed hats, many of them characterized by an asymmetrical or one-sided treatment.

* * *

SOMETIMES A brim is longer on one side than the other; or on a turban, the drapery is noticed to be asymmetrical, while a one-sided forehead line on berets and turbans is the equivalent of a fall 1930 date line.

* * *

FELTS ARE usually the first choice for fall, either in black, brown or a tone matching one's coat or suit.

* * *

TWO CLEVER felt hats are pictured. The close fitting black felt toque from Rosemonde is softly draped, its double brim finely tucked, the plain felt crown extending in long points on right side.

* * *

THE BROWN felt beret, a Hermance model, closely molds the head, its sides asymmetrically draped to flare widely.

* * *

THE OFF-THE-FOREHEAD line, showing a bit of hair at the top and soft locks at either side, is a youthful style that remains fashionable.

* * *

THE COLLEGE girl likes the new double brim hats, for they permit a smart exposed forehead with neatly groomed brows well in view. Felts and soleils are selected in very soft, pliable varieties that can be in character with carefully detailed silk dresses. Black is the favorite because of its superiority over colors when it comes to mixing with many costumes.

* * *

FOR MORE formal afternoon and evening, the student who takes fashion seriously, but life not too much so, chooses luscious little velvet turbans and berets. Felt and soleil are being used in weights so fine that it gives them an unusual richness.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs, or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WHDH.

Dance Recital on Surrey Playhouse Special Program

THE TWO FINAL SPECIAL performances of the Junior Company of the Surrey Playhouse are a dance recital by Dana Sieveling, well-known Boston dancer, with "The Congo," a poem-orchestration and dance drama. This will be followed on August 29 by plays for children, under the direction of Louise Gifford, former head of the Theater Guild School. Mrs. James Jackson is one of the patronesses.

INVITATIONS ARE OUT FOR the wedding of Miss Theodora Wood Albree and Mr. Walter Thorne Tower at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ralph Albree at 49 Shaw st., West Newton, on Saturday, September 6, at 8 o'clock in the evening.

MISS CONSTANCE AND MISS PEGGY CREIGHTON, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Creighton of Little's Point, Swampscott, are visiting the William Ticknors at the Homestead, Virginia Hot Springs. They will return for the Labor Day races at Marblehead.

THE WEEKLY DANCE AT the Eastern Yacht Club takes place this evening. These dances have been a great success this season, as many house guests have been entertained as well as visiting yachtsmen. Miss Rebecca Benson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Benson of Salem and Marblehead Neck, gave a dinner party last week preceding the dance.

New Hampshire Bids for Paris Trip

OUT OF NEW HAMPSHIRE comes another beauty, Miss Kathryn Maloney, anxious to be guest of the Boston Evening American on Paris trip. She lives at Portsmouth. (Marden photo.)

BORN IN LONDON, ENGLAND, Miss Albertina Lanthier is in the battle with hopes of passing the test that will give her New England's Typical Girl title. She wants to hop over to "Blighty" on a week-end, during her stay in Paris, or perhaps come home via an English port. Miss Lanthier lives at 6 Allston st., Revere. She is a nurse.

Yale Building Fee $10,000

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 28—The building permit filed by Yale University for the new gymnasium and laboratory brought the city a fee of $10,140. It revealed that the estimated cost is $4,350,000. Three years will be required to complete the building.

BLONDES TAKE CONTEST LEAD

Brunettes to the front! The blondes are in the lead!

Some days ago the Typical New England Girl Editor printed a lament that the dark-haired maidens were stealing the thunder of blondes and titians in this, the Typical New England Girl contest. But not so with today's printing.

Those flaxen-haired young women are leading in numbers.

But the contest continues and she is still to be found who answers the requisities of the Typical New England Girl that a trip to Paris may be hers.

TRIP WORTH $3000

Value of said trip? Three thousand dollars. Fancy that, all that money for the Typical New England Girl in cultural, educational and recreational activity, bestowed by the Boston Evening American and Miss Gloria Swanson.

And here's a secret, girls! If you witness the showing of "What a Widow," Miss Swanson's latest talkie, which opens at Loew's State Theater, Sept. 15, you will see all the places in Paris that the lucky winner of the Typical New England Girl contest is to see when she makes the trip.

Paris with its old-world treasures and its new-world people and manners! Paris with its suavity and finesse, its culture and fashion, its eye-absorbing beauties, Paris the heart of the world a playground for some New England Girl.

Well, it won't be long now before we will know who she is, for at midnight, September 15, the contest closes and then five judges gather around the boards to sort the entries out and reach a conclusion.

Until then all girls 21 or over or who will have reached the age of 21 by midnight of Sept. 15, have a chance to win this offering, providing she has that New England something.

REVERE ENTRANT

If you saw Albertina Lanthier of 6 Allston st., Revere, a blonde nurse, hovering around the sick bed, you'd look twice. Well today we print her picture as an entrant of the Typical New England girl contest.

And in like manner we ask you to send for the approval of the Typical New England Girl Editor completed coupons and photographs of other charming young women who you feel are entitled to the trip to Paris.

Miss Lanthier is five feet four inches and weighs 112 pounds. She is fond of swimming and golf and lists as her accomplishments music and domestic science.

Then there is Kathryn Maloney of 165 State st., Portsmouth, N. H., a blonde bookkeeper, five feet and seven and a half inches tall and 134 pounds.

Then too, Katherine B. Curtin of 663 Sacramento st., Cambridge, a bank clerk, with music and domestic science her likes; Mildred Hoar of 42 Bainbridge st., Malden, a stenographer, who also enjoys music and domestic science; Cynthia Hill of Wayland, a payroll clerk, given over to music and business seriously, and who, in her social hours, serves the Order of Rainbow Girls as grand officer; Gertrude Harrington, 2326 Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, who not only likes drawing, painting, designing, swimming, rowing, shooting and skating, but can milk a cow and tend to a farm.

This Coupon Makes You or a Friend Eligible to Paris Trip

Move to Re-elect Bay State G. A. R. Chief

Cincinnati, Aug. 28 (AP)—A move was under way to re-elect Commander-in-Chief Edwin J. Foster of Worcester, Mass., at the election of officers of the Grand Army of the Republic today.

Four candidates were in the field but it was said friends of Commander Foster would like to see him at the helm another year. Such a move would require the approval of the commander himself, but he did not commit himself.

Of the avowed candidates, Samuel P. Town, past department commander of Pennsylvania and assistant quartermaster general of the G. A. R., was believed to have the inside track.

BETTER BRAN FLAKES

Cheering for breakfast. A treat for lunch.

Kellogg's Pep Bran Flakes have the famous flavor of PEP. The matchless goodness of crunchy whole wheat. And bran! There's just enough added to be mildly laxative.

Just one taste and you'll agree that Kellogg's Pep Bran Flakes are better bran flakes.

M'NIDER READY TO START DUTY

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 28 (AP)—Hanford MacNider, who flew here from Washington, today prepared to present to Governor General Viscount Willingdon his credentials as United States minister to Canada.

MacNider, piloted by Capt. Ira C. Eaker, was accompanied by his wife. First to greet him was Sir George Perley, acting prime minister, who called on him at his hotel. Sir George was accompanied by Dr. O. B. Skelton, under-secretary for external affairs. He said Premier R. B. Bennett was not in Ottawa, but would return the latter part of the week.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

PARAMOUNT ENGAGES EISENSTEIN TO FILM 'THE AMERICAN TRAGEDY'

DIRECTOR PICKING CAST

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Universal Service Motion Picture Editor.

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc

Los Angeles, Aug. 27—"The American Tragedy" will not miss one whit of its drama in the hands of Sergei Eisenstein who will direct it. The tragedy, although laid in America, might be the story of any country so universal is the theme.

Louella O. Parsons

Both Paramount and Eisenstein have been equally deliberate in finding a vehicle for the man who created "Potemkin" on the screen. They were determined that Eisenstein should have nothing conventional and that he should be spared the usual Gah Gah plots. With "The American Tragedy" in the possession of Paramount it was unanimously decided to let Eisenstein write the first treatment and direct the widely read Theodore Dreiser novel.

Phillips Holmes and Chester Morris are leading the prospects for the boys' role that requires such delicate handling and such finesse. Either would be good as Clyde Griffith.

THE TIFFANY CO. believes in calling a spade a spade, if you know what I mean. They are going out on the highways and byways to get titles that will bring Lizzie and her boy friend into the theater. "The Single Sin," isn't something a bit sensational, you know how disappointed those who paid admittance into the theaters are going to be. Jean Hersholt is at Tiffany now making "The Third Alarm" and is working overtime to be able to play the role of the manager in "The Royal Family." He will rush to New York, probably fly, as soon as he finishes, to get there in time. Hobart Bosworth is also in "The Third Alarm." A very good cast.

TWO "EAST LYNNE" productions are due out of Hollywood all in one season. Not since the Fox company and the old Metro made two versions of "Romeo and Juliet," have we had two companies making exactly the same story. The Fox company, as announced several weeks ago, will make "East Lynne" with the fair-haired Ann Harding. The Halperin brothers, for Liberty Productions, have signed Bessie Love as their sad-eyed, troubled heroine. These two girls are certainly unlike in appearance and personality. The Fox company is going about making a serious production of "East Lynne," spending both time and money to make it acceptable to the public, while the Halperin version will be called "Ex-Flame" and will have a more modern treatment. The Halperins are negotiating with Neil Hamilton and Norman Kerry for the male leads.

PUT "Shepper Newfounder" down as a coming event. That is the title of Edmund Lowe's next for Fox. Leo McCarey will direct it. Tommy Clifford has just as important a part as Eddie, in fact he is to be featured. Wonder what will happen to "Stolen Thunder" which is one of those "on again, off again, gone again, Finnegan" things. First Harold Murray was to play the leading role, then Edmund Lowe was supposed to play it and now I don't suppose there is any one set to play opposite Jeanette MacDonald. But since there seems to be music in "Stolen Thunder" it would seem Mr. Murray is the logical person.

GEORGE BANCROFT, who spends all of his leisure time strolling up and down the beach at Santa Monica in a bathing suit, thereby giving the bathers a chance to see the famous Bancroft face to face, is to do a newspaper story. Think of what a chance George will have to get even with all the editors in the country. He plays the managing editor of a tabloid. Oliver H. P. Garrett is writing an original. This will be the first time that George has played in a newspaper story. He has played crooks de luxe, big he-men of the West, but never a newspaper man.

THE ITALIANS of Los Angeles are very proud of Junior Pirrone, a captivating youngster of seven. Junior played at a theater here in "The Wedding of Jack and Jill," and all of his father's and mother's' countrymen came to take a look at the little boy who is their Jackie Coogan. He has played in several Fox pictures, in "Holiday," and for Warner Brothers, and according to those who have watched the lad's work, he has a future.

HUGE SET FOR WAR FILM

The largest outdoor set ever constructed in Universal City, larger even than the gigantic cathedral used in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," was built for "All Quiet on the Western Front," now showing at popular prices at the Washington Street Olympia and Uptown. The set represented the great German training barracks. The building was more than 300 feet in length and five stories in height at its peak. Hundreds of tons of gravel were used in making the parade ground covering several acres. Among the unique props built for the picture was a German street car of an antiquated type which runs of its own power.

Lewis Milestone

For the scene at a French village where three of Remarque's schoolboy soldiers swim a canal to meet three French girls, there was built a canal a half mile in length, 40 feet in width and 15 feet deep crossed by a stone bridge patrolled by sentries, and surrounded by cottages and a village settlement. "All Quiet," a masterly picture, was directed by Lewis Milestone, who will be among the 10 best directors of 1930.

Ann Harding Rehearsing Opposite Husband

Ann Harding has begun rehearsing for "The Greater Love," her next Pathe starring vehicle, with Harry Bannister, her husband, playing opposite her. Eugene Walter wrote the play, while Rollo Lloyd, prominent New York stage director, has made the adaptation and will direct.

VICTOR MOORE IN 'PRINCESS CHARMING'

One of America's best comedians, Victor Moore, will appear in "Princess Charming" when it opens at the Shubert for a three weeks' engagement, beginning September 8. Moore was reared in Boston and has been seen there both in plays and in vaudeville for the last 30 years.

Though born in Hammonton, N. J., Moore was brought to Boston when a child of five. Here he attended public schools. He actually carried a spear, as the phase is, at the old Boston Theater, and became by dint of unstinting study in spear-carrying one of Boston's best known supers. He got his first job by standing on a paving block, for he was a head shorter than any of the men who applied, but once accepted as a super, he stuck.

For $3.50 a week, 50 cents of which went to the super captain as his "racket," Moore embellished the ensemble of the Boston, Hollis St., Park, Tremont and Grand Dime theaters.

* * *

IN BETWEEN spear-carrying he worked in his father's restaurant, for the Boston Directory and for the Old Colony Railroad. He stepped out of the super class and into the chorus in E. E. Rice's "The Girl from Paris," at the old Park Theater. His first role on the stage was that of a waiter in "Rose Mary," John Drew's play at the Empire Theater, New York. For this he received $4 a week. He advanced fast.

Moore's greatest success was in George M. Cohan's "Forty Five Minutes From Broadway," followed by "Talk of New York."

Among the pictures he made are "Snobs," two "Chimmie Fadden" pictures, "The Clown" and "The Race" as well as 41 one-reelers for Paramount before the talkies and "Dangerous Dan McGrew" with Helen Kane and "Heads Up," recently also for Paramount.

Film Who's Who

Renee Adoree, who gained fame in the feminine lead in "The Big Parade," plays one of the important supporting roles in Ramon Novarro's latest latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking feature, "Call of the Flesh," on the screen at Loew's State this week. Miss Adoree was born at Lille, France. Her father was a famous circus man and her mother also was a member of the troupe. From childhood, Renee traveled with the circus through Russia, Germany, France, Belgium and Sweden. She began her professional career as a dancer with the circus at the age of 10. She was dancing on the stage in Brussels when the Germans invaded Belgium. Escaping to France by night trips on freight trains, she finally reached London and from there came to the United States.

STAR FORMER WORCESTER RESIDENT

Mary Nolan, star of "Outside the Law," opening at the New B. F. Keith's next Saturday, once lived in Worcester. This came out during an interview when she was telling how her desire to go on the stage caused her to run away from home.

"I was staying with my sister in Worcester," she said. "I had been a working pupil in school out West; but not liking that life, I came to Worcester to make my home.

"At the age of 16 I found myself in flight—to beome an actress. That was my start."

Her lack of experience, however, militated against her, and for some time she was forced to content herself by working as an artists' model., Later she succeeded in securing a position in a musical comedy, and soon afterward went abroad.

Arriving in Germany, her beauty created a sensation, and she was starred in a number of pictures made by the great UFA company in Berlin.

"But I was forced to become an actress," says Miss Nolan. "It was sufficient to be merely a pretty girl in America, but in Germany I had to stand on my merits as an actress. And then, strangely, when I returned to America, I had to begin all over again. Recognized as a star in Europe, in my native land I was still looked upon merely as a pretty girl."

"Sorrel and Son," was her first American picture, and as a result of her work in that production she was placed under contract by Universal. Featured in "The Foreign Legion," she registered a distinct hit, and since then her rise to screen eminence has been rapid.

Scollayette

LUCY MIKAILA

DAVE GOULD'S "Scollayettes" continue to win new honors each week at the Scollay Square.

JANE WINTON IN AIR EPIC AT TREMONT

Jane Winton, one of Hollywood's most beautiful women and one of the best known delineators of sophisticated screen roles, is seen in the massive air spectacle, "Hell's Angels" as the philandering Baroness Von Krantz, a part which gives her an opportunity to wear gorgeous gowns and further her fame as an actress of ability. "Hell's Angels" opens the season at the Tremont on Labor Day night, with performances twice daily thereafter.

Miss Winton is a daughter of Manhattan, claiming New York City as her birthplace. She made her theatrical debut as a member of Florenz Zeigfeld's glorified ensemble of beauties and in this capacity she was introduced into the motion picture field. While in the Follies she was given a screen test and later was signed by Paramount-Famous-Lasky at their Long Island studio. After making several pictures she was sent to Hollywood by the same company for a part in a production starring Agnes Ayres. Her work in this picture gained her immediate recognition by the screen going public.

Four for Fairbanks

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., recently made a star by First National, will be presented by that company in four films next season.

College Story for Star

Although the title has not yet been announced, Marilyn Miller's next for First National will be a story of college life.

UNCLE SAM VS. JOHN BULL

A parasang astern, or to port, or to starboard, just where we do not know as the dancing keys of the typewriter click-click merrily along you will find an account of the happenings last night on Soldiers Field, Chicago, where the athletes of Uncle Sam and John Bull met in the first dual track meet between the United States and the British Empire in 35 years.

New Englanders, Boston boys, didn't have much to do in the big doings there in the Gargantuan stadium on the Bowle, Mich., last night. But, oh, the knots the boys from this brownbread and Browning belt tied in the British Lion's tail in that first dual meet on old Manhattan Field, New York, that beautiful summer day back in '95.

Old Manhattan Field—the big empty lot abaft the Polo Grounds. Back in those almost forgotten days when Boston had real baseball teams and the Red Sox, accompanied by Honey Boy Fitzgerald and Tessie and the Royal Rooters, invaded New York to meet the Giants for the baseball championship of the universe the Polo Grounds was well known to Bostonians. Red Sox and Braves don't give us Bostonians much of an excuse to visit New York and the Polo Grounds nowadays.

But on the empty lot abaft the Polo Grounds, New York, old Manhattan Field, on that glorious summer day back in '95, New Englanders helped America give Old England the worst licking John Bull took from us since great-great-great-great grand-pap chased the redcoats in from Lexington.

Bernie Wefers of Lowell won both sprints, the 100 and 220.

Tommy Burke, who later was sporting editor here for years, won the quarter.

Steve Chase of Dartmouth, now a staid and sedate business man here, captured the hurdles.

Eddie Bloss of deah old Hawvard, another Bostonian, leaping like a second Finn McCool, who hopped across Ireland in three jumps—bedad and the marks of his footprints are there to this blessed day—annexed the broad jump. The high jump was won by another Down Easter, transplanted from the Ould Sod, Mike Sweeney. And thereby hangs another tale.

'TIS ROOSEVELT SPEAKING

We were sitting with President Theodore Roosevelt on the porch of his summer home on Sagamore Hill, overlooking Oyster Bay, Long Island, the all around champion, the late Martin Sheridan—green be the turf above him—John Flanagan, mighty weight thrower, and this humble correspondent.

The occasion was President Roosevelt's reception to the returning victorious American Olympians of 1908. That was another time Uncle Sammy's athletes made the British Lion jump through and roll over. You know Our Boys seem to have the habit.

President Roosevelt had told us of his love for honest, clean, red-blooded, manly pastimes. Conversation drifted to the memorable dual meet of '95. In 1895 President Roosevelt was police commissioner of New York.

"I remember that meet distinctly," said the President. "I can see Manhattan Field all aflutter with flags and banners and Tommy Lee leading the official mascot of the American team, a Harlem goat, around the track enclosure before the games commenced.

"I won a bet from Richard Harding Davis. Mike Sweeney was a good friend of mine and I wagered five dollars with Davis on Mike winning the high jump.

"When Mike won I was so elated I hurried from the stands to congratulate him. When I attempted to cross the track to get into the enclosure I was halted by the chief marshal, Mr. G. M. L. Sacks, who informed me:

" 'No one but officials and competitors allowed in the enclosure.'

" 'I am Mr. Roosevelt, the police commissioner,' I explained.

" 'Well you can't cross this track,' snapped Sacks. "I wouldn't care if you were President of the United States.' "

Beaming on Martin and John and I with a display of Rooseveltian ivory, the Father of the Big Stick laughingly concluded:

"As far as I can recollect that was the first time I ever was mentioned in connection with the presidency."

POOR LITTLE TOMMY

Back to the other big doings on old Manhattan Field. Another New Englander, transplanted from County Kildare, the late lamented Tommy Conneff—poor little Tommy, they found him stark and stiff in death one day resting in the rice paddles on the banks of the Luzon, far, far from his native Erin and his beloved blue hills of New England—won both the one-mile and three-mile races.

In fact Uncle Sam's boys won ALL the races.

There were 11 events.

America captured 11 firsts.

Also, if memory serves us right, most of the seconds.

The 100 in 9 4-5 seconds, the furlong in 21 3-5, the half in 1:53 2-5, despite Charlie Kilpatrick's running trunks becoming disengaged and he having to hold them up all the way down the stretch. Some of us still can see good old Mike Murphy, the trainer, watch in hand, standing on the last turn, yelling frantically:

"Lave them alone, Charlie! Lave them alone!"

Mike was so anxious to see Kilpatrick win the race and break the record he wouldn't have cared if Charlie's panties had fallen off altogether and the big, tall, long striding middle-distancer had raced across the line in September Morn attire.

Tommy Burke won the quarter in 48 seconds and a fraction. Conneff captured the mile eased down in 4:18 1-5 and then under wraps led Wilkens of England home by two hundred yards in the three-mile in 15:54 4-5. Mike Sweeney won Roosevelt's bet from Richard Harding Davis with a leap of 6 feet 5⅝ inches.

Compare those figures with those made in the big bowl on the shores of Lake Michigan last night. Remember it was 35 years ago. Consider the improvement in training, racing and track conditions since then.

It was no wonder the athletic clans gathered in the New York A. C. clubhouse that night and over beakers of foaming ale sang this parodiy Tommy Lee wrote to the tune of "The Last Rose of Summer."

" 'Twas the best brawn of England,
Got bloomin' well left:
All those lovely companions,
Of size and of heft.
Couldn't win a bloody contest,
Not a single blarsted one;
And the roast beef of England
For once was WELL DONE."

NELSON WINS 15-MILE SWIM

Toronto, Aug. 28—Marvin Nelson, Ft. Dodge, Ia., swimmer, won the 15-mile Canadian national exhibition Marathon swim and $10,000.

Nelson swam the course in 7 hours 36 minutes for a world's record. He appeared at the finish as fresh and strong as when he plunged into the lake with nearly 200 other men and one woman swimmers. Last year he collapsed unconscious with the end only 50 yards away.

George Young, winner of the Catalina Island swim; Frank Pritchard of Buffalo, Mendel Burditt, Eli Radakovich and many other noted swimmers were forced to quit. In the last four miles the Ft. Dodge swimmer overcame Spondor's lead of 250 yards to finish 500 yards ahead of his Canadian rival.

Isador Spondor, Port Colborne, Ont., won second place and $2500. Spondor's time was 7:56:53 3-5.

Nearly one-half hour later, William F. Goll of New York crawled out of the water to take third place in 8:23:33 2-5. Fourth went to George Blagden of Memphis, Tenn., in 8:25:37 2-5. Fifth went to Ernst Vierkoetter, German, who now lives in Toronto, while Norman Ross of Chicago was sixth.

3 Teams in Tandem Race at Revere

On Saturday night at the Revere Cycle Track, Nat Butler will stage the 100-kilometer cycling derby.

The distance is equivalent to 62½ miles, the longest race of the year.

Heading the list of entrants will be old George Chapman. Then there are Frankie Keenan, Charley Jager, Franz Duelberg, Franco Georgetti and Al Letournier.

A tandem race with three teams and a special sprint match of three one-mile heats with three entrants comprise the preliminary card.

The same six riders entered in the cycling derby will ride Monday, Labor Day night, in a one-hour championship contest.

Extra! Boxers Meet in Cornerless Ring

New York, Aug. 18—For more than a century boxers have boxed in a roped square misnamed a "ring." Last night at the boxing show at the exclusive Atlantic Beach Club on Long Island in aid of Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Milk Fund the contests were staged in a real roped circle. Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion of the world, was among the spectators. Joe Humphries, the veteran announcer, seemed at loss what to say in the center of a ring with no corners.

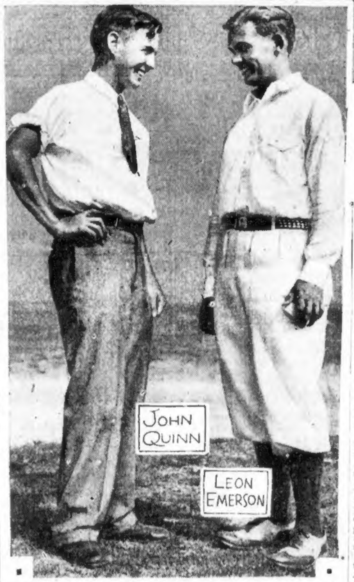
HEARST FINALISTS AND FINISH OF ONE FAVORITE

Bill Donnelly Leon Emerson

BILL DONNELLY GOING DOWN TO DEFEAT. Leon K. Emerson, one finalist, is shown sinking a putt on the 15th green to defeat Bill Donnelly, one of the favorites in the Hearst Junior Tournament in the semifinals at Wollaston. A large gathering trailed this match, one of the best of the battle.



AFTER THE BATTLE—Leon Emerson of the Wollaston Golf Club is pictured above with John Quinn who he defeated, 3 and 2 in the final round of the Hearst Junior Golf Tourney today.

Hearst Golf Sidelights

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Brookline is well represented in John Quinn, who teed off with Leon K. "Bunny" Emerson of the Wollaston Golf Club for the William Randolph Hearst Junior Golf championship. The pair are two of the best juniors in New England.

Johnny Quinn's two young brothers, Teddy and Joie, seemed to have little confidence in their brother being able to execute his shots. Whenever he addressed his ball, they would turn their backs until he played.

Leon Emerson's father was out scoring the Barbour-Quinn contest during the morning round.

Dorothy Hunter State junior women's champion, played over the Wollaston course after the boys got through with their quarter final.

Dorothy shot a 44 going out and came home with a 41 for an 85.

Those who think that a semifinal match has any effect on the nerves of the youngsters, should have seen Johnny Quinn and Johnny Barbour share a par on the 13th hole.

Johnny Brown, came, saw and conquered even in defeat. He is a great little golfer and sportsman. There should be no end to his success in the golfing world in the future.

Wollaston's members decided that they could benefit better by watching the semifinals than playing their afternoon matches.

"Bunny" Emerson and William H. Donnelly, Jr., carried the gallery in their afternoon match. Emerson's 4 and 3 margin over Donnelly was somewhat of a surprise to the followers of local golf.

Sandwiched in between the Donnelly-Emerson and Quinn-Brown matches were Dr. William F. Cleary, Dr. Thomas Dinan, Dr. Jack Kearney in a foursome. All did well, but they couldn't keep their eyes off the kids.

Jack Gray, Wollaston's genial pro returned from Hartford yesterday and was out on the fairways for a peek at the future greats, accompanied by Arthur Kiley, the club manager. All at Wollaston can be proud of the way they handled the tournament details.

Bunny Emerson is headed for for Yale. He has taken the college board examination with success.

If moral support means a thing today, Johnny Quinn will take home the Boston Evening American trophy and championship. The "Settlement" will be out in great number, as the boy has many friends.

Bill Donnelly has only his wildness to blame for his defeat. He was runner-up two years ago. His drives were long but off the mark.

U. S. Track Team Defeats British Empire, 9 to 5

Chicago, Aug. 28—America defeated the British Empire in a dual track meet here before a crowd of 40,000 persons by the score of 9 to 5.

Eight meet records were shattered.

The American victory was made possible by a clean sweep of the six field events. The British Empire team scored all of its points in track events, where America scored in only three events.

United States sprinters brought new records and victory in the 600-yard relay, the 480-yard shuttle hurdle relay and the one-mile medley relay.

Eddie Tolan, Michigan star, and George Simpson, Ohio State flash, co-operated in establishing a new American record of 37 and 5-10 seconds in the opening event of the programme—the 400-yard relay. Tolan and Simpson, paired with Russell Sweet, Olympic Club, San Francisco, and Cy Leland, Texas Christian University, proved superior to the visitors' 100-yard dash men and won the race by a wide margin.

Britain evened the count with a triumph in the mile relay, but American victories in the field events kept the United States in front.

It was the first time the games had been held on American soil in 35 years.

The victory was the third for the United States since the games were renewed in 1920, the first meet ending in a tie. The Empire team, including the combined forces of England, Scotland, Canada, Ireland, Australia, New Zealand and other sections of the far flung British Empire, was the strongest ever assembled under the Union Jack and forced America's powerful aggregation to record performances for victories.

LOCAL BOXERS IN CLEAN SWEEP

Massachusetts boxers eliminated all but one of the contestants for the international series in sweeping through the four classes in the Dilboy Post amateur boxing tournament before a crowd of 6000 at Dilboy Field.

In the absence of any heavyweight representative from New York or Nova Scotia, Al Dean of Medford and Henry Surrette of Leominster fought a three-round battle with Surrette getting the award.

Henry Burns of Somerville won the 118-pound class. Pat McStay of Newton swept through the field in the 126-pound class. George Lawless of Belmont took the honors in the 135-pound class and Milton Bishop of Stoughton survived the competition in the 147-pound class.

In the open classes Red Wilson of Everett won the decision over Bob Allen of Dorchester in three rounds in the 160-pound class. Eddie O'Hara of Dorchester knocked out Hildreth Erickson of Gardner in two rounds in the 175 pound class.

Lynn Gas A. A. to Hold Show Tonight

The Lynn Gas A. A. will stage another amateur boxing tournament at the General Electric Field this evening. Some of the best lads in the simon pure ranks will compete. Classes will be 147, 150 and 175, 118 and 135-pound novice.

HOPKINS WINS HEARST MEDAL

In the four-cornered playoff for the medal among the four Wollaston boys who were tied with 76's at the end of the qualifying round of the Hearst Junior Golf tourney at the Wollaston Golf Club, Bobby Hopkins shot an 81, which gave him a two-stroke advantage over Mike Casey and Gene Dolan. Sammy Ciaci was four strokes behind the winner.

Dolan was four up at the turn, going out in 37, against Hopkins' and Ciaci's 41's. Ciaci picked up three strokes on Dolan at the eleventh and one on Hopkins and Hopkins pulled up on even terms with Dolan at the 14th, the former getting a birdie three. Hopkins three-putted the 15th while Ciaci eliminated himself by taking an eight.

Hopkins caught Dolan again at the 16th, which was three-putted by the latter. Going to the 17th, Dolan was forced to play his second shot from a downhill lie with an iron and then put his third in the trap and wound up with a seven against Hopkins' five.

Hoppy foured the 18th to retain the two-stroke advantage which he had picked up at the previous hole.

Shatter Course Record at Oak Hill

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 28 (AP)—Officials of the Oak Hill Country Club announced today that the record for the course—70—was shattered yesterday by Joe Bachelder of Salem, playing in a foursome, who made the 18 holes in 69.

With Dick Rockwell of Leominster, Bachelder defeated Dr. Wilfred C. LaFortune and Dr. J. L. O'Dea. The victory established the third course record for Bachelder. The old record was made by Johnny Farrell last year during an exhibition match with Tommy Armour.

BEATS QUINN IN FINALS, 3 AND 2

regulation fours but messed up the short third, finally halving it with fives. Quinn was short with his second going to the fourth, and lost the hole to Emerson's four.

Stymie Stops Quinn at Fifth Hole

A stymie held Quinn off from a win at the fifth where Emerson was trapped with his second and the Brookline boy chipped short, after again skying his tee shot. They finally halved the hole with sixes.

Quinn was off color going up the sixth fairway and lost the hole to a birdie four. Going down the seventh Emerson hooked his second over the eighth fairway and Quinn's smothered iron shot left him a long approach to the green. Emerson played a fine recovery shot and got down with two putts to halve the hole with a par five.

Three putts cost Emerson the eighth hole where they were both home nicely with their seconds and Quinn scored his first win. Quinn pulled his iron shot off the ninth tee into the trap and lost the hole to a par three to be three down at the turn.

Going to the 10th Emerson hooked his second shot from a downhill lie into a trap and was still short of the green with his third losing the hole to a five as Quinn pushed his second shot and then missed his putt.

Quinn Loses 11th Tee: Shot Goes in Pond

Quinn went into the pond off the 11th tee, but played a fine iron shot to the green for his third and made a great try to get down with one putt which he just missed and dropped back to three down again when Emerson got his par.

They halved the 12th with fours, Quinn getting a nice five-footer after missing the green with his second shot. Emerson was home at the 13th, but Quinn pulled his tee shot and then missed a five-footer after a fine chip, losing the hole to go four down.

They were both home with their seconds going to the 14th with their seconds after fine drives and with Quinn dead to the cup for his four. Emerson made a bid for his three, which would have ended the match, but he ran well past the cup and missed coming back, losing the hole and going to three down with four to play.

They were both home with their seconds at the long 15th, Quinn well inside and only about 12 feet from the cup. Emerson left himself a ten-footer after his approach putt and Quinn hit the back of the cup for an eagle three but the ball refused to drop.

Emerson Misses Putt and Quinn Wins Hole

Emerson then missed his second putt and Quinn took the hole with a birdie four. Quinn was heavy with his iron off the 16th tee and was well short of the green while Emerson played a beautiful iron, caught the green, and ran hole high 20 feet to the right of pin.

Quinn's approach was weak, just getting on and he was still away but he made a fine try for a three, the ball going right over the cup but running three feet beyond. Emerson was short with his approach putt, leaving himself a ten-footer for a three.

Again he was short but was saved when his ball laid Quinn a half stymie which the Brookline boy was unable to get around and lost the hole to a four and the match, three and two.

Mrs. O. S. Hill Beats Mrs. Mida, 3 and 2

Kansas City, Aug. 28 (AP)—Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City, defending champion, advanced to the semifinals of the annual Women's Western Golf tournament today with a 3 and 2 victory over Mrs. Lee Mida of Chicago.

Mrs. Hill's birdie four to Mrs. Mida's par 5 ended the match on the 16th green. The titleholder led Mrs. Mida two up at the turn.

A break for the champion came on the 12th. Mrs. Mida's second shot hit the back of a trap and rolled into trouble. Mrs. Hill's second hit almost at the same spot and bounded on the green. Mrs. Hill won with a par 4.

Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, and Miss Dorothy Page, Madison, Wis., battled to the 17th green, where Miss Page won 2 and 2.

Mrs. Gregg Lifur, Los Angeles, eliminated Miss Betty Bruen, Kansas City, 4 and 3.

Mrs. G. W. Tyson, Kansas City, former national champion, defeated Miss Florence Beebe, Chicago, 1 up.

Ex-Eastern League Hurler Passes On

Stamford, Mass., Aug. 28 (AP)—Raymond Joyce, 32, former pitcher for New Haven and Bridgeport Eastern league teams, died at Stamford hospital last night of typhoid fever. Joyce pitched in the Western league, and had a tryout with the Washington American league team before going to the Eastern league.

Nuthall-Marlowe Team Meets Palfrey's in Finals

MISS MORRILL AND PARTNER ARE BEATEN

Miss Betty Nuthall and Miss Helen Marlow will meet the Misses Sarah and Mianne Palfrey in the finals of the women's invitation doubles tomorrow morning at the Longwood Cricket Club, courts, Chestnut Hill.

The International combination of Miss Nuthall, English Queen of the American court and Helen Marlowe of California won their way to the finals by defeating Miss Marjorie Morrill of Dedham and Miss Edith Cross of California in the semi-final on the Longwood courts this morning, 9—7, 2—6, 8—6.

The Misses Palfrey of Boston defeated the California team of Marjorie Gladman and Josephine Cruishank in their semi-final concontest 9—7, 6—4. Both matches were brilliant and drew continued applause from the small gathering that collected on the club house porch.

Nuthall-Marlowe Team Play Best Tennis

The better of the two was the Nuthall-Marlowe vs. Morrill-Cross match. It was a thriller from the very start. The American team took the first set after a long hard fight but Betty and Helen drew even in the second by a series of brilliant placements and stroking too powerful for the Cross-Morrill combine to handle.

In the final set Miss Nuthall and Miss Marlowe led at 4 love. The Morrill-Cross team won a game to make it 4—1, then the English-American team jumped to within one game of victory at 5—1. At this point, the Morrill-Cross team staged a brilliant comeback, when with one game from defeat, won five games in a row, to take the lead at 6—5.

Miss Nuthall then won her service to even the count in games at 6-all. Miss Morrill's service was broken and Miss Marlowe followed this advantage to win her service and match.

The Misses Mianne and Sarah Palfrey were in their very best form while defeating Miss Gladman and Miss Cruickshank. The sister combination carried too many guns for the strong team from the coast, and Sarah Palfrey clinched a straight-set victory by beautiful shots at crucial points in the match.

WOMEN'S INVITATION DOUBLES SEMI-FINAL RESULTS

Miss Sarah and Mianne Palfrey defeated Miss Cruickshank and Miss Gladman, 9—7, 6—4.

Miss Nuthall and Miss Marlowe defeated Miss Cross and Miss Morrill, 9—7, 2—6, 8—6.

Allison and Van Ryn Victors at Longwood

John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison defeated Berkeley Bell and Gregory Mangin in the semi-final of the national doubles at the Longwood Cricket Club by scores of 6—8, 6—4, 6—1, 6—3.

Fishermen to Hold Races Off Cape Ann

St. John, N. B., Aug. 28—Capt. Angus J. Walters announced that the international championship schooner Bluenose will compete this fall with her rivals from Gloucester, Mass.

The contest will be held October 9, 11 and 13. It is expected the opponent of the Bluenose will be the Gertrude Thebamaud, a new contender for championship honors. Capt. Walters said he expected there would be a race off Halifax later in the season for the international championship, now held by the Bluenose.

Wareham Nine Wins Cape League Title

Wareham, Aug. 28—Wareham clinched the championship of the Cape League by defeating Chatham for the second successive day, 2 to 1, in 12 innings.

Krepps, who had three shutouts to his credit over Chatham, scored his fourth successive win over the second place team. Bob Wholey, Georgetown outfielder and center fielder for Wareham, knocked in the tying and winning runs.

Norwich Gridmen to Report Sept. 8

Northfield, Vt., Aug. 28—Norwich football practice will start Monday, Sept. 8, it was announced by Coach Dewey Graham. The Maroon coach is now preparing a list of names of men who will be directed to return here that day for the first workout of the 1930 campaign. He plans to have a squad of 30 men.

Benny Leonard Is Now a Professor

New York, Aug. 28—Benny Leonard is to make his bow this fall as a professor of boxing at the College of the City of New York.

Vince Dundee Wins

Newark, N. J., Aug. 28 — Vince Dundee won a 10-round decision from Abie Bain at the Dreamland Park arena.

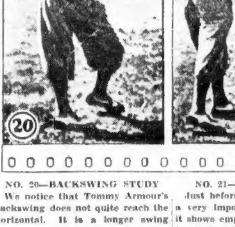
Quits Channel After 12-Hour Battle

London, Aug. 28 (INS)—Miss Elsie West, 19-year-old British swimmer, today abandoned her attempt to negotiate the English channel, it was reported in a Central News dispatch from Boulogne.

Miss West had been in the water 12 hours when she gave up the attempt, and appeared likely to lower the record set by Miss Gertrude Ederle for a cross-channel swim.

Horton Smith's Golf Lessons

Famous Young Missouri Professional Illustrates and Describes the Mechanics and Technique of Play



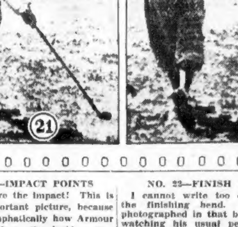
⑳

NO. 20—BACKSWING STUDY

We notice that Tommy Armour's backswing does not quite reach the horizontal. It is a longer swing than mine but not as long as that of Bobby Jones and still less than that of Hagen, who swings well beyond the horizontal; so does that famous stylist, MacDonald Smith.

Armour's right arm is much more tucked in to his side than most champions', and his left arm is almost rigidly straight, which is also noticeable in my own swing.

Armour's club does not come to the front like most champions'. In common with most great golfers, the toe of his club does not point directly at the ground, as the old instructors used to teach.



㉑

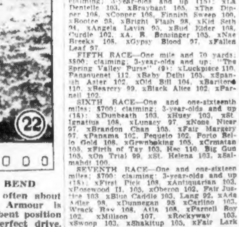
NO. 21—IMPACT POINTS

Just before the impact! This is a very important picture, because it shows emphatically how Armour is playing from the inside out.

Many players accentuate this by addressing with the toe of the club, and others again address inside of the ball altogether, thereby compelling themselves to reach for the ball before impact. This gives a slight in-spin to the ball which is conducive to a longer roll on landing.

It is a very pretty shot to watch —especially the slight drift to the left at the end of the flight.

Furthermore, it makes slicing almost an impossibility, provided, of course, that you avoid the slicer's grip or the faulty rise-up before the impact that ruins swings.



㉒

NO. 22—FINISH BEND

I cannot write too often about the finishing bend. Armour is photographed in that bent position watching his usual perfect drive. He is well up on his right toes—his weight is well forward on his left foot. His length of finish is long enough and he is in perfect balance—the result of a well-timed stroke.

That reminds me that Arnold Haultain's definition of timing is always well worth repeating. He observed: "You may hit as hard as you like, provided you do not begin the hit too soon."

Many bad golfers try to hit their hardest from the very top of the swing. Motion pictures of the golf swings show us that the club generally begins to blur about halfway down. Time each stroke!

MACK SORRY HE SOLD TOM OLIVER

By JOE CASHMAN

All season long has Connie Mack, who led his world's champion Athletics into town today for a series at the Fens, regretted sending Tom Oliver to the Red Sox, but never before did he feel as bad about it as he does at the present moment.

Joe Cashman

With George Haas, his regular centerfielder, on the injured list and Homer Summa proving so unsatisfactory as a substitute that the A's scouts are combing the minors looking for a player to fill the gap, the venerable leader of the champions almost breaks into tears every time he recalls letting Alabama Tom, one of the finest centerfielders in the business, go for a paltry $4000.

The smartest of baseball pilots make mistakes occasionally, but they usually have a good excuse for them. Mack had no excuse for his blunder of turning the local star loose, and he admits it.

When he drafted Oliver from Little Rock last Winter, he had Haas and Miller, two regulars, and Bevo Lebourveau, a third-rate sub, signed up for outfield duty this year. Al Simmons, ace of his garden trio, was a bad, bold holdout, threatened to remain one indefinitely, and did until the very first day of the season.

Mack Regrets He Let Oliver Go to Red Sox

Connie knew that even if Simmons signed up, he would still need an extra fly-chaser to use in case anything should happen to one of his regulars and he further knew that Oliver wouldn't have to be very good to be better than Lebourveau, a fair hitter but a weak fielder.

The only common sense move for him to make under the circumstances was to bring Oliver to training camp and look him over, no matter what he thought or had been told about the rookie's ability.

He didn't, though, and has been kicking himself ever since.

Without ever setting eyes on the "Little Rebel," he asked waivers on him only a few weeks after drafting him. He didn't expect that any owner would refuse to waive, but that was because he didn't know to what extent Bob Quinn had gone to get the youngster last summer.

Quinn had offered $10,000 and two players to Little Rock to get Oliver and the bid had been refused, so when the Sox "prezy" was given the chance to pick him up for $4,000, he, naturally, lost no time in doing so.

The training season wasn't a week old before Mack realized that he had made a most costly error when he gave Oliver up.

Lebourveau was worse than ever while Oliver won himself a regular berth the moment he donned the Red Sox regalia for the first time.

Oliver Proves Worth When Season Opened

The season started and Oliver got off with a bang while Lebourveau slipped so badly that he was returned to the minors and Summa, a veteran who had been sent back, was recalled to be the A's utility outfielder.

Even then, however, neither Mack nor anyone else knew just how bad a mistake he had made. It was realized that he had released a good sub and kept a poor one, but that was all.

It wasn't long, though, before Oliver had the fans wondering whether he wasn't a better player than Haas, and by mid-season he had convinced them of the fact.

He has never been under the .300 mark since the race started, while Haas was down to the .290 mark when injuries forced him out of the lineup a short while back, and he is far superior to his Mackian rival in the field.

Oliver would undoubtedly have had to sit on the bench if Mack had retained him, but if he had been available when Haas was injured, the A's would have gained instead of lost in strength, and Pilot Connie would not be getting thinner every day worrying about his centerfield problem.

His eyes are tear-dimmed when he thinks about what might have been had he kept Oliver. They should be. We would cry out loud if we were in his shoes.

Ross Isham Cup Medalist

Manchester, Vt., Aug. 28—The annual Isham cup competition opened at the Ekwanok Country Club here with Frank B. Ross of Hartford, Ct., medalist of the qualifying round with 67 strokes to lower the former record of 70, which has stood for 30 years.

MR. BOSTON —by— JACK CONWAY

Carnera-Maloney Go for Hub Likely

"I understand," said Mr. Boston today, that Eddie Mack of the Argonne A. A. and Alex MacLean of the Boston Garden are at Atlantic City trying to sign Primo Carnera for a bout with Jim Maloney in this city.

Jack Conway

"Dan Carroll, manager of Shamus, is also listening to the rumble of the sad sea waves as he is being rolled along the board walk in a wheel chair.

"Billy Duffy, chief of Carnera's advisers, will make the decision in regard to a Boston bout within a few days.

"Primo takes on Riccardo Bertazzola in Atlantic City on Saturday night. This match will be staged in the new Auditorium, which has a seating capacity of 42,000. The tussle, with the tickets scaled from $2 to $10, is expected to draw $75,000.

"The Massachusetts Boxing Commission has agreed to allow Carnera to show here against Maloney. This bout should give Carnera the most severe test of his career.

"Mack, if he lands the tussle, will stage it at Fenway Park on Sept. 16 with a price scale of $2 to $10. Eddie says the contest would set a new gate receipt record for Boston."

Junior Golfers Thrill Crowd at Wollaston

Bill Grimes paraded over to Mr. Boston.

"How are the kids getting on at Wollaston?" asked the veteran.

"They are a riot," shot back Bill. "Those persons who have witnessed the tournament have been amazed at the brand of golf which the youngsters have shown. They have blazed away with sensationally long shots, while they have chipped to the greens and sent down their putts like veterans.

"I have been following the junior golfers and caddy champs for seven years and so have known what the kids could do. Some of the oldtimers who have been too busy with their own games to watch the newcomers have stood pop-eyed at Wollaston as they have watched the boys do their stuff. They never realized that the kids could click off scores in the 70's just as easily as the average club member gets his 100 in a Saturday afternoon foursome.

Hunt Picked to Win Fenway Park Bout

"Babe Hunt will lick Ernie Schaaf at Fenway Park on next Tuesday night, according to Primo Carnera," chirped Mr. Boston. "Hunt has been training with Carnera at Atlantic City.

"The Hunt-Schaaf bout has created more interest than any match booked for Boston this Summer. I look for it to draw a gate of $18,000. Hunt knocked out Paul Pantaleo and then beat Jimmy Braddock in a torrid mill.

"Schaaf has won the duke over Tommy Loughran on two occasions this summer and looks ready to step in there with the front runners in the heavyweight division.

Speaking of Golf and Other Things

"Bill Grimes shot a 35 for the last nine holes at Wollaston yesterday which even made the classy array of junior golfers open their eyes.

"Francis Albertanti, Bill Carey's secretary, is going to join the executive force at the Garden.

"Fred Green is keeping the actors and butter and egg men out of the press row seats at the boxing shows at Braves Field.

"Sammy Fuller and Andy Callahan will be re-matched for a return bout in this city in November and will draw at least $15,000. The fans at Tiverton, R. I. are still talking about the torrid jam these boys furnished the other night.

"Jack Sharkey has signed a contract to write boxing stories for King Features Syndicate for another year. Joe Connolly and George Finley of the syndicate insist Sharkey will eventually become champion.

"Finley believes a Sharkey-Carnera bout would be the best possible card."

English Poloists Play Old Aiken Four

New York, Aug. 28—England's polo team, preparing for the international series with America beginning September 6, will play the Old Aiken quartet in a practice game at Westbury today.

Sharkey-Schmeling Bout Next June

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

SQUIRE GETS PROMISE OF TITLE SHOT

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Sharkey American heavyweight champion, will battle Max Schmeling in a return bout in New York next June if he is successful in completing a program of bouts mapped out for him by Johnny Buckley and William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden Corporation.

Sharkey has been signed to clash with Victorio Campolo, Argentine heavyweight, in a 15-round bout at the Yankee Stadium, New York, on September 25. If successful in his engagement with Campolo, the Boston heavyweight will tackle Young Stribling in another 15-round tussle at Miami, Fla., next February.

Victories over Campolo and Stribling will give Sharkey a crack at Schmeling in New York next June.

It is likely that Madison Square Garden will have a new outdoor stadium in New York city, capable of seating 90,000 persons, for the Schmeling bout, according to Carey.

Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, told this writer he is in perfect accord with the Garden program.

"Schmeling's next bout will be for the Garden next June," said Jacobs. "There has been a lot of talk about Max fighting in Europe, but you can make it as strong as you like that when he enters the ring in defense of his title it will be for the Garden with the match taking place in New York."

Jacobs and Carey have made peace which ended a feud of a year's standing. It started when Jacobs refused to allow Schmeling to box Sharkey at Detroit a year ago.

Jacobs and Carey Settle Difficulties

"I believe Carey realizes I acted from the best of motives," said Jacobs. "Schmeling and Sharkey drew $710,000 this year, and they would have been lucky to have drawn $400,000 in Detroit."

Until a week ago, Carey refused to conduct any business transactions with Jacobs. It was necessary for Schmeling to sign his own contract for the Sharkey bout last June.

This condition naturally caused Jacobs to threaten to bolt the Garden. Now that Joe and Carey have made their peace all is serene in the heavyweight division.

The signing of Sharkey by the Garden also blocked plans of Chicago promoters to pit Sharkey against Primo Carnera next month.

If Sharkey can keep winning this program of three bouts is expected to net him $400,000.

Sharkey will receive 40 per cent of the receipts in the Campolo bout. It was also hinted that the Garden was obliged to meet the offer of the Chicago promoters of a $100,000 guarantee for the Boston battler.

Campolo is also under contract with the Garden to meet Stribling at Miami in the event he conquers Sharkey.

Campolo signed his own contract while Johnny Buckley acted for Sharkey.

Lew Fink Engaged to Train Campolo

Lew Fink, who trained Gene Tunney, has been engaged to condition Campolo for his meeting with Sharkey. The Argentine giant will train at the Delaware Water Gap, Pa. Campolo is six feet five inches tall and weighs 232 pounds.

Sharkey has already started work at Jim Toland's gym on Friend st. He will train here until September 11 when he will go to New York to see the Al Singer-Jimmy McLarnin bout. He will then pitch his training camp in New York.

Stribling has already agreed to meet the winner of the Sharkey-Campolo bout at Miami.

With Schmeling, Sharkey and Campolo under contract, and Stribling ready to sign, the Garden once more is in complete control of the heavyweight situation.

Bill Carey and Frank Bruen have proved as successful at matchmaking as the late Tex Rickard did when at the height of his career.

Orleans Shuts Out Harwich Club, 4-0

Hyannis, Aug. 28—Orleans shut out Harwich with four runs in a Cape Cod League game at the Barnstable Fair. Collingwood held the losers to one hit and fanned six. Marshall played a great game at third base for Orleans.

Stratton Winner of Brae Burn Title

Emery Stratton played record-breaking golf over the Brae Burn course to score a 69 and win the club championship. Clark Hodder had the misfortune to meet Stratton when the latter was in fine fettle.

DAMON RUNYON SAYS

New York, Aug. 28 (US). Frank Camelli, otherwise C[illegible], the Italian heavyweight, who died in San Francisco following a battle with Max Baer, at one time seemed to be a great prospect in the big division.

As far back as 1925 I saw him in action on the Pacific Coast and liked his style and his punching. He quit the game after a few reverses, however, and I believe took to playing baseball at which he was better than a raw hand. A year or so ago he returned to boxing under Tommy Maloney, and ran up quite a record against second raters.

Damon Runyon

He developed a weaving style that had Tommy writing me enthusiastically that he "looked just like Dempsey." That he was a corking good puncher with both hands there is no doubt, but fistic wayfarers from the coast brought East the impression that Campbell [illegible]

[illegible] by one of Campbell's recent fights against Tom Kirby, the Boston [illegible]. Thomas isn't accounted a great hitter, but he had Campbell on the canvas several times before he was himself knocked over.

Kirby went in the ring that night in no condition [illegible] said.

Before Campbell [illegible] boxing, I think he was [illegible] by Charley Belanger [illegible] comeback. Tommy Maloney made him a big card on the Pacific coast. Campbell had a [illegible] color and was a [illegible] chap. I regret his tragic finish.

DEATH HURT GAME

Two ring deaths in a week [illegible] calculated to do the boxing game any good in California. The death of poor Bull Young after a fight with Jess Willard in Los Angeles years ago hastened the end of the racket in the Golden State for a long time, although Bull, a sufferer from a chronic disease, had no business in the ring anyway.

I have known a number of fighters who figured in battles in which the other fellow received fatal injuries, but of them all, old Jess Willard is about the only one who seemed to permit the matter to prey on his mind.

Frankie Jerome and [illegible] Sencio both died after fights with Buddy Taylor, yet Buddy fights to this day with every ounce of vigor and plenty of ring ferocity.

Willard wasn't even thought of as a possible champion when he fought Young, yet when he later climbed in the ring at Milwaukee against George Rodel, the Boer, managed by the old boy bandit James J. Johnston, everybody except Johnson had forgotten the death of Bull Young, but Johnston was in Willard's corner buzzing:

"Jess, you remember what happened to Bull! Well, this fellow Rodel has a very weak heart. You better be careful with him."

Whether it was Johnston [illegible] recollect [illegible] remain that Jess was [illegible] against Rodel that the latter [illegible] newspaper [illegible] night.

BAER A CHARACTER

Max Baer's name has been drifting eastward for some months now. He is a big German-Jewish butcher boy out of the [illegible] town of Livermore or some such, near San Francisco. He is said to be one of the best natural punchers produced on the coast in a long time. He recently belted out old K. O. Christner, though that isn't the feat it used to be.

However, just before that [illegible] a fight with one Les Kennedy. Baer wasn't so hot. Kennedy is just a fair heavyweight, yet he won [illegible] from Baer. The latter is said to be one of those ring characters that come along at rare intervals. He is reputed a clown, but apparently he also can fight.

He sticks his tongue out at an opponent when he gets a clout, or shoves his chin forward, invitingly, and he is given to remarks to all and sundry.

I am informed by good judges of fighters that if he could be induced to stop clowning he would be a great fighter because of his punching ability.

Revere, Hyde Park Hub Twi Winners

Revere defeated Jamaica 3 to 1 and Hyde Park trounced South Boston 7 to 2 in the Hub Twilight League games. Vin McDonough held Jamaica to one hit. Rizzo's triple knocked in two Revere runs in the first inning. Kimball of Hyde Park led the hitting with three bingles, while Walsh made a great running catch.

TRACK STARS IN SCOTCH GAMES

Mary Carew of the Medford Girls A. C., who holds a win to her credit over Stella Walsh, Cleveland flier, will compete in the 220-yard dash at the 41st annual O. S. C. games to be staged at Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, next Monday.

[illegible] holds the [illegible] indoor 50-yard dash crown and is also New England sprint champion. Her entry blank, as well as six others from the Medford club coached by Eddie Pidgeon, were received today.

In addition to the dash she will also be a member of the 440-yard relay team which will meet the strong Boston Swimming Association quartet among others in another feature event of the afternoon. Katherine Carew, Mary's sister, Elsie Goodman, Dorothea and Eleanor Mahane, Lillian Donnen and Helen McCarthy and Helen Keller are the other entrants. Misses McCarthy, Eleanor Mahane and Goodman will be other members of the relay.

Pitted against the New England sprint ace will be Mary G. Smith, a member of the New Haven Harriers, who came here last year and conquered the best of local [illegible]. Miss Smith will start in the [illegible] and also the running board jump. She has done 12 seconds in the 100 and nine seconds in the [illegible]-yard dash this year and to date is unbeaten.

Katherine Mears of Watertown, considered the best all-round girl athlete in New England, will concentrate her efforts on the [illegible] and broad jumps at which she is quite accomplished. She is New England 100 yard dash queen.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

A discussion took place recently among a party of teachers at a beach about qualifications for voting.

The final discussion was that the vote is safer in the hands of a woman of 21 than of the boy of that age. This was based on the claim that more mature judgment is found in a young woman of that age than in a young man.

They even went farther in this discussion and the leaders of the discussion asserted that a woman of 21 matches the man of 27, a woman of 30 a man of 35.

But after that age it was assumed that man could easily outwit the woman. As far as I could gather from the discussion it proved that a man after 40 "puts it all over" the woman of that age for capability and initiative.

Are these general opinions? Are they merely the conclusions of faddists? It was also asserted that women have less imagination than men. Really, I think they have more.

CLARA D. DAVISON

Says Clamor Against Wealth Uncalled for

Editor Boston American:

The slings and arrows flung against wealth by some individuals in this country, who are apparently knockers but not boosters, should look at the story of philanthropy in this country for the past year.

It amounted to the vast sum of $2,450,720,000. This is the budget for 1929. Upon closer examination it is said that the greater part went to religious organizations of all types, to education, including universities, laboratories, centers for scientific or medical research and libraries.

It strikes me that this constant clamor against wealth is more of freak than good judgment. No doubt there is much loose use of it, but why cannot some minds discriminate right views from poisonous opinions?

This is said to one of the flare-ups that I heard on Boston Common.

PATRICK N. NOONAN

Synthetic Life Fad of South End Talker

Editor Boston American:

Talk about Boston being the center of fads, this proves it. There is a lecturer in the South End who has been talking about creating rats independently of their natural parents. He can make them out of fertilized eggs and embryos kept in proper culture.

He thinks that human beings will be born this way in the future. Of course I did not know how to answer him. I did say, however, that there was no need of rushing at what he could find [illegible] on A[illegible] near the door that would [illegible] reasonable demand.

Everything is synthetic these days, even to synthetic gin, but now it has gone into the human race. I'd like to know more about the synthetic human being.

Editor Boston American:

One of the finest memories of our Supreme Convention Knights of Columbus is to [illegible] the very generous contribution of the Boston American towards the success of the gathering. On all sides the delegates and guests of the convention are loud in their praises for what the press has done to make the convention a success. Will you kindly accept the appreciation of our committees?

Offers Employment as Cure to Communism

Editor Boston American:

That small cut on the finger and the pain is so trivial that we pay little attention to it. Blood poisoning sets in and often the hand is forfeited, the result of not giving proper attention.

So it is with our own national body. Communistic groups starting troubles that slowly are becoming a national menace. Such a state of affairs will in healthy economic condition would be [illegible] spread unemployment [illegible] Industrial leaders are slow to correct the canker on which Communism feeds.

Unemployment [illegible] is now injected [illegible] major political issue. Therefore making unemployment an issue for political measures is like offering [illegible] for a full meal. All the possibility of effecting a remedy through politics rests with tampering with tariff and labor legislation. A remedy along these lines lies so far in the future that many more would become destitute before action could be taken.

Industrial leaders control our national welfare and are the only ones who are in position to start the employment momentum that will affect man. Some state that they [illegible] the [illegible] but do so by sacrificing hundreds to the ranks of [illegible].

Many [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] they [illegible] ago at the start of the eight hour day in some trades. Yet that change has worked no hardship on the purchasing ability of the employed. The same would hold true in the further reduction of hours, but an increased demand for labor would naturally follow with increased purchasing power.

Is it not time to give action, rather than political promises, to solve the greatest issue of [illegible] and through health [illegible] offset the menace of Communism?

Great Need Return to Old Business Conditions

Editor Boston American:

Amidst the uproar of political campaigns let us always remember the immediate and absolute necessity of restoring business conditions. This is no time to find out who are to be blamed for the current depression. All efforts to bring about business recovery should transcend party lines.

The various suggestions to cope with the unemployment situation have their merits. But the return of prosperity must necessarily depend upon the co-operation of producers and consumers. Thus the single force of a "buying crusade" or a "hiring campaign" is apt to fall short of popular expectations. We must face the fact without panic or fear and work together toward the common goal with confidence.

In the economic sense people are closely related and interdependent and therefore they should try their best to help each other specially in time of adversity. Financiers who are awake to their responsibilities should give the small manufacturers pecuniary aid to defray expenses. Employers should try to maintain their productive capacity and keep their men, materials and machines in operation. So workers will return to their old jobs or find new positions with a feeling of security instead of the fear of losing their job. Consumers who are in a position to buy should purchase as usual daily necessities without hesitation. And merchants whose inventory has dwindled should keep their shelves fairly well stocked with selling items to meet the consumers' demand. These spontaneous efforts will at once start a movement to lift up the burden of unemployment. These groups of people should work together at the same time with equal enthusiasm.

In addition, the challenge of a business depression should give birth to a new spirit. Business can no longer disregard the law of supply and demand. It should maintain a balance between production and consumption at all times. Business can no longer devote its entire attention to making profits for the stockholders. It should work for the interests of workers, consumers as well as investors. The aim of modern business as a profession should be satisfying economic wants and rendering economic service [illegible] happiness [illegible] In so doing, business is [illegible] a [illegible] of prosperity and progress.

PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

By CARL MORRISON

This week's press conference which the Boston Port Authority [illegible] from two angles. The first is that the marine reporters are having the benefit of contact with a [illegible] group which is doing many things of value to the port.

The second reason is that [illegible] conferences provide an opportunity for many harbor problems to be aired in the newspapers so the authorities may have the chance to react to various matters.

Some of the suggestions [illegible] brought out yesterday at this conference were:

1 A co-operative scow should be secured to carry off rubbish which at present is allowed to clog up the harbor, or allowed to drift ashore on summer resort beaches.

2. The harbor should get behind a movement to bring an American line to Boston for trans-Atlantic service.

3. State and city officials should be urged to patronize the Port of Boston when sailing for foreign points.

4. The Port Authority made several announcements of progress in harbor matters which included the fact that Water street in Charlestown has recently been paved. This was sought by the steamship lines and Navy Yard people.

UNDER the non-skid tread of these famous Firestone Tires is a double breaker of two plies of cord fabric anchored in cushion rubber. This special construction absorbs road shocks—protects against punctures and blowouts—provides the foundation for the thick, tough tread with deeper grooves—giving longer non-skid wear.

OTHER makes of tires have only a single breaker of old-fashioned square woven fabric which Firestone discarded when they developed the balloon tire. Some makes do not have any breaker at all. The Firestone Tire is set apart as an "All Cord Tire".

A DEPARTMENT STORE FOR MOTORISTS

We have joined with Firestone to bring you these extra value tires at low cost. We also sell and service the complete line of Firestone Tires, Tubes, Batteries, Brake Lining, Rims and Accessories, also Gasoline, Oils and Lubrication. Use our complete service—we will save you money and serve you better.

DOUBLE GUARANTEE

Every tire we sell bears the Firestone name for the protection of our good customers. Every tire carries the unlimited Firestone Guarantee and ours.

★ A "Mail Order" or "Special Brand" tire is made by some unknown manufacturer and sold under a name that does not identify him to the public, usually because he builds his "first grade" tires under his own name.

Boston's "Lucky Girl"

ONE OF THE MOST THRILLING SERIALS EVER WRITTEN by Hazel Livingston

Cathie Keeps the Proposal Quiet Until She Can Make Up Her Mind

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Catherine Paige, elder daughter in a fatherless home, secures her first position in the office of Alfred A. Farnsworth, successful engineer. In the office she meets Gordon Moore, junior member of the firm of Moore Brothers, engaged in important construction work for Farnsworth. Catherine is instantly attracted to him, and he to her, but what seems a serious love affair to her is just a pleasant episode to him, and she soon realizes that he has forgotten her.

Her earnings in the office must go to help her family, so she is not so well dressed as the other girls and is snubbed by them, particularly by Marsha Darrow, private secretary to Farnsworth. Office gossip has it that Miss Darrow is not only angling for marriage with Farnsworth, but carrying on a flirtation with the good-looking Gordon Moore as well.

However, all things drop to insignificance to Cathie when her mother falls seriously ill. She allows her sister, Ruth, to persuade her to borrow money from Farnsworth. Farnsworth startles her with a proposal of marriage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Chapter 8

"NOW WHAT'S the matter?"

Mary Paige was so upset at seeing Cathie walk in in the middle of the afternoon that her voice sounded harsh and angry. It was because she was flustered at being caught in the steamy kitchen in the midst of the ironing, after she'd promised to send all the flat pieces out to be mangled, and to lie down and rest every day between one and four. And besides . . . Cathie . . . coming home like this, in the middle of the afternoon . . .

"Darlin, you're sick. Something's happened!" she cried.

Cathie looked at her out of unnaturally bright eyes that didn't see anything. Not the ironing board, nor the heaped basket of tightly rolled, dampened clothes, nor the middie blouses and housedresses, draped over chairs.

Cathie's Strange

"Oh ma, please don't fuss. It isn't anything. I had a headache and so I thought I'd come home and lie down."

And when her mother echoed "A headache!" and laid the iron on its little black iron stand and bustled over to take her hat and coat Cathie cried "Oh, ma, don't. I just want to lie down. Oh, ma, please don't make me talk now. I'm so tired, and my head does ache, it does, it does!"

"I don't know what's got into our Cathie," she confided to Ruth a little while later when they were setting the table for dinner, and Cathie still shut in her room not wanting anything, not even a hot cup of tea. "She's that nervous and run down. And then this afternoon, coming home with a headache."

Ruth polished the forks and knives on a tea towel as she laid them on the table. It's working. I used to try to explain to her how I felt, but what's the use of talking? You've got to go through it for yourself. A long sigh. "She didn't have any trouble at the office, ma? With—with anybody. You know men aren't all like Mr. Browning—men in business. Sometimes I think——"

All Right

Ma lifted her head sharply. "You don't have to worry 'bout Cathie. She's tired, but she'll pull through it. Cathie's wiry, like me. Go call her. She'll feel better after her dinner.

But Cathie wouldn't come. She said her head still ached so much, and she wanted to lie still in the dark.

She wanted to lie still in the cool dark and think. But the thoughts wouldn't come. Just heaviness, and a kind of wide-awake dreaming, and turning, twisting, looking for a way out . . . a way out . . . there must be a way out . . . there always is, if you can just find it . . .

Mr. Farnsworth. When Cathie thought of him the gooseflesh came out all over her.. It was so scarry, thinking of getting married, of getting married to Mr. Farnsworth. Funny, too . . . like a movie . . . marrying your boss.

Funny he had never said anything to her before. Never showed he liked her. Never touched her hand, never even looked at her as if he cared and maybe he didn't. He hadn't said anything about loving her. It was about being lonely that he talked. He said he had been a widower for 11 years.

Happy With Wife

He had been happy with his wife, had never thought of marrying again. Little ways she, Catherine, had reminded him of her, he said. She had been fair, too, with a trail of freckles over her nose. Cathie made him think of her again, made the old loneliness come back. He was alone in a 12-room house, now that his son was married and done. . . . "It would be very good of you," he had said, softly, as if it were hard for him to say it. . . .

That part wasn't hard to believe. He had always been good to her. Look what he had done for Ma. . . .

"Oh, ma . . . ma, if I could only ask you what to do!"

But she couldn't ask ma. Ma mustn't know until it was all settled, until she could make up her mind . . . tomorrow . . . she'd have to make it up . . . she had promised . . . had gone home to think it over, and here she was, not thinking at all. . . .

No One Else

She pressed her burning face against the pillow. No thoughts came. Just heaviness, and that throb, throb, throb in her head.

"Is there anyone else?" Mr. Farnsworth had asked, and when she hadn't understood just what he meant at first he had added. "Anyone you care for? Anyone who loves you? Don't be afraid to tell me, my dear. It would be only natural."

"No, there is no one else," she had answered, honestly.

There wasn't . . Once she might have thought of Frank Prout. Everybody teased her about Frank, and once it had seemed that they might get married some day. But somehow she hadn't felt that way toward Frank for a long time and Frank . . Frank hadn't been very kind in the long weeks that ma was sick. He had failed her. Not understanding not caring . . . never once asking at the hospital. . No, there wasn't anybody . . nobody at all.

It would probably be all right to marry Mr. Farnsworth. Fifty-eight wasn't so old. The people in the office didn't think he was too old to marry. Marsha Darrow didn't.

Smiled in Dark

Cathie smiled a little in the dark, thinking how mad Miss Darrow would be. Miss Darrow with her hundred-and-twenty-dollar suits, and her permanent waves, and her manicures . . Miss Darrow wanted too much. . . Mr. Farnsworth, and the other one . . Gordon Moore . .

Cathie's weak, little smile faded . . Gordon Moore . . Her mind went back to that April day when she went celebrating with

FOLEY WARNS OF ARSON RACKETEERS

Woman, 70, Has First Auto Ride

7 OLD LADIES GUESTS AT OUTING

Trip to Nantasket Brings Thrills Into Lives Years Have Treated Harshly

Three score years and ten have passed since Grandma Elger first saw the light of day, but it was only yesterday that she had her first automobile ride.

She was one of the old ladies who were the guests of the Boston Evening American and the Family Welfare Society's Bureau for Aged Women on a trip to Nantasket.

Grandma would have taken a chance on a horseless carriage ride a long time ago, but she never before had an opportunity. Yesterday was a red letter occasion in her life.

NOT A BIT SCARED

"Oh, it's great; I'm not a bit scared," she said when her host, Emil Henker, speeded for a short distance on the open boulevard just to show her how fast an automobile can go. "My, aren't we travelling!"

Most of the time she was so overcome by the novelty of her experience that she said very little, but her keen eyes missed nothing along the road.

There was a neat cottage with velvety green lawn and bright flowers that moved her to raptures, and the sweet smell of growing things, but it was her first sight of the ocean along Wollaston boulevard that thrilled her most.

SALT WATER THRILLS

Grandma hadn't seen the water for years and years—not since she was young, she said, and the smell of the salt water made her happy throughout the afternoon. Although not the oldest on the trip, she was perhaps the most feeble depending upon her cane when she got out of the car for a shore dinner at the old Nantasket House.

"I'll never forget this day," she sighed happily when the trip was over and she stood once more on her doorstep in the South End.

"Here we are again between brick walls. But it was fine to be out so long in clean fresh air. Now I will sleep good tonight."

FIRST NANTASKET TRIP

Although five old ladies were scheduled for the trip, two more went along to enjoy it with their friends. The aggregate age of the old ladies was 476 years. All are 65 or over, and Mrs. McLachlan is 75, the oldest and liveliest of the group. Mrs. Rose Richards of the Bureau for Aged Woman had charge of the old ladies.

Mrs. McLachlan thoroughly enjoyed everything she saw. For her there was not a dull moment from the time the shining automobile drew up to her door until it left her there after what she described as "a great day." She also used a cane.

"How did the children get so tanned?" she wanted to know when she saw the beach crowded with little brownies. "My, I never saw children so brown in my life before. They must live right on the beach."

She had not seen Nantasket Beach since she was young, and as she rode along Nantasket ave. she expressed amusement at the growth of the place.

The continual wonder to Mrs. Gray was how traffic could keep moving when there were so many cars at the beach.

Feline Champ of All Times

160 Kittens Raised by Somerville Cat

With 160 kittens in 22 years to her credit, "Becky" the feline wonder of Somerville claims championship honors. Yesterday she was nursing her latest litter—one black and one white.

With nine lives to each kitten—well figure it out yourself.

"Becky" belongs to Frederick Allen of 21 Joseph st., Somerville, and maybe he isn't some proud of her.

"Becky" has trouble in keeping track of her offspring, most of whom have long since wandered from the family hearthside. In fact, descendants of "Becky" can be found in all parts of Somerville.

Rita Neces, 8, a neighbor of the Allens, is now helping the champion mother to care for her latest kittens.

WHAT A BUSY MOTHER "Becky" has been! Vital statistics prove that this cat is the mother of 160 kittens. There are but two kittens now, the newly born, because the 158 have grown up. "Becky" makes her home with Frederick Allen, at 21 Joseph st., Somerville. Rita Neces, 8, is shown helping "Becky" with her two youngest. (Staff photo.)

WORSE THAN GUNMEN, HE SAYS OF FIREBUGS

District Attorney Tells of Fight to Eliminate Insurance Frauds

Arsonists who fire dwellings where women and children are sleeping were denounced as worse than gunmen by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley at rallies at the Yeoman C[illegible], Roxbury, the Italian Progressive Club, East Boston and at two house parties in Allston and Brighton.

Stating that the recent State and city campaign against arson rings had the full cooperation of his office, he [illegible]

Dist. Atty. Foley

"We have convicted more men and women of arson during my first term of office than were convicted in more than a dozen years previously," Foley declared.

RECORD FOR CONVICTIONS

"I have no sympathy for the person who would deliberately set fire to a building. Even when there is no one in the building, although in several instances the arson ring has risked the lives of women and children in order to show that the fire was purely accidental, the danger to adjoining buildings and the entire neighborhood is always present."

While his office has succeeded in many case in convicting the person who actually set the fire, he said "the big achievement has been our success in convicting [illegible]"

BANISH RACKETEERS

"Wherever there is a fire of suspicious origin my office is interested," he continued. "If the building is heavily insured, our investigators check up on every detail of the fire in co-operation with the police and fire officials. We have made a big step forward in driving out the insurance defrauders."

He commended [illegible] officials for [illegible] the prosecutor's office in obtaining convictions.

BOARDMAN OFF TO SEE HOOVER

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Russell Boardman, American Legion aviator, who plans a flight to Europe and return, hopped off from East Boston for Washington today for a "greeting visit" with President Hoover.

After he gets his "Happy Landings" greeting he will return tonight in time for more flight tests in preparation for the long trek.

Officials of the American Legion will meet the flier at Washington and then the party will meet F. H. Payne, assistant secretary of war who will present Boardman to the President.

Today's flight practically constitutes the dedication of the plane as the "1930 American Legion National Convention" plane. The work of painting the name on the ship was completed yesterday.

On the return trip from the capital, Boardman will stop at a Long Island, N. Y., field for a short series of tests for adjustment of the instruments.

Upon his return to Boston he is expected to announce the choice of Capt. Harry W. Lyon as navigator and executive officer of the flight.

'Black Children' Puzzle for Court in Woman's Will

The unusual task of defining "black children," as used in the will of Miss Helen Lambert, formerly of Boston, was given to Suffolk Probate Court today by the Old Colony Trust Co., executors.

Miss Lambert died in 1929 on a vessel bound for the West Indies, and in her will, which included a wish that she be buried in a plain pine coffin, she left 2000 pounds, nearly $10,000, to the Worthy Children's home at Morris Hill, Jamaica, British West Indies.

The will made a condition, however, that five black children be "continually for all time henceforth" be received in the home, trained and cared for exactly like the rest of the children, and admitted to all their privileges.

In its request for an interpretation of "black children" the executors wish to know whether the phrase means children with any degree of negro blood or children in color, irrespective of race.

4 IN PLOT HELD FOR TRIAL

Pleas of not guilty were made in municipal court today by four men arrested at Portland and Sudbury sts. yesterday when police having been "tipped off" that a holdup was to take place, were on the scene in advance to prevent it.

Marco [illegible], 24, of Prince st. and Jerry [illegible] st. were held in bail of [illegible]

Police said the latter [illegible] used to aid the authorities in further investigation of the case.

$100 Weekly for News Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston American offers the opportunity. Every week $100 in prizes will be given for news tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip.

There will be $25 given weekly for the best, first exclusive news tip received, $15 for the next best, $10 for the next [illegible] and $2 prizes for each of the 25 next most valuable tips. Anyone who is [illegible] can win.

Services Saturday for William J. Ennis

Funeral services for William J. Ennis, a prominent Boston attorney, who resided at 60 Glenwood rd., Somerville, and who died yesterday in St. [illegible] Hospital, following an operation for appendicitis, will be held Saturday morning with a solemn high mass of requiem to be celebrated in St. Ann's Church at 9 o'clock.

He was formerly assistant city solicitor of Somerville, a member of the library trustees and the Somerville Lodge of Elks. He is survived by his wife, a son and a brother, James F. Ennis, of Chelsea.

TWO BOSTON AGENTS TO BE PUPILS IN DRY RAIDERS' SCHOOL

WILL TEACH OTHERS ON RETURN

24 Prohibition Men Will Be in Class at Washington on How to Fight Rum

Boston will be represented by two experienced "dry agents" at the prohibition bureau's training school to open in Washington on Tuesday, it was announced today.

They and 22 others representing each administrative district will be given a fortnight's training on the approved methods of enforcing the dry laws.

When the course is completed the men will return to their respective district headquarters and instruct the rank and file of the enforcement personnel.

Asst. Prohibition Administrator Goodenough of Boston said the names of the Boston men selected for the school will be made known in Washington.

The dry agents will be given lessons by H. M. Dengler, who combines the qualifications of experience in educational work and dry law administration. He will be assisted by Attorney Webster Spates of the staff of the Washington bureau.

FULLER SAYS HE BACKS NO ONE

Former Governor Alvan T. Fuller today denied he had pledged himself to anyone in the Republican race for United States senator.

"I am taking absolutely no part in the primary campaign," said Fuller when interviewed on the long distance telephone at his home at Rye Beach, N. H.

Fuller's declaration of neutrality was in reply to a persistent rumor in political circles that he had come out for B[illegible].

The former governor intimated he was too busy preparing to depart with his family for Europe tomorrow to bother with politics. They are to sail from New York and will remain abroad more than a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuller will be accompanied by their four children, Lydia 16, Mary 14, Alvan Jr. 12 and Peter 7. They will visit Paris and Oberammergau.

Liner Europa Plane Reaches New York

For the first time in its history the North German Lloyd liner Europa launched a plane New York bound from its decks in a test flight early today while the ocean greyhound was still 350 miles at sea. The plane landed at Brooklyn near the pier where the Europa will dock late today.

The plane was scheduled to be launched yesterday and headed for Boston. However, a heavy storm caused postponement of the take-off until today. Throughout the flight the craft was in touch with the Castle Island radio station.

40 GUESTS OF MANGER HOTEL

Forty newspaper and advertising men were guests at a banquet today in the new Hotel Manger, which is to open Saturday night.

The gathering was addressed by George [illegible] Bowles, the manager of the hotel, who was formerly manager of the Hotel Kenmore. Mr. Bowles introduced Charles C. White, president of the Manger chain of hotels. Also present was Edward J. Carroll, general manager of the Manger hotels.

The guests were taken on a tour of inspection through the hotel, which is the 10th in the Manger chain, there being 12 in New York and one in Chicago.

GETS SHOES AND $65 IN HOLDUP

A discriminating bandit with a taste in shoes today held up [illegible] Donahue, manager of the shoe store at 1067 Washington st., South End, robbed him of $65 and departed with new footwear.

Donahue told police the man appeared 10 minutes after he opened the store. Producing a revolver, the bandit, who was dressed like a laboring man, demanded the money in the cash register, which was turned over to him.

He then declared he needed shoes and [illegible] Donahue [illegible]. After some [illegible] he decided on [illegible] and [illegible] sure he had the right size [illegible] the store [illegible] no others.

The bandit was described [illegible] five feet 10 [illegible] dark gray hat and [illegible].

TARR MAY TAKE FAIRFAX CASE TO U. S. JURY

Federal Prosecutor Reviews Evidence Taken in Hearings That Exonerated Brooks

U. S. Dist. Atty. Tarr today promised energetic action, if evidence warrants, in his personal investigation of the Fairfax-Pinthis crash which took a toll of 50 lives, and which ended, as far as Washington officials are concerned, with exoneration of Capt. Archibald H. Brooks yesterday.

Speaking from his summer home at Gloucester, Tarr announced he has taken steps to obtain a copy of the evidence before the inquiry at Norfolk, Va., which cleared Capt. Brooks on all charges.

"I have been studying the earlier evidence, taken at the Boston hearing and the first Norfolk inquiry, for a month past," he said. "I have the full records of the case at my Boston office. I am keeping in close touch with the situation.

"If the evidence warrants, I shall go before the federal grand jury with the facts. It will be a few weeks before it will be possible for me to make a decision, as there is a great deal of evidence to review."

Senator David I. Walsh is also analyzing the evidence with a view to taking the matter up in the Senate if he decides the case calls for such action.

Capt. Brooks was exonerated by the federal steamboat inspection board of the Department of Commerce, which decided he did all he could to prevent the collision which occurred on June 10 in Massachusetts bay off Scituate when the Fairfax rammed and sank the oil tanker, Pinthis.

Charges on which the Fairfax captain was tried were filed against him after the Boston investigation, these charges being reckless navigation, operation at high speed in a fog, unskillfulness and negligence.

7 OLD LADIES ON OUTING

her eyesight is failing. Mrs. Gray recalled happy days spent at Nantasket in years gone by and remembered how she thrilled at dining in the open air cafe at the Nantasket House. No dinner eaten there tasted better thahn the one she was served yesterday, she declared.

If the old ladies had been the mothers of millionaires they could not have been more royally and kindly entertained than they were by Chet Brigham, who drove Arthur Martel's car while the noted organist did Brigham's work at the Metropolitan Theater organ all afternoon. The two organists alternate in playing, but Martel delighted in being able to help make the old ladies happy by lending his car and doubling for Brigham.

WANTED SHORE DINNER

The old ladies were served anything they chose from the menu and most of them preferred a shore dinner such as the resort is famous for. Fish chowder that tasted like they themselves made in the days gone by was the favorite dish for appetites sharpened by the fresh salt breeze.

Another object of interest was the stranded ship on the beach. All were excited as they listened to the story of its beaching, for none had been to the beach since it was wrecked there.

Mrs. Brown, 67, so thoroughly enjoyed her ride that she was the last to climb out of the car. She was pacing up and down the sidewalk waiting for it although the car came half an hour earlier than planned.

"I would just have been sick if I had missed going," she said. "Everything was wonderful and the tea was just right."

Dr. Sherrill Will Be Consecrated in Trinity, Oct. 14

Announcement was made today that Rev. Dr. Henry K. Sherrill, rector of Trinity Church, will be consecrated bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts on Oct. 14. The ceremony will take place in Trinity, where on the same date in 1891 Phillips Brooks was consecrated bishop.

Most Rev. James DeWolf Perry, of the diocese of Rhode Island, presiding bishop of Episcopal Church in the United States, will be the consecrator, assisted by six New England bishops.

Pays $50 Fine for Reckless Driving

Harry A. Douglas, of Myrtle st., Boston, charged with driving so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public, was fined $50 by Judge Ralph M. Smith in Somerville district court today. Police say, on Aug. 15, Douglas, while driving on Somerville ave., turned sharply in front of a truck and forced it down a steep embankment. Five men in the truck were injured, two of them seriously.

'BUMP' READING COST HIM $10

Peter Caruso, 25-year-old Stoughton farmhand, took a train back home today, minus $10 and nursing a grievance against a gypsy maiden, whom he claims "gypped" him of the money which he had planned to spend on his "day off."

And while he speeds homeward Dina Miller, 18, awaits bail at the City Prison, held on a charge of larceny.

Peter walked into Station 2 waving a handkerchief and related his experience at a "bump reading" shop in Hanover st., where Dina worked.

"She told me she'd read the bumps on my head and then she asked me to put a $10 bill in my handkerchief. Well, I did, and she handed the handkerchief back and said, 'Don't open it till you get home or you'll break the spell.'

"I walked around for an hour or so and then figured I'd go to a show. I opened the handkerchief, but the bill was gone."

DEATH BOAT NOT REGULAR COAST GUARD CRAFT

Commander Reveals How He Picked It Up and Fitted It for Service

Revelation that the coast guard boat from which the shot was fired that killed Boatswain's Mate Louis A. Pratt of the same service, off Ipswich, was a boat he secured and equipped, was made today by Comdr. Eugene A. Coffin of Coast Guard Base 7, Gloucester.

Commander Coffin admitted the boat was not a service boat but that he had secured it, had had it repainted and had equipped it with searchlights and machine guns. The boat carried the designation "Coast Guard Service" but carried no number, he said.

The outboard motorboat was secured for service in shallow waters according to Commander Coffin.

The base commander declared he expects a charge to come out of the new investigation into the "blunder killing" of one Coast Guard by another.

A second probe was ordered by Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, chief of the coast guard service, because the report of the local board of inquiry did not satisfy him.

The members of the new board of inquiry, only one of whom is attached to the New England division, interviewed Commander Coffin at Base 7, Gloucester, for nearly three hours yesterday. Their return there today was a surprise.

Officials attached to the divisional headquarters at Boston said they considered the second investigation purely an "internal" matter.

Admiral Billard in a statement issued at Washington, vigorously denied that there was any effort or intent at coast guard headquarters to suppress the report or whitewash any findings in connection with the shooting.

The new investigation is being conducted by a board consisting of Capt. John B. Turner, president; Commander W. F. Towle and Commander S. V. Parker.

SEPT. 17 TO BE CITY HOLIDAY

Mayor Curley within the next 24 hours will issue a proclamation calling on the citizens of Boston to observe a half-holiday on the afternoon of Sept. 17. He will also declare the day a whole holiday for city employes.

Approximately 17,000 Boston high school students will take part in the Tercentenary parade on that afternoon, Superintendent of Schools Jeremiah Burke informed the mayor today.

The parade will start at noon and will take about seven hours to pass in review. It is expected that 35,000 persons will be in line.

"My Appetite was poor — I had lost weight — felt run-down. Now feel fine."

Miss Lottie Bell Pulliam, Knoxville, Tenn., writes:

"My appetite was poor. I had lost weight—was nervous and could not sleep well at night. In my rundown condition even my joints ached. I took seven large size bottles of S.S.S. It greatly improved my condition. My appetite picked up. My weight was restored and I now feel fine—in fact, I feel like a new person. S.S.S. is a splendid blood tonic and I recommend it to my friends. My mother also took S.S.S. and it renewed her strength."

S.S.S. is the Tonic that is daily helping thousands of weak, rundown, nervous people regain their strength and charm

MORE red-blood-cells and of the right quality! That's the answer to a rundown condition. You need them to fight infection and disease. The way to regain them is to take S.S.S.—the tonic that will help Nature build up and enrich your blood. Then your appetite will pick up. Your skin will clear up. Your whole body will be strengthened, invigorated!

Don't wait until it is too late to correct a rundown condition. When your red-blood-cells are only 80% you are NOT yourself—60% is dangerous.

Take S.S.S. before each meal. Its successful record of over 100 years in building red-cells in the blood is a guarantee of satisfaction. Get the large size bottle. At all drug stores. © S.S.S. Co.

How to recognize a low blood count

Fatigue without any apparent cause, sluggishness, loss of appetite, loss of body weight, paleness, boils and pimples are outstanding symptoms of a LOW RED-BLOOD-CELL COUNT. The red-cells are your body builders. They carry nourishment to every part of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues. When your red-cells drop to 80 per cent of normal strength, you haven't the proper number of workers to keep you "fit." 60 per cent of normal is dangerous. S.S.S.—the great blood tonic—stimulates the blood-building organs to supply the necessary red-cells. Your appetite picks up, your body is strengthened—you feel like yourself again!

U. S. OFFICIALS IN DRIVE ON CROOKED STOCK TIPSTERS HERE

NEW YORK AID PLEDGED IN FRAUD WAR

Boston Promoters Linked With Many Cases Under Probe in Empire State

By BERT FORD

Renewed impetus and a wider range was given to the stock fraud drive in Massachusetts by the three-day visit of Deputy Attorney-General Washburn of New York, who went home last night.

Washburn's conference with local officials threw into high the combined legal machinery of state and federal government. Just now the chief quarry are tipster sheet offenders.

Several specific cases are under investigation not only by Massachusetts and New York authorities but by federal officials in Boston, according to announcement by Asst. U. S. Atty. Haven Parker, acting for U. S. Dist. Atty. Frederick H. Tarr, who is on a vacation.

Parker and Washburn were in conference more than two hours discussing cases started in New York by the securities division attached to the attorney general's department, of which Washburn is chief.

LINKS IN BOSTON

The cases discussed have ramification reaching to Boston and other cities. They are said to relate to the activities of publishers of tipster sheets in exploiting worthless stocks. The first official hint that the federal government had [illegible] the hint was revealed when Asst. U. S. Dist. Atty. Parker made a statement to the press following his conference with Deputy Atty. Gen. Washburn.

"There are several cases relating to tipster sheets which comes within our jurisdiction here," said Mr. Parker. "We are investigating these and plan to investigate others that may arise. We pledged our fullest co-operation to Mr. Washburn and he pledged in return the co-operation of the State of New York in probing these matters."

CARTER TO TESTIFY

The examination of Boston witnesses before F. Delano Putnam, which started Monday, has been postponed until September 9. On that date William E. Carter, former clerk for the Financial Debater Criterion, will be recalled.

Carter testified that he was employed as a sort of secretary on the staff of the Financial Debater Criterion which had headquarters at 185 Devonshire st. He claimed the publication went out of existence in June.

He denied any dealings with William J. Jarvis, head of the firm of W. L. Jarvis Co., 80 Federal st., who has been sought as a witness by the New York authorities for two weeks.

Carter testified that Jarvis merely subscribed to the publication, so far as he knew and that all the money came from one Waldo.

JARVIS AT SEA

Carter was the only witness in a list of six or more the New York authorities were able to round up in Boston. Jarvis is reported to be at sea on his private yacht and process servers were unable to find several men formerly identified with the publication of Financial Debater Criterion.

Jarvis is named as a co-defendant with Abner S. Werblin and Leonard S. Rollnick of New York in a suit which Deputy Atty.-Gen. Washburn's department has brought, seeking to enjoin them from further sale of securities in New York. The action grew out of alleged manipulation of Advance Rumely stock and its alleged exploitation by means of tipster sheets.

Evidence said to have been unearthed by the New York securities division indicated that individuals in Boston engineered many of the fraudulent deals.

Taught Edison Winner

BACK HOME from a tour of the British Isles Miss Alice M. Waddington, of East Providence, R. I., received congratulations today as the teacher of Arthur O. Williams, winner of this year's Edison scholarship test. She arrived here on the liner Newfoundland and described Williams as "the smartest pupil I ever had." (Staff photo.)

FORMER HUB REALTOR FREED

Prison gates opened today for Herman Leon Sharshik, former Boston real estate dealer, serving a 20 to 40-year forgery sentence when he was acquitted at a new trial, according to dispatches from Philadelphia today.

Sharshik was arrested in Boston last spring and extradited to Philadelphia, after Pierre Van Doorran of New York had declared him an accomplice in forgery of the names of four Philadelphia lawyers to checks for about $1500.

Van Doorran had previously been sentenced to five and one-half years, later reduced to two to four years. It was on his testimony alone, that Sharshik was convicted and given the heaviest sentence possible. Later van Doorran wrote Judge McDevitt he had lied at the trial because detectives had promised to free him.

The judge interviewed van Doorran, then ordered a new trial for Sharshik. Van Doorran gave the name of another who he said was his real accomplice.

Lynn Station Started

Ground was broken yesterday for the new Lynn police station, to be erected at a cost of $175,000. Mayor Manning and Police Chief Broad conducted the simple ceremonies.

EDISON WINNER TEACHER HOME

The happiest school teacher in all New England—perhaps in all the U. S. A.—arrived in Boston today on the Furness liner Newfoundland from Liverpool, via St. John's, N. F.

She is Miss Alice M. Waddington of East Providence and for the past four years she has been teacher of Arthur O. Williams at the high school there. And Williams is the winner of this year's Edison scholarship test, in competition with America's most brilliant schoolboys.

Miss Waddington sailed for England, for a tour of the isles, in June and it was during her absence that her star pupil, who enters M. I. T. this fall, won the coveted honor.

"Arthur Williams is the smartest pupil I ever had," she said. "His average mark for the entire four years was 94, which speaks for itself. I know he will make a great name for himself in his future career."

Miss Waddington arrived unheralded but an inquisitive cameraman learned of her presence on the liner from her traveling companion, Miss Rachel S. Harris of Haverhill.

The Newfoundland landed 190 passengers, among whom was Miss June Kempton of Hartford, who is writing a book on her experiences as an artist's model in Paris and London.

Prager and Kay Fined $20; Appeal

Fines of $20 each were imposed today in Municipal court on [illegible] Prager of Quint ave., Brighton, and Nathan Kay of Winthrop st., [illegible]bury, charged with displaying banners and speaking publicly on Boston Common six days ago at a Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting.

Fred G. [illegible] of New York, general secretary of the Shoe and Leather union, was defaulted. Prager and Kay appealed.

Magnotta Arrested in Labor Dispute

Joseph Magnotta, 25, of Charles st., Boston, was arrested today by Cambridge police charged with threatening Sally C. Velia of Boston, an employe of the M. S. Kondazian & Son Co., clothing manufacturers, Coolidge Hill rd., Watertown.

It is alleged they had trouble after the issuing of an injunction against the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Association, restraining it from interfering with employes of the company.

WOMAN HELD AS 'EYE' OF SAFE CRACKERS

Police Have Fingerprints of Gang in $70,000 Break in Automobile Row

Charged with being one of the safe-blowing gang that looted a safe of $70,500 at the Hinchcliffe Motor Company, 1040 Commonwealth ave., Mrs. Marie A. Hogarty, 30, of Cottage st., Everett, was held [illegible] today in Brookline.

In Brookline court today Mrs. Hogarty pleaded [illegible] Judge Parker, and was held in [illegible] for hearing Sept. 3.

Only last May the same woman was arrested with another woman and four men charged with being the [illegible] of a band of yeggs who had looted a number of Greater Boston stores.

With her at that time was arrested her husband of a few months, George Hogarty, giving an address in Shawmut ave.

According to Brookline police some of the gang with whom Mrs. Hogarty is alleged to have worked on the Hinchcliffe job have already been convicted through finger prints left on the safe.

The yeggs, in order to get more light to work with in the Hinchcliffe establishment, moved the huge safe and then apparently forgot to remove finger prints.

This job, police said, resembled similar jobs in a number of other establishments, including the Marmon and Stutz show rooms in Commonwealth ave. Police are certain that the robberies were all done by the same gang.

Mrs. Hogarty tearfully denied that she had acted as "lookout." She said she believed her husband was an automobile salesman.

FEAR LYNN BOY IS KIDNAPED

With kidnaping believed to be back of the disappearance Lynn police today began a search for Samuel Murphy, 12, of 59 Prospect st., Lynn, who has been missing since Tuesday at 8 a. m.

According to police the boy's father on Tuesday afternoon had a fist fight with two men of foreign appearance and defeated [illegible]. Revenge for the beating may have inspired them to kidnap the boy, police believe.

The boy was last seen by Anthony La Rizza of [illegible] who made a call at the Murphy home and met the boy on the sidewalk. La Rizza gave the [illegible] a dime and then went into the house.

ADAMS STANDS BY NAVY YARD

"I don't think anything is going to happen at the Navy Yard," Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams said today on arriving in Boston from Newport.

"There is nothing to fear so far as I can see. There is no doubt but what the local yard is an expensive one to operate. However, what I saw recently in the papers was the first news I have heard of late regarding the possibility of reducing the number of navy yards."

The following statement in connection with the report that certain navy yards were to be closed was sent out from the Salem office of Congressman Andrew.

"Congressman A. Piatt Andrew, Massachusetts member of the House naval affairs committee, who is greatly concerned by the rumored fate of the Boston Navy Yard announced today his intention at the next session of Congress to introduce a bill specifying the number of navy yards to be engaged in the upkeep and maintenance of the fleet. Congressman Andrew said there are a number of inactive yards that might as well be abandoned in the interest of economy and that the bill he proposes to introduce would automatically take care of the Boston yard, while not interfering with the realization of the economy program of the department."

BUYING DRIVE IS URGED BY CURLEY

Spending Wave Would Start Factories and Provide Work, He Declares

In a stirring plea for a [illegible] campaign, Mayor Curley, in a radio address last night, scored government officials and financial rulers of the country for their failure to [illegible] the unemployment situation.

[illegible] "display the faith of the fathers and lead the way out of the [illegible]."

"The finances of the nation have never been on a sounder basis and banks have never been so plentifully supplied with funds and money has never been available at such a low rate for legitimate business needs," he said.

"While it is true that there is a surplus of raw material it is equally true that every concern in America has been doing business with less than a month's supply on hand at any time.

"A buying wave tomorrow would mean depleted stocks of retailers and the starting of mills and factories with work and wages for everyone.

"Financial reports for the first six months of 1930 as contrasted with the same period in 1929, discloses that 702 firms made no changes in dividends, only 25 omitted dividends and 24 decreased dividends.

"The figures show the secret of the present depression to have been placed squarely on the shoulders of the workers.

"Dividends were maintained in many cases by retrenchment through the discharge of employes unmindful of the fact that for every man discharged a thousand prospective customers, in the person of fellow employes, are stampeded into restricted expenditures through fear that they will be next."

[illegible]

"If this is done by all, an impetus will be given that will be reflected in every artery of industry and will make necessary the immediate employment of nearly 3,000,000 persons, who today are without the means of a livelihood," he said.

Tris Grows Nervous When He Thinks Judy Left Necklace on Ship

CHAPTER 32

JUDY DRESSED with more care than ever she had believed possible for even the most golden of girls. Having turned particular after twenty-two years of indifferent grooming, she polished her nails till they were little oval mirrors—polished them again—tried her hair a dozen different ways, finally begged Peggy to do it for her.

Peggy's pretty face was touched by knowing smile. "Found out she is lovely—my Judy knows this now," she kept thinking.

"Which of them told her?—Ardent one with the dark eyes or the grave-faced boy? Oh—this one—for her sake! The other—too likely to break her heart. Yet—and yet better heartbreak than nothingness. To be as she was before, shutting herself out from life . . ."

A Little Rouge
Peggy Advises Judy

Aloud she said, "There's another dress you haven't seen, lamb. All white. You're pale tonight . . . Just a little rouge? Oh, let me fix it for you, Judy."

All unreal. A dream. Mustn't awake. Sink into a glow, feel the warm melting beauty raising like a tide!

"No end to the things you got me, Mother. This dress is exquisite. Like a white rose shedding petals all around me."

"Time you were thinking of such things. Some way you've been a quite convincing prude."

"Oh?" Judy eyed her reflection in the mirror. The silver necklet did not fit in with the creamy tulle fluffing about her shoulders.

"What's a Puritan, Mother? I mean—of course I know the Puritans settled New England and were very this and that. Thought it a sin to smile, I suppose! Well, were they really so frozen? Not human at all?"

"I suspect that beneath the ice, they were very human, my dear. We have scraps of history to prove it. Nature is this way. The loveliest flowers are just beneath the snow. Why?"

"Oh—nothing." Judy ran the powder puff over her neck and wondered why Peggy had said she needed rouge. "A Puritan's kiss might be quite—quite stimulating, then . . ." She gave a quick embarrassed laugh, wound herself in the Spanish shawl she was to wear tonight, glanced down at the gold and green roses embroidered on the ivory crepe. "Have to rush now—oh, don't look so startled! You've heard Betsy Rowe say crazy things. Wish me lots of excitement, like a dear."

"Of course, lamb. Be careful."

"Such a thing to say to me! Be careful yourself. The pinky-gray Mr. Tennant is a stepper, seems to me." She blew a kiss and was gone in a flurry of tulle and swinging fringe.

Peggy stared at the almond crepe the once precise Judy had tossed on the floor.

"Puritan's kiss," she repeated. "The grave boy never would think of that. Who is Mr. Tristan Millet?"

After a time she went to the telephone, asked to be conected with the bridge.

"You know who it is, Cap'n Charley?"

His voice bellowed on the wire. "Not so many lovely ladies remember the old pilot. What's up, Peggy?"

"Information wanted. Do you know the folks aboard?"

"We have records. An excursion crowd is a mixed affair."

"You're a very old friend, Charley. Judy's found a young man, Mr. Millet—"

"Ah!" He was businesslike all at once. "You're going out? Drop in on your way."

A few minutes later Peggy left the captain's quarters. There was a puzzled, wondering expression in her pretty face and his last words still rang in her ears.

"You're not to interfere in this. Everything is right as rain—I'll see to that. The girl is like my own."

Mr. Tennant found little Mrs. Archer rather preoccupied that evening, inclined to long silences. Once he reached for her hand.

"Tonight, Peggy? You'll listen tonight?"

"No. Not tonight."

"Very well. I'm a patient man."

"Bless you, Don."

* * *

Tris was waiting for Judy smiling up at her as she came down the steps. He was handsome as a young god—a very gallant young god, standing there with his face alight.

He tucked her hand through his arm, led her down to the pier, put her into a cab.

Not a word between them until he leaned over, pressed his lips to her hands, turned them and kissed her palms. "Beautiful, my sweet, my sweet! Like a bride tonight. You wore white for me? Like a little white flower in a shrine."

Sweetness
Her Heart Was Full

Sweetness filled her heart. "Not that, Tris. A shrine is lonely. I've been lonely too long."

Once again it seemed to her that their kiss united them with bonds as radiant as love, eternal as life.

She had only a hazy impression of the quaint old city, its lights blinking in the rain. They drove up a steep hill, through narrow, twisted streets, came to rest in the court of a building like a sprawling castle.

Proud as a young queen, she walked beside Tris, saw him across a gleaming table, listened to his warm rich voice lilting an old, romantic poem.

"If I were king! Ah love, if I were king!
What tributary nations would I bring
To stoop before your sceptre, and to swear
Allegiance to your lips and eyes and hair!
Beneath your feet what treasures I would fling;
The stars should be your pearls upon a string;
The world a ruby for your finger ring,
And you should have the sun and moon to wear,
If I were king!"

Luminous night! She felt herself blending with its beauty, becoming one with its charm.

Yet deep beneath her joy a shadow lurked. When they crossed the immense distances of the hotel lounge she caught sight of one who watched. One she was coming to think of as Nemesis. The scarfaced man, inconspicuous in evening clothes among the gay tourists who filled the chateau. Narrow eyes boring at Tris, turning upon her.

Why—ah, why. If Tris would talk with her of this, not pretend it was all her fancy!

Strains of an orchestra came from far away, wove a thread of silver through the glamour. There was a waltz her father used to hum and Tris sang the words softly, laughing into her eyes.

"Heart of my heart, I love you
Life would be naught without you——"

He leaned toward her, his face suddenly drawn. "The necklet, Judy. You left it on the ship?"

She tried to tease him. "You wish the promise of a promise always in sight?"

"Judy—tell me at once—" His voice was sharp and hard; he was flinging down his napkin, half rising.

"I have it Tris—here."

She touched her dress, watched him in amazement as he settled back, ran a shaking hand over his dark head. He looked away and the blood flowed back to his face slowly.

"You said it wasn't valuable, Tris? I didn't understand——"

"Of course—no, of course not." His tone was not quite steady but he smiled, reached over and patted her hand. "Merely a symbol. Felt you couldn't care if you'd left it so."

He ordered wine, sparkled again. "Here's to life, my sweet. The glory of it."

"To life, Tris!"

As on the night in Montreal Judy reached the cabin before Peggy. She was glad of this. Something had happened in the cabin while they were gone.

The Rhyming Optimist

—By ALINE MICHAELIS—

Adventure

Adventure does not mean always
A pirate ship, an angry sea,
A plane in air, a jungle maze,
Or unknown paths for you, for me.

Instead, sometimes quite close at hand
Around this corner, down that street
On any ship or any land
We hear Adventure's dancing feet.

In fragrant, wind-swept country lanes
We glimpse, as in the market place,
Aglow with light that never wanes,
Adventure's laughing, luring face.

So who need sigh for fabled fields
Or wait, inert, for some far call
When every hour of living yields
Its rare adventure to us all?

What's in Fashion?
Campus-Right Clothes

—Directed by AMOS PARRISH—

NEW YORK, August 28.
Smartness! That's something thousands of college and boarding school girls are planning to major in this year.

Let their schedule cards say what they will—all the Math and English Lit and Psychology in the world doesn't alter the fact that these bright young people are also studying hard in—Right Fashion.

Watch them—if you have the chance. Watch their slender, long-limbed shadows as they gather on the chapel steps. Watch the easy fullness of their skirts as they dash from class to class.

Notice the interesting details of the dresses they wear down town for tea. And the practical comfort of their grand costumes.

Maybe they can't expound the binominal theory. But they can tell you without a mistake what makes campus-right clothes.

And it won't be the frills and furbelows they'll talk about, either. It'll be femininity, graciousness, comfort, lovely colors and interesting but simple trimming.

Classroom Dresses

They'll tell you, for instance, why a dress like the one sketched at the top left is the general type they like best for classroom wear.

"It's simple," they'll say, "but not plain. It has nothing to distract our attention from the work at hand. Yet it's interesting enough in its pockets and yoke and buttons.

"Its lines make us look feminine and there's heaps of comfort in those shoulders and that skirt!"

Good reasons, all of them. And there are just as good reasons for the campus-fashion-rightness of the dress sketched at the lower left—a dress for town or Sunday wear.

There's no fussiness there! Yet it's as feminine as the fashionable girls who like it—or its general type.

Youthful Bib Collar

The bib collar is youthful—and much in fashion. And it adds a slight touch of formality a Sunday dress at college should have.

These fashion-knowing girls think there's nothing quite like the polo type coat for dashing round in roadsters or for shopping in the town.

And they're right! There's an easy freedom to these coats. A comfortable roominess. A delightful warmth, but very little weight to carry. And ready for any kind of weather.

We've had one sketched at the top right. It has the wide belt, the good wrap-around and the notched collar the girls like best.

There's a lot of luxury in their dressy coat. And more sophistication. Saturday matinees, Sunday calling, tea with the girl friend's brother—events like these need clothes that look more formal.

And coats of broadcloth or suede-finished fabrics with one of fall's new, becoming fluffy fur collars have that formal look.

Out sketch shows only one good type—but it's one we find is getting college girl enthusiasm a-plenty.

And then for active sports-wear September and October golf, those picnic hikes, skating and skiing later—she'll choose a leather sports jacket—if you let her. Because it's wind and rain proof.

It can be pulled on over any sweater and skirt. It leaves the body free for active exercise. And because leather jackets are a present-day college fashion!

How to Keep Well

—By DR. R. S. COPELAND—

Offending Factor in Asthma

THERE IS seldom difficulty in recognizing an attack of asthma. The appearance of the patient and his symptoms are characteristic.

Dr. Copeland

The attack is likely to begin without warning. The patient's breathing becomes noisy and labored. He is pale and speechless. His skin is clammy. He sits with arms propped on his knees or on a chair-back, to give support to his chest muscles.

If the attack is long continued, the skin becomes more or less blue in color. The pulse is rapid, weak and possibly irregular.

After a few minutes in some cases, or several hours in others, there will be a paroxysm of coughing, when there is expelled a thin, tenacious mucus. After this the severity of the attack lessens, until the breathing becomes normal. These attacks may be repeated immediately or not come on again for days.

The medical profession has come to understand that each case of asthma must be treated individually. Of course, immediate relief is necessary in severe attacks, but the doctor will advise the best procedure.

The next step is to determine whether or not the patient is sensitive to the breathing of some irritating substance. More likely the trouble can be traced to some particular food.

Many persons are irritated by sleeping on pillows filled with rabbit hair or those filled with feathers. Other persons may be susceptible to the hair of horses, or to cat fur, or to the pollen of certain flowers or grasses.

Occasionally occupation plays a part. In a report which I read bakers were found who were sensitive to wheat protein, a sifter of green coffee beans was sensitive to green coffee protein, and so on.

But in many persons the attack follows the eating of some common food, as cereals, eggs, milk, fish, and even potato.

When the offending article has been discovered it must be eliminated from the diet. If something not a food is at fault it may be necessary for the patient to move from a certain locality or to change his occupation.

Fortunately not a large percentage of persons suffer from asthma. But the victim must be studied carefully to find the offending factor.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Nervous fingers should not fuss with pimples on the face. There is not only a chance of spreading infection but a possibility of tearing the complexion to pieces. Fancy that! Deep scars which cannot be erased result from careless pinching and pressing of pustules and blackheads. When it is necessary to lance an eruption, use a sterilized needle (hold the needle point in a flame), cover the point with antiseptic gauze, and press gently. A small abrasion made by the finger nails can result in a scar that nothing will cure.

Before the summer is over, try to give your feet sand treatments. Run in the sand. Push the toes into the sand. Dig holes in the sand with your heels. There is nothing better for removing callous spots, grating down hardened cuticles, even corns, than running on a sandy beach. Follow with a warm foot bath, with baking soda in the water. If feet burn and smart, rub with cold cream and apply cold compresses.

It is no good trying to fight freckles if one is to enjoy outdoor life. The time to battle them is after the silly season is over, when the complexion is no longer subjected to exposure of the elements. Then lemon juice can be used, or peroxide and rosewater in equal parts. Strong bleaches that produce dermatitis should be avoided. If you use them you may lose your freckles, but you may also lose your complexion.

Dressing the hair becomingly on the forehead is important. The pattern of the wave lines has much to do with bringing out the beauty of the eyes. Pulling the hair down in the center of the forehead is old stuff now, though some women do it. Loops of hair pulled out over the cheeks are passe. The coiffure of today is chic because it is trig and neat, well patterned, throughout. It clings closely to the scalp.

Miss Fairfax On the Air

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will discuss a problem of heart and home every night, at 6:35 p. m. over station WLEX. Tonight's problem follows.

Breaking Her Heart

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a constant reader of all the good advice you're giving to the readers of the American, so maybe you would give a little bit to me, for I sure am in need of it.

Here is my problem. I've been in love with a fellow for more than two years, but he always is traveling and comes home for only a couple of months a year, but then he is all that a girl would wish for. He knows I love him terribly, but he keeps telling me he must see this and that before he settles down for he says he's seeing too many married men running around. He only writes once in awhile and it's breaking my heart. I tried to forget him, but it seems that it isn't to be, for at the time his memory is getting a little less dearer a nice letter or card comes and then the trouble starts. Please be kind and tell me, do you think it is love on his part, and only his craving for travel that makes him act this way. Will await your answer with impatience.

M. D. P.

Dear M. D. P.: I will discuss your problem over station WLEX at 6:35 tonight.

Don't Be Too Eager

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I read your column, therefore I'm coming to you for advice.

I am a girl of 18, have been out with a certain fellow only twice. I like him a great deal. He told me he loves me and asked me to write him a letter, which I did. He did not answer it. His reason so he says, is that he cannot write very well. He calls up though. The letter was just plain and dignified. What do you think of the situation? Do you think his reason is good enough?

KITTY.

Dear Kitty:—Some people are really not good writers, and are ashamed of the fact. On the other hand, that may be just an excuse and I wouldn't be too eager to write letters, if I were you. If he calls you on the 'phone and you can talk together why should you write? People almost always say things in letters that they wouldn't say to your face and later feel quite embarrassed over them.

Wants to Know Him Better

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a boy about 17 years old. About a month ago, I met a nice girl at a party. It was the first time I had seen her. After the party I found out that she lived very near my home. She was very sociable at the party. Since that day she has changed considerably. When she sees me she just smiles. How can I become better acquainted?

PLINK PLUNK.

Dear Plink Plunk—I think it's fairly obvious that the girl doesn't want to seem too anxious for your friendship, and thinks you should be made to work for her smiles and companionship. Why not try bolder tactics, and ask her if she would like to go to a picture show with you, or if you could call and see her some evening? I think you'll find she is just pretending shyness in the hopes of encouraging you to be more forward.

(Miss Fairfax will be pleased to answer readers' questions regarding love problems which may be troubling them. Write on one side of the paper only.)

Pointers on Etiquette

—By MRS. BEECKMAN—

Embarrassing Omission

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Last week-end I visited some new friends at their summer home. I helped the daughter of the house to get dinner and my duty was to cook a vegetable for dinner. When we had dinner this vegetable did not appear. Should I have whispered to my hostess that she had forgotten something or just let it pass?

MISS Q.

Since your hostess might have been embarrassed by her omission, perhaps it would have been just as well to let it go as it was.

Costuming the Family

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

One thing I always look for in the paper is your column. You have certainly solved a lot of problems for me and my family.

My cousin recently became engaged to a certain young lady. She has two wealthy aunts who are giving a formal engagement party for her. We have been invited. My father has been told that he should wear a tuxedo. My mother thinks that if my father wears a tuxedo, that she, my sister and I should naturally wear evening gowns, and the wraps to go with evening clothes. My father thinks that he is the only one who should wear formal clothes, and he thinks that mother, my sister and I should wear regular street clothes. What do you think of this?

Ve.

I don't think that we can allow father to steal all the sartorial thunder! A formal engagement party demands, of course, formal clothes, and you should all wear evening clothes of the most formal kind. In fact, father should [illegible] wear evening clothes, rather than that informal dinner jacket that he is planning to wear. But you and your mother and sister would certainly feel out of place in street clothes—it would be one of those moments of "imagine my embarrassment" that we all dread more than we do the smallpox!

Fiance's Parents and the Fiancee

DEAR MISS BEECKMAN:

Recently my little sister became engaged to a young man whose family live in the East. The question has arisen as to whether or not my sister should write to his mother, and I contend that if it is proper for either to write, it is his mother's place. However, probably it is not necessary for either to write inasmuch as they intend to go back to his home for the marriage. Will you settle it for us?

L. K.

Under these circumstances the really correct thing is for the young man to write to his parents, telling them of his engagement. Then, at once, the mother and father, or at least the mother, should write to the son's fiancee, your sister, telling her of their happiness at this news of their son's engagement, and of their welcome of her into their family. Then your sister should answer this letter, informally chatting to them about her happiness in being engaged to their son, and would tell them of the things of which her fiance has told her about his parents.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette by readers.)

Roast Beef Pies Suit the Taste of Americans

By MARTHA LEE
Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Homemakers' Club of Over 37,000

TO MANY American tastes there is nothing better than pie, whether it is filled with apples, any kind of fruit, cheese or custard or whether it is used as the main part of the meal and is filled with meat and vegetables. Anything to get that rich flaky crust. Anything to get one's teeth into that delicious mixture of flour and shortening which is unlike any other mixture in the world!

Martha Lee

And roast beef! We are almost as fond of roast beef as we are of pie, so today I have for you some recipes which combine the two, and which will make a good American dish of Roast Beef Pie, long proud of its British ancestry.

BEEFSTEAK PIE

Cut remnants of cold broiled steak or roast beef in one-inch cubes. Cover with boiling water, add one-half onion and cook slowly one hour or more until very tender. Remove onion, thicken gravy with flour diluted with cold water, and season well with salt and pepper. Add potatoes cut in one-fourth inch slices, which have been parboiled eight minutes in boiling salted water. Put in a buttered pudding dish, cool, cover with rich baking powder biscuit mixture or pie crust. Bake in a hot oven. If covered with pie crust, make several incisions in crust that gases may escape. Be sure there is plenty of gravy.

POTATO AND MEAT PIE

Chop cold meat, removing the bones, fat and gristle. Put the meat in a pudding dish. To each cup of meat, pour in one-half cup of gravy. Taste, and stir in, if needed, one-fourth tsp. salt, one speck pepper, and a few drops of onion juice or a little chopped parsley. Spread mashed potatoes as a crust over the meat, bake on the grate of the oven until golden brown. Or make a tender pie crust and spread over top, pricked to allow gases to escape.

AMERICAN POT PIE

- 2 lbs. meat
- 2 large potatoes
- 1 onion
- 1 cup celery
- ½ cup diced carrot

Crust for pie: 1½ cups flour, 3 tsp. baking powder, 1 tsp. salt, 6 tbsp. water, 2 tsp. butter.

Cook meat until tender. Cut in pieces. Make gravy of broth by adding 2 tbsp. flour which has been mixed with 2 tbsp. cold water. Put meat in baking dish and add vegetables which have been cooked in boiling water till tender. Pour well seasoned gravy over all. Cover with crust which has been rolled to half-inch thickness and in which slits have been cut to allow steam to escape. Bake 30 minutes.

Meanwhile I'm Faithfully Yours

The Daily Dollar

1930 BLACKBERRY PIE

- 2 cups blackberry juice
- [illegible] cup sugar
- 3 tbsps cornstarch
- ½ tsp salt
- 1 tbsp shortening
- 2 egg yolks

PASTRY

Put 4 cups blackberries in sauce pan and cook till boiling and berries are soft. Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt thoroughly, stir over the fire while gradually pouring on the hot juice, then add shortening and well beaten egg yolks. Mix thoroughly and [illegible] into pastry [illegible] with edge built as for a lemon [illegible]. Dredge with sugar and flour so juice won't soak into crust. Bake in hot oven [illegible] for 10 minutes then lower [illegible] and bake 40 minutes. Cool [illegible] and spread on

MERINGUE Made of

- 2 egg whites
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 tsp orange extract

Beat egg whites very light and gradually beat in sugar, adding the extract last.

FRUIT JELLY PASTRY

- 1[illegible] cups flour
- [illegible] tsp. salt
- ⅓ cup sugar
- [illegible] cup shortening
- 1 egg
- 1 tbsp. cold water

FILLING

- 1 No. 2½ can fruit salad
- 1 tbsp. sugar
- 1 tbsp. gelatine
- 2 tbsp. cold water

Sift flour, salt, and sugar, then rub in shortening. Add well beaten egg and water and chill. Roll out like any pastry, line straight edge pie or cake tin and bake in hot oven. Let cool.

Drain off syrup from canned fruit, add sugar, bring syrup to boiling point and pour over the gelatine which has been soaked in the cold water. Cool and set away to harden. Cut up fruits and put in crust. Pour over the gelatine mixture when it begins to harden and set in ice box to set. Serve covered with whipped cream.

BRAMBLES

- 2½ cups flour
- [illegible] cup lard or substitute
- 1 egg
- Cold water to moisten

FILLING

- 1 egg
- 1 cup sugar
- Juice 1 lemon
- 1 cup raisins
- 1 rolled cracker

Roll pastry mixture and cut with cover off a coffee can. Placing a heaping tbsp. of the filling on one half, fold the other side over like a turnover. Moisten edges, press together and bake in a moderate oven.

Western Men of Affairs Find Fun Outdoors

California's Bohemian Club Owns Grove Where Notables Gather

By B. C. Forbes

New York, Aug. 28.—In the Far West—Concluding a talk to a large gathering of Western business men I observed:

"Man was not made for business. Business was made for man."

B. C. Forbes

Before speeding eastward to re-enter the thick of the financial and business fray in the encircling environs of Wall st., may I, fresh from an experience unique in my life and unique in the world—be permitted to wax somewhat sentimental, voicing the principle that sentiment should not be unrelated to business and to men of business? Tomorrow I'll return to unsentimental facts.

Can you imagine a thousand responsible men of affairs betaking themselves out of the world of bustle and bustle and money making, hieing off to the heart of a forest and amid giant redwoods thousands of years old holding [illegible] camp style for three weeks, connected with the rest of mankind by only one lone telephone?

Out here in the West men go more for the out-of-doors. They go in more, too, for human fellowship, for fraternizing, for friendliness, for respite from the daily toil of the mart, office, factory, shop.

The Bohemian Club of California, composed, mostly, of men who have made some mark in their walk of life, own a "grove," dotted with camps of all varieties from humble tent to almost palatial structure, about a hundred miles from San Francisco. Under its auspices is this unique outing.

* * *

On reaching a place [illegible] Market attracted my attention. It carried this [illegible]: "What the h— do we care?"

When, later, I expressed a desire to procure an evening newspaper, my host promptly and emphatically ruled me out of order. "Forget it!" he [illegible] "A shop was forbidden." The keynote of the whole gathering was sounded in music at the opening when the first elaborate ceremony [illegible] the burning in effigy of Dull Care.

Music sounds through the forest day and night. A great orchestra, comprised wholly of members, plays in the evenings by the side of a lake sentineled by redwoods hundreds of feet high and thousands of years old, the listeners squatting on the [illegible] banks and in the edge of the woods. Men sit on logs around a central camp fire talking. Vocal concerts are given. The musical and dramatic piece de resistance is a grand scale play, composed exclusively for this one performance and staged in gorgeous style in an open-air theater, the like of which is not to be found the wide world over. Hundreds take part. Every seat is occupied, yet from the rise of the first to the drop of the last curtain you could hear a pin fall.

* * *

Dignity is left behind. A most punctilious New Yorker, distinguished alike for his professional eminence, his blue blood, his sartorial perfection and his capital S society manners, was greeted on his first stroll through the woods: "Hello, Old Whiskers, who let you in here?" After recovering his breath, and after undergoing further verbal hazing, he caught the spirit of the place and had, he told me, "The most enjoyable experience of my life."

A military general, introduced at one camp, was greeted by the first to shake his hand: "Hello, Corporal!" He [illegible]. Promptly he became known all over as "The Corporal." And now, when he writes to any Bohemian he signs himself "The Corporal."

* * *

Herbert Hoover, when Secretary of Commerce, attended; he still maintains his camp. The toastmaster at one function where "Herb" was expected to speak began an introduction so flowery that the guest blushed; for half an hour the toastmaster narrated the virtues and achievements and glories of "the next distinguished speaker," Hoover meanwhile squirming—and then called upon a well-known wit to make the speech of the evening!

Dignitaries, bankers, captains of industry, men of letters, railway presidents, kings of commerce—all become schoolboys again, shed their publicly-worn masks, become their real selves and revel in this taste of back-to-nature, back to unhedged fraternity, back to the simplicities and frolics and irresponsibility of boyhood.

* * *

You can buy a seat on the New York Stock Exchange for half-a-million dollars, but money cannot buy membership in this Bohemian Club. You have to be the right kind of a human.

AUTO TRAVEL IN BAY STATE INCREASES

By FRANK H. MELOON

The propaganda which has been circulated telling us that automobile travel has fallen off in Massachusetts because fewer people are able to maintain cars does not stand the test of examination. In this respect it is in a class with a good many of the "bearish" reports one hears.

* * *

Revenue from the gasoline tax up to Aug. 1 will be approximately $5,976,810 against $5,413,157 for same period last year, Henry F. Long, state tax commissioner, announced. Each of the 1930 months has shown an increase over the corresponding month of 1929. Last year's total of $9,997,354 is expected to be surpassed with a total near $11,000,000 this year, the commissioner estimated. All this can mean only that more automobile mileage has been covered.

Henry F. Long

* * *

Those who think automobile travel has decreased should have seen the line of cars tied up for considerably more than a mile at Hampton Beach, N. H., the first of the week, waiting for toll collections at the Hampton Harbor Bridge of the Massachusetts Northeastern St. Ry. Co. This bridge is the longest structure of its kind in the world.

Days early among those celebrated during the Tercentenary are recalled by part of its list of toll prices which follow:

Motorcycles	5c. "
Bicycle and Rider	5c. "
Horse and Rider	5c. "

Head of Neat Stock	1c. "

Important changes in the business of the public utilities have passed unnoticed by the politicians who are not all economists. In the very great majority of states control of the public utilities by state boards is favored, but there appears to be no logical reason for state control of the public utilities' business in selling electrical appliances. The sale of electrical inventions has, however, become a very important source of public utility income.

* * *

From electric refrigerators to waffle irons and from clocks and washing machines to vacuum cleaners and toasters, electrical appliance sales in 1929 scored substantial gains over 1928, Electrical Merchandising reports, in making public the results of a survey just completed. The retail value of appliances sold to the American householder in 1929 was $925,000,000 as compared with $813,000,000, the total for 1928.

* * *

The "safety drive" in which New England states are co-operating has resulted in much additional business for garage men. There are cases where some garage men have undertaken to profit unduly by the authority given them by the Commonwealth, but it is to be hoped these are the exception rather than the rule. Those misused have the recourse of appeal to Capt. George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles, but have not exercised it in any of the cases which have come to our attention.

Wall Street writer says:

"These seem to be the days when the bulls and bears are taking big swigs out of the old oaken bucket together and calling each other by their first names. The last operation in Briggs was credited to Ben Smith, and he is said to be working in the stock again. John Pope is reported to have taken a big long position in Radio Keith Orpheum. Now I hear Danforth, the so-called Boston Bear, recently bought a wad of Ford, Ltd. All that is needed is for Livermore to buy a share or two of something and the family picture would be complete."

Business Machines Receive Contract

International Business Machines has received a contract to supply census equipment to the Norwegian government, it was announced yesterday. Electric tabulating and accounting machines will be used.

Company's volume of business in Great Britain in July increased 20.58 per cent above the volume in the same month of the previous year, it was reported.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

There is talk of a further effort to depress the oils as a result of announcement of increase in crude production. It is recognized, however, that the leaders of the industry are working in harmony for stabilization so that the smaller factors who have been making trouble will gradually be forced into line even if price cutting is necessary to bring order.

Railroad revenue in July showed another drop of over 30 per cent, as expected. Similar decline will be reported for August and September. If industrial activity is stepped up during the coming month, as anticipated, there should be steady improvement in returns from the carriers during the last quarter of the year that will be discounted by the stock market.

Electric Bond Group Is Bullish

Persistent strength in American Foreign Power and Electric Power & Light has been attributed to activity on the part of the Electric Bond & Share interests who were reported to have advised their friends they have taken a definitely bullish stand on the market. National Power & Light, another favorite on this group and also of more speculative but well-informed Street interests, has also been firm.

Vanadium Friends Assert Faith

Vanadium has been heavily pressed by a strong bear crowd but its friends continue to assert their faith in remarkable developments from the Titanium project. Results from this project may be forthcoming even sooner than generally expected. The Vanadium business of the company naturally is suffering from the dullness in the steel industry, but the new developments, according to sponsors of the stock, will more than offset any loss from the ordinary business. One thing is certain. Vanadium harbors a short interest of tremendous proportion.

Loew's Favorite in Amusements

It is evident that Loew's is the popular favorite among the amusement stocks. The issue has been scoring good gains from time to time and as a result there have been rumors of a probable increase in the current $3 a share annual dividend rate before very long. Predictions have been heard that earnings for the fiscal year which ends this month will be in the neighborhood of $10 a share. Because of the 48 per cent interest of Fox in Loew's, the floating supply of the latter is comparatively limited. The company's financial position is better than that of many other concerns in the same line.

U. S. Realty's Earnings Prospect

Although the construction subsidiary of U. S. Realty has been feeling the slump in new building, it is said that the rental income of the organization has been a redeeming feature. Many expect that U. S. Realty will earn about $5 a share this year, and are discussing the probability of a reduction in the dividend from the current $5 a share annual rate.

Quiet Buying in Beatrice Creamery

Beatrice Creamery has been more or less neglected marketwise in recent sessions although there has been quiet buying in the stock on a scale during all recent recessions by houses which had been identified with the market for shares in the past. The buying is predicated on the belief that the company can be included in the group of issues which represent the best resistance to general trade depression. Estimates are that Beatrice Creamery in the half-year to end this month will show approximately $4 a share on the 298,868 common shares, after preferred dividend requirements. This would compare with $3.48 a share on 195,864 shares in the same period of 1929.

Good Year for McKeesport Tin

In reliable quarters it is the confident view that McKeesport Tin Plate is enjoying an excellent year, with estimates that around $10 a share will be reported for the 12 months. In the first half $5.04 a share was shown. Unfilled orders are large. It is said that quiet buying has been in progress in the issue from interests who have been prominent in the stock on numerous occasions in the past.

Demand Up for Pacific Lighting

A better demand is noted for Pacific Lighting. Buying has been coming from the same interests who were prominent in the past in the market for American & Foreign Power and Standard Gas. Those most optimistic assert that Pacific Lighting is not likely to move as abruptly as the others mentioned, but they have taken a long-pull position and are confident of the outlook. Orders in the stock have also come from houses with Pacific coast connections.

Accumulation in Liquid Carbonic

Accumulation has been in progress in Liquid Carbonic, but the buying has been accomplished in such a manner that little interest has been attracted. The stock pays $4 a share per annum, and interests close to the management point out that earnings this year should be materially in excess of 1929 because of the increased sales due to the period of hot weather as well as the growth of the dry-ice business in recent months.

No Financing for Telephone

Having accomplished two major pieces of financing this year, and having brought about conversion of all of the $14,000,000 of the convertible bonds, American Telephone will hardly do any more financing for a year. The bond issue of $150,000,000 sold early in the year, the $235,000,000 stock issue and the bond conversion will bring in approximately $600,000,000 and will care for advances to associated companies on account of the $700,000,000 Bell System expansion program for 1930.

The company will probably increase its authorized stock next year. It now stands at $2,000,000,000, of which there will be less than 2,000,000 unissued shares available before the close of the year.

Goodyear Making 10 P. C. Wage Cut

Ten per cent salary decrease for all sales and office employes of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. was declared today by President P. W. Litchfield, to parallel the wage adjustments in the factory. Mr. Litchfield said the salary cut enables the company to retain as many as possible on the payroll and that the salaried worker enjoys a present advantage in a greater purchasing power of the dollar.

PROFIT-TAKING HALTS RISE IN CURB MARKET

New York, Aug. 28—The forward movement of pivotal curb stocks was held in check today by offerings brought out by the advance in the previous session. Here and there bears found a vulnerable spot particularly in the list of active industrials.

The trend of stocks was upward at the start but the market soon turned irregular. Utilities displayed an uncertain trend after opening firm, and toward mid-day heaviness developed with fluctuations narrow in most instances.

Electric Bond and Share showed a reversal of trend several times, moving upward at the start and then saggint about ½ point below yesterday's final price, later recovering. Brazilian Traction and Light, Duke Power, and Hydro Electric Sales showed strength in thin trading. American Gas and Electric sagged.

After advancing nearly two points yesterday, Goldman Sachs suffered from profit taking at the opening, but showed good recuperative power, and manifested a firm trend later in the session. Prices of United Founders, and Pennroad were well maintained.

Houston Oil was an exception to the narrow groove in which petroleum stocks moved generally, selling off about 2 points before finding support and continued weak. Cities Service hardly moved.

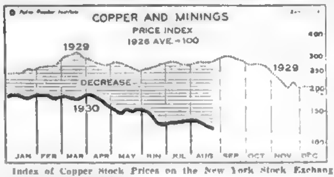
Mead Johnson, Technicolor, Great Atlantic & Pacific had losses of a point or more. American Cyanamid B, and Noranda Mines were active and sold slightly under the previous finals.

A. O. Smith gyrated in more than the usual amount of activity with selling dominating its trend. Aluminum Co. of America and U. S. Gypsum advanced.

Sugar Is Advanced

Effective Friday, Savannah Sugar Co. will advance the price of refined sugar 10 points to 4.45 cents against 4.35 cents at present.

Copper Shares Studied



Index of Copper Stock Prices on the New York Stock Exchange (1926 Average equals 100).

By JOHN W. LAIRD
(Irving Fisher Service)

New Haven, Aug. 28—Copper stocks make up one group that hasn't been open to the charge of much well-planned distributive work in the stock market, during the past year. It's been a case of almost uninterrupted drop.

The ideal was to peg the price of copper at a certain figure, almost twice the figure at which it now sells. That is history now, of course, and makes the law of supply and demand look pretty smug.

There are still interests which do not seem to believe themselves bound by it, however, and it is therefore perhaps worth while emphasizing the object-lesson that the copper producers have been learning.

From a weekly high index of 328 a year ago March and a second peak of 303.8 last autumn, the curve of copper shares has descended to 122.2 last week. That decline of nearly 60 per cent in a year has outdistanced the decline in the price of the raw metal, but is not inconsistent with the decline in volume of business.

It has probably been intensified by the fact that some of the companies in the group are relatively high-cost producers which are operating on curtailed schedule by agreement with co-producers, and at present prices must sell at or below cost of production. The trade as a whole is unwilling to commit itself to the hope that any considerable upturn in volume of business is in sight for many weeks. [illegible] Irving Fisher [illegible]

POND CREEK IS AT NEW HIGH IN BOSTON

Pond Creek Pocahontas, big coaler, sold at a new high in trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. At 17½ the stock was 7½ above the year's low. Pond Creek's new mine is increasing its output, and the half year's net is 17 cents a share.

Bigelow-Sanford was off 2 to a new 1930 low. Boston Edison rallied sharply after selling down 3.

General Electric was up a major fraction, with declines at the same time showing in Stone & Webster, New England Telephone, National Service, Anaconda and American Telephone.

Meeting of directors of Inspiration Consolidated Copper Co. to act on dividend, has been postponed, due to the lack of a quorum.

Arkwright Mills, Fall River organization of United Merchant & Manufacturers, Inc., has leased Wampanoag Nos. 1 and 3 mills of Flint Mills Realty Co., to be used as open stock department of Loring mills in that section of New England.

Arnold Print Works, North Adams, reports for the year ended June 30, 1930, net profit after charges, of $448,633, against $541,748 in the year ended December 31, 1929, and $412,123 and $367,548 in the 1928 and 1927 calendar years respectively. Earnings for the year ended June 30, 1930, after allowing for 7 per cent. dividends on 32,149.200 preferred stocks, were equal to $2.98 per share on 100,000 no-par common shares.

NEW YORK STOCKS Today's Complete Prices and Dividends

TRADING IN WALL STREET SLOWED UP BY HOLIDAYS

New York, Aug. 28—The approach of three holidays in a row served to slow up trading on the New York Stock Exchange today.

The course of prices fluctuated vaguely most of the session with the market as a whole maintaining a good undertone.

TRADERS LEAVING TOWN

Traders both short and long of stocks were anxious to close out their trading positions before the three-day suspension, and veteran traders rarely wait until the last day, furthermore.

Many were anxious to leave town tonight, letting the market take care of itself tomorrow.

The market was inclined to heaviness at the close, after fluctuating uncertainly during the day.

Several of the merchandise shares and specialties, however, closed higher, and fewer losses in important shares, such as U. S. Steel Radio, Westinghouse Electric and American Can, exceeded a point.

Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, May Department Stores, and Spiegel May Stern gained 2 points or so, and Best and Macy were firm, reflecting more optomistic retail trade reports.

Goodyear was a weak spot, dropping nearly 5 points to the lowest in two years.

Atlantic Coast Line sold off about 3 to the lowest since 1921 and International Telephone sagged more than a point to the lowest price ever reached by the present stock.

Houston Oil was driven down 5 points on prospects of curtailment of its production under the Texas conservation plans, but rallied a little later. Goodyear was again a weak spot. International Telephone sagged to its low, then rallied.

Long-scale operators had to absorb considerable profit taking. Further bear prodding against suspected weak spots was in evidence.

BETTER MARKET SEEN

Although price movements in the main merely represented efforts of floor traders to kill time, there was decided inclination to keep the list steady to firm to prevent any damage to the foundation of the better market that is widely expected after Labor Day.

Business and trade news was meagre but the more cheerful vein was maintained. Many traders were inclined to accept the slight improvement indicated with conservation. One broker compared the market's response earlier in the week to that of a starving man who translates a mouldy biscuit into a planked steak.

Money continued plentiful, with call loans abundantly offered at 2 per cent. Some bankers felt that eagerness to employ funds over the holiday might balance withdrawals for holiday currency requirements and prevent any appreciable firmness in call money.

The low rates obtainable in the money market appeared to be leading to increased investment of funds in dividend paying stocks, particularly some of the best grade rails. Several preferred stocks were strong. Such a flow of investment funds into the bond market as has appeared during the past several days usually flow over into prime stocks.

COPPERS ON SALE

The copper stocks were sold in some volume for a time, several reaching the lowest levels in considerably more than a year. This proved not particularly unsettling however.

Pools which have been marking time for weeks appeared to be endeavoring to call attention to their favorites in preparation for post holiday activity.

Business and trade reports indicated that both retail and wholesale trade were showing some pickup. Electric Power consumption as reported for the third week of the month showed a slight gain from the previous week.

Commodity markets were quiet. Wheat and corn sold off after firmness at the start, then rallied. Cotton futures moved lower.

International Nickel Co. of Canada, as result of survey by its sales department, finds a growing feeling among leading industrialists of the United States and Canada that the worst of the prevailing period of receding business is past and commencing this fall a gradual pickup may be anticipated. Seventeen of 20 authorities in lines where nickel finds a market expressed opinion that while the recovery may be slow, a definite revival of confidence and vigor, lacking for nine or ten months, is expected.

Pres. Stanley of the International Nickel said:

"I haven't the least hesitation in saying any such increase in general business as we are led to expect will be followed by an upturn in sales of nickel and also in copper."

Cotton Steady in New York Market

New York, Aug. 28—Cotton futures today closed steady, 2 points higher to 2 lower; Oct. 11.65, Dec. 11.83, Jan. 11.92. New contracts: Oct. 11.40-42, Dec. 11.58-58, Jan. 11.68, March 11.83-84, May 12.01, July 12.16. Spot steady; middling 11.70.

Grains Are Steady in Chicago Market

Chicago, Aug. 28—Grains closed steady to firm today. Wheat was up ⅛ to ¼c; corn ⅝ to 1¼ and oats unchanged to 1⅜c higher. Rye was ½ to 1½c up.

ADVICE TO INVESTORS IS FREE

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

DIVIDEND OMITTED.

Miss R. H., Dover—I have saved $250 which I want to invest in stock. What is your opinion of Goodrich Tire?

Ans.—You will not invest if you buy B. F. Goodrich common. The stock is a speculation. The recent $4 annual rate had been maintained from August, 1925. However, quarterly payment of $1 a share expected September 2 has been omitted because of unsatisfactory earnings. For six months ended June 30, 1930, operations resulted in a net loss of $1,292,986, or deficit of $2.05 a share. This contrasted with net profit of $5,070,518, or $3.76 a share, for similar periods of 1929. Net income in 1929 equalled $4.58 a share, contrasted with $1.50 in 1928 and $15.44 in 1927. The company is one of four leading tire producers. In our opinion, the savings bank is the best place for $250. Don't disturb your fund.

YIELD LOW

K. O., Boston—Air Reduction, as I understand it, is a big chemical manufacturer. What is your opinion of the stock?

Ans.—Air Reduction sells for about 14 times 1929 earnings. When dividends will warrant the current price has not been indicated. The company is a leading manufacturer of oxygen, acetylene, nitrogen and other chemicals. Net for six months was $3.04 a share, against $3.61 in the first half of 1929. Earnings of $7.75 a share in 1930 contrasted with $4.00 in 1928 and $3.58 in 1927. The annual rate on the new stock, issued in the three-for-one split in March, 1929, is $3 a share. In October, 1929, stockholders received $1.50 a share extra. The yield at recent prices is low.

NEED FACTS

Mrs. C. L., Dorchester—I am a reader of your paper and should like information on Lambert Co. A friend suggests buying the stock.

Ans.—Lambert Co., a holding company, controls the manufacture and sale of widely used pharmaceutical products. In February it acquired assets and properties of Prophylactic Brush. Dividends in varying amounts, with extras, have been paid from July, 1926. Earnings for 1929 were $10.04 a share, contrasted with $8.24 for 1928. In the first half of this year net was $5.01 a share, compared with $5.00 in the first half of 1929. To judge what you should buy, however, we need facts as to your circumstances.

EARNINGS INCREASE

L. F., East Braintree—I own ten shares American Chain preferred at 101 on which I have a small paper loss. What are the latest earnings?

Ans.—For year ended Dec. 31, 1929, American Chain earned $31.41 a share on the preferred stock, contrasting with $3.83 in 1928 and $18.42 in 1927. Net for six months was $11.49 on the preferred, compared with $9.01 for the first half of 1929. Regular dividends of $7 a share annually have been paid on the preferred since issuance in 1927. Dividends of $3 a share annually were resumed on the common stock October, 1929, after a lapse of about one year.

STOCKS AND BONDS

L. C., Bingham, Me.—I have saved $8000 and want to invest $6000. Please give suggestions.

Ans.—Here is a diversified plan: $2000 each Prudence Company 5½s; ten shares each St. Louis-San Francisco preferred and North American Edison preferred. The total cost is approximately $6000 and you will get a combined annual income of $340. You are sensible in keeping $2000 in the savings bank. There is nothing better than ready cash in emergencies.

DIVIDENDS IN STOCK.

W. G., Concord—I want to buy stock. What would you say to a purchase of North American common?

Ans.—North American common is speculative. Dividends are paid in stock at annual rate of 10 per cent. The company, however, controls one of the leading groups of electric power utilities under single ownership. Why not consider the preferred stock, which at current levels yields about 6 per cent from the $3 annual cash dividend? How much have you available?

SPECTATOR'S FAVORITES

By SPECTATOR

The Wall st. Spectator's favorites today include:

Drug, Inc.

Recent activity in this merchandising favorite has been based upon expectations of an early dividend increase. Drug, Inc., occupies a commanding position in the drug trade, and has control of important manufacturing facilities. Net income o' $3.01 per share in the first half of the year was 50 per cent in excess of the dividend requirements of $2.

Normally the company earns from 55 to 60 per cent of its profits in the second six months, so that the full showing for the year will make favorable comparison with the $6.90 per share reported in 1929. At the current dividend return of $4 per share the stock affords a return of 5 per cent around prevailing quotations.

Coca Cola

As one of the select companies to be well on its way to establish new peak earnings in the current year, Coca Cola is being given by usually well-informed quarters as one of the probable features in any continued upswing of the market. Sugar, the principal commodity used by this company, is selling at the lowest prices in history. Earnings for the third quarter are estimated at 12 per cent higher than those of the like period of last year. Results for the nine months ending September are expected to show approximately $10.60 a share on the common stock, as compared with $8.90 per share reported in the like period of 1929, and with $10.25 per share earned in the entire year 1929. The present dividend rate on the common shares is $6 annually.

Reynolds Tobacco "B"

Reynolds Tobacco as one of the dominant interests in the depression-proof tobacco industry has undoubtedly shared to a considerable extent in the increased output of cigarettes reported thus far this year. The stock affords the most generous yield of any in this group, with the annual $3 dividend bringing the return at current levels to about 6 per cent.

Waldorf Votes to Retire Preferred

Directors of Waldorf System, Inc., have voted to retire at $11 a share 10,000 shares of the 8 per cent preferred stock $10 par. This will leave outstanding approximately 38,000 shares of 8 per cent preferred stock as the only obligation ahead of the 461,610 shares of no par common.

Copper Imports in July Are Smaller

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—Imports of copper in unmanufactured form into the United States in July totaled 25,985 tons, against 27,890 in June and 22,294 in May, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports.

Twin States Buyer

New York, Aug. 28—The Twin States Natural Gas Co. has acquired over 91 per cent of the controlling interest of Midland Natural Gas Co.

Asst. Atty.-Gen. Youngquist Tells Government's Idea on WNAC

G. Aaron Youngquist, Assistant Attorney General in charge of prohibition will discuss "The New Prohibition Enforcement Program" tonight at 10:30 over WNAC on the National Radio Forum program.

The change in dry law enforcement methods, made necessary by the shift of responsibility from the Treasury to the Department of Justice, also has created many problems, which Mr. Youngquist will describe.

A native of Sweden, Mr. Youngquist overcame the obstacles facing a poor immigrant boy and rose to the position of attorney general of Minnesota. He was appointed to his present post last November, succeeding Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt who retired to private law practice.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

How many of our readers have ever heard of station W3XAL? Very few, we venture a guess. And yet at Bound Brook, New Jersey, the National Broadcasting Company operates a station having those call numbers, which is reported to furnish entertainment at a distance of 12,000 miles.

This station, W3XAL, is a short wave transmitter and is virtually unheard of even in its own territory, and although it operates only three hours a day, a huge mass of letters from all points of its service range attest to its popularity.

These letters are in possession of Raymond Guy, NBC radio engineer. They represent a cross section of life not obtainable in the ordinary fan mail pouring into the modern radio station. This correspondence comes from operators on ships at sea, from the far-flung outposts of civilization and from radio fans in crowded ct ·s and the inaccessible places of the world.

The station under discussion, however, has a prime purpose that is not entertainment. It was built for experimenting with international relaying of programs, and it is in connection with these experiments that the three-hour-a-day transmitting schedule is maintained.

Now that the summer vacation days are so near to an end—for which thousands of harrassed and tired mothers will offer up a prayer of thanks (we couldn't resist this excerpt)—and the family world is reviving an interest in schools, it seems an appropriate moment to mention an instance which shows what an important place radio is beginning to assume in educational institutions.

Out in the James H. Smart school in Fort Wayne, Indiana, the Capehart Corporation have installed a centralized broadcasting system which consists of a radio receiving set, an automatic phonograph, a michrophone, and individual loud speakers for each classroom.

NOW FOR OUR FIRE DRILL
AW I WANTA' HEAR THE BALL GAME

The "broadcasting studio" is located near the principal's office and from this studio programs are sent to all rooms in the school. By this device, the time usually consumed in assembling the students is saved.

This radio feature permits the teachers and pupils to take advantage of the music appreciation, art, and history lessons available over national hook-ups. Current events of interest to the pupils are to be sent to all the classrooms as part of the morning program and the teachers have made arrangements so that in case of fire instructions may be given to all of the students simultaneously.

Lend your ears to these tonight. Rudy Vallee from away out west in Canton, O., crooning away and causing female heart throbs. It's his last road broadcast, for next week he graces New York WEEI at 8. Bret Harte, the subject of re-incarnation on the Arco Birthday Party program over WEEI at 9. And the "Stein Song's" worthier successor, "Melody," by General Charles G. Dawes, will be played. And tomorrow morning, hear the Kidd' a' Club broadcast over WHDH at 11:15. Juvenile entertainers whose greatest asset is their precociousness.

In arranging his Maxwell House program to be heard tonight over WBZA at 9:30, Willard Robison has selected what might be called Blues ancient and modern. One of the earliest Blues, "Aunt Hagar's Chillun," will be offered, and a composition of more recent years, "The Birth of the Blues," will serve as the contrast. One of Robison's own spirituals will be presented. It is "Head Low," and Robison will sing it. "Oh, Miss Hannah," one of Paul Whiteman's glorifications, will be played by the ensemble.

Speaking of glorification recalls to mind the best numbers of best orchestras. We will always remember Paul Whiteman for his rendition of "Liebestraum," and, of course, "The Rhapsody in Blue." Ben Bernie used to play a melody called "Imagination" which always set us dreaming. Vincent Lopez and "The Doll Dance" are inseparable. George Olsen was in his glory when he offered "Makin' Whoopee." Nat Shilkret for his arrangement of "Dancing With Tears in my Eyes" enters the Hall of Fame. Leo Reisman is remembered for "Mia Cara." Ted Lewis—that's easy—"St. Louis Blues." Red Nichols could melt an Eskimo when he played "Washboard Blues." Coon-Sanders enraptured listeners with their offering of "Ready for the River." Who remembers Isham Jones and his "Wabash Blues?" Guy Lombardo caused debutante hearts to flutter when he burst into "Satisfied." Fred Waring was the best interpreter of "Cryin' for the Carolines." And B. A. Rolfe holds the unique distinction of being the glorifier of no number, but still he's a pretty good man to have around when you want to dance.

RADIO Personalities

COON-SANDERS dance orchestra returns to the NBC circuit, Sept. 2 with a program of talkie hits. . . FREDDIE RICH has been "pooh-pooh-ed" into submission. Freddie with his record of appearing before the mike 16 times a week is squelched by NORMAN CLOUTIER of WTIC in Hartford. He waves a baton over the ether at least 18 times each seven days. Which fact will probably start the announcers counting up their hours. . . . IDA BAILEY ALLEN made a slight error last week. In a broadcast she miscalled Nick Carter by calling him Nicholas Nicholby. Dickens probably turned over in his resting place. . . CURT PETERSON sought a position in radio just to pass away the summer vacation a few years back. Now he is a mogul in the NBC program dept. . . An appropriate name for LOU BODE, JR. of the Band of a Thousand Melodies would be "Octopus." He plays various wind instruments during a broadcast and is constantly grabbing one and casting aside another. . . WDAY in Fargo, N. D. just about owns the town. It has a number of its own studios, auxiliary studios at the North Dakota Agricultural College, in several churches, two theaters and in two colleges in Moorhead, Minn.

Lucky Girl

him . . . with a Gordon Moore in a gray suit and a tie that was a sort of heather color. . . . And the thought came to her that it would be worn out now, thrown away, probably. . . . Somehow the tears sprang to her eyes when she thought of that . . . of that heathery gray suit, hanging up in a Salvation Army storeroom, maybe . . . ready to be given to some tramp. . . . If it only could have been he, instead of Mr. Farnsworth. . . .

For a long time she lay motionless. She wasn't crying, but the tears oozed through her tight-shut eyes, soaking the pillow.

Silly, silly dreams. . . . What a fool she'd been to ever think of him . . . yes, and what a fool she'd be to let a schoolgirl crush haunt her whole life. . . .

Besides this was no time for dreams. Not with Eddie writing from South America, saying he could get into something good down there if he had enough capital to buy into a business, and Jean growing out of all her clothes, and Ruth ranting about night school and looking like a little old lady already, with the worry lines around her mouth, and her strained eyes . . .

Cathie got up and washed her face, letting the cold water run over it, soothingly, refreshingly.

Ma and Ruth were still sitting over the teacups at the kitchen table when she came in, blinking a little in the light.

"There! The rest did you good!" Ma exclaimed happily, noting that Cathie had brushed her bright hair until it crinkled all over her head in glittering, glorious masses of light and that her eyes, though shadowed, were once more tranquil and clear.

"Yes, the headache's gone," Cathie said, and sat down at her place, to take the cup of tea that ma was already pouring.

In the morning she went straight to Mr. Farmsworth's office.

He was deeply moved. He took the neat white handkerchief out of his pocket and wiped his glasses.

"God knows I shall try to make you happy," he said. "And if you ever come to regret it I shall not hold you."

For a minute she thought he was going to kiss her, and her whole body stiffened. But he didn't kiss her. He just reached out his hand. She did not remember ever having touched him before. His hand was warm and dry and hard. She found herself squeezing it, taking comfort in its strength and gentleness.

"When—do you want to be married?" she asked evenly.

"I don't know why there should be any delay. Next week or the week after?"

Cathie went out, and back to her desk. She typed the letters that were left from yesterday. Mr. Farnsworth was going to marry her next week, or the week after. She tried to keep her mind on the letters, but sometimes she couldn't, and whenever she forgot to type she felt Miss Darrow's light eyes on her, boring, boring into her very soul.

Tomorrow—Cathie is called the "Lucky Girl."

Killing the Goose

A Poor Way to Get Golden Eggs

Employers everywhere, it is to be hoped, will "read, mark and inwardly digest" the remarks of Lieutenant-Governor Herbert Lehman, of New York, at the New York State Federation of Labor's convention at Buffalo.

Mr. Lehman is not a politician talking about business, but a business man who happens to be in politics. He is a member of the international banking house of Lehman Brothers, and has participated in financing corporations in excess of three billion dollars. His views on the current business situation are thus free from the usual claptrap of politicians, and are worth the careful attention of business men.

Mr. Lehman said:

"Of late I have been greatly disturbed to hear rumors and reports of actual or threatened wage cuts in some of the industries of our country. I am disquieted over such a possibility because it is my firm belief that nothing would prevent or delay our return to prosperity so much as a general or even widespread reduction of our wage scale. Such a course would be short-sighted and disastrous. It would react no less unfavorably on the interests of manufacturers and merchants than on the workers themselves.

"The worker with less money in his pay envelope would inevitably be forced to reduce or to eliminate his purchases of automobiles, of radios, of refrigerators, of clothing and of household fixtures. He would be hard pressed to complete his payments on his home. His consumption of light and power would be reduced. He could not go to theaters or movies. He could not travel, he could no longer maintain his children in school or college or give them adequate medical attention.

"The very manufacturer, the very merchant who may now be thinking of reducing wages would suffer FAR MORE, in my opinion, from the lessened demand for his commodity than he would temporarily gain from a reduced weekly payroll."

Some of these calamities are already evident. The fact that they are no greater is due largely to the refusal of many basic industries to cut wages. The American wage scale of the last few years, as Mr. Lehman points out, is the goose that laid the golden eggs of American prosperity. What would happen to that prosperity if the goose were killed is self-evident.

American business can afford to keep wages steady, if it has to pass a dividend or two. It certainly cannot afford to make drastic wage reductions. If it does it will soon find that it has no dividend to pass.

Ninety Million Japanese

Too Many, Says Japan

Japan, like America, takes her census this year, but unlike Americans, the Japanese are worried for fear their population will be TOO BIG.

In 1920 Japan had 56,000,000 within her boundaries and a total of 77,000,000 for her empire, which includes Korea and Formosa and a few other places.

Estimates of the Imperial Census Bureau this year indicate that the population of Japan proper will reach 64,000,000—an increase of 14 per cent—while that of the empire will be 90,000,000.

Though some Japanese cities are proud of their size and compete as jealously for population as rival American booster towns, the nation as a whole is profoundly disturbed at its growth.

In the last ten years its people have increased at the rate of three-quarters of a million annually, and this increase is considered an ominous portent of deepening poverty rather than evidence of prosperity and progress.

Thoughtful Japanese fear that the lid will blow off some day unless the rate decreases.

Our Philippines, just south of Japan, are large, rich, thinly settled. At the London naval conference this year we obligingly gave Japan the power to take them whenever she wants to.

If the lid blows off, you may guess which way it will blow.

The Revolutionary Habit

Picturesque, But Bad for Business

Ours is not a perfect country, but it has certain advantages over others.

Our sister Republic of Peru, for example, turns its President out over night, puts an army leader in his place. The ex-President, when last heard of, was on a cruiser, fleeing to Panama. The new President probably will hold office until somebody stronger puts HIM out.

Our sister Republic of Nicaragua, now comparatively quiet with American marines in charge, has had 110 revolutions in its 100 years of history.

Our sister Republic of Haiti chopped a recent President into small portions and distributed him through the capital.

These little upsets, rather common to the south of us, make things interesting but are bad for business.

If Mr. Hoover had to keep a warship in the Potomac with steam up, ready to take him to Europe whenever Senator Borah disagreed with him, life in the United States would be more picturesque but less prosperous.

You can't have everything.

Communist Cash

As Good as Any

Interesting figures for gentlemen who think we should NOT do business with the Soviet:

Russian purchases of American farm machinery were responsible in the first half of 1930 for setting a new high record of exports in that industry. We shipped $79,000,000 worth of farm machinery abroad in those months, while in the corresponding period of 1929 we shipped $72,000,000 worth.

We should have shipped much less than in 1929 if it had not been for $30,000,000 in Russian orders. Russia, however, bought more than anybody else—more even than Canada.

Good Americans have no love for Communism. But Communist cash is as good as anybody's.

In time, perhaps, America will see that. Money talks persuasively, when it has a chance.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY -:- By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 28—Having bestowed patronage upon chili parlors, Harlem dives, Village waffle shops and sandwich parlors, galloping New Yorkers who go places and do things after sundown are giving the canary-colored lunch wagons a big play.

After midnight about a dozen along the water front and on the upper reaches of the island are scenes of imported Broadway merriment. Visitors bring their gin and climb upon the swivel stools for hamburger and onions and other rugged dishes of the carts.

Lunch wagon patronage, before the invasion, consisted of neighborhood loafers, night street workers and petty thieves. The color line was rarely drawn. The attendant in greasy, spotty apron inspired a fastidious customer to order a coconut and hard boiled egg—and peel them himself.

The single waiter was also cook, cashier and bouncer. But so opulent has one lunch landau become north of 150th street the cook wears a white chef's cap and the waiter is panited in an ill-fitting Tuxedo. A blue serged youth, hair cut en brosse, pounds a portable piano in a corner.

* * *

The appeal of the wagon is in the isolation. They further offer a refreshing joy ride when night club life sags. Noise in such places is not regarded as a disturbance, and a party of 12 may in no time "own the joint" with perhaps the cop on the beat master of ceremonies.

Indeed, when properly exhilarated patrons smack each other playfully with loose eggs and open-faced pies. Nothing matters so long as someone settles, and the total to a Broadway spender is a laugh. Fifteen dollars pays for everything.

* * *

While the lunch wagon has almost vanished from the White Way, it was once an institution like Reuben's. There was "The Owl" parked at the south end of the Herald Building nightly. It catered to a notable trade, which upon occasion included the doughty James Gordon Bennett in person.

* * *

My lunch wagon patronage came to an abrupt end on a morning paper in East Liverpool, O., years ago. I was washing down a ptomaine atrocity with what they sold for coffee. A sweatered mug, hunched up on an adjoining stool, began mumbling, stood up, wiped his mouth on his sleeve, and, with a nice taste for horror, walked to the end of the counter and shot a man through the head.

* * *

It was closest I ever was to actual murder. I did not see the shot fired, but saw a body slump to the floor. Nor did it occur to dash to the telephone to scoop my fellows. When I reached the office the story was in type. I spent the next few days getting my front hair smoothed down again.

* * *

Near New Rochelle a lunch wagon banner, ho, ho, reads: "Dine a la cart!"

* * *

One of those crazy-eyed little cyclones that suddenly send a New York street awhirl and is as suddenly gone, came up in East 43d st. this morning. A gentleman's straw hat spiraled to a third floor and swept into a window. A pretty girl leaned out, spied the owner, and dropped his hat. And life went fidgeting on again.

* * *

Until recently the most terrific wind to lean against was at the north corner of the Flatiron building. Today the stiffest breeze is Broadway at 57th. It not only upset a taxi, but blew out a matinee idol's false fangs one day.

* * *

I was enticed into a storeroom on 10th ave. by a ballyhoo for "Oso, the educated Ostrich." It was, I fear, mere surface culture, for Oso's sudden kick nearly gave me an unexpected but likely needed face lift. There's a headline: "Gallipolis Boy Kicked Silly by Ostrich!"

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

THE LITTLE brackish water-shrimp Gammarus chevroxi is normally black-eyed. But various recessive varieties are known with other eye-colors, and here the effect depends upon the rate at which black pigment is deposited. The normal shrimp has red eyes at first, but black pigment is very rapidly formed in them so that even before hatching the eyes are black.

H. G. Wells

Then there is a variety which produces black much more slowly; for several days after hatching the eyes are red, then they darken slowly to a chocolate color. In another variety the eyes darken still more slowly and only reach a brownish-red, and finally there are individuals whose eyes never darken at all.

Now Gammarus is an animal which hatches as a miniature replica of the adult and can be watched as it grows up. In the case of the fruit-fly the development occurs in the pupa stage; when it emerges the fly is a finished product, and does not grow or develop any more.

So it may well be that the great variety of eye-colors known in the fruit-fly are really due to the speeds at which the eye-pigments are formed in the pupa.

Much of the variation in the color of human hair and eyes seems to be due to similar controllers of speed. Many children change their eye color as they grow up, and the earlier the change shows, the more quickly it runs its course and the deeper is the final shade reached.

Really dark eyes are, on this view, eyes in which dark pigment had formed very rapidly and had reached its final condition before birth; and in true-blue eyes the rate of pigment production is slowed down by the influence of a special gene to so little that it never appears appreciably during the period when change is possible.

And now we will take up again the question of how much of development is due to the genes. Are these genes directly responsible for all the stages of development, even for the earliest formative steps in the egg-cell?

(To be continued tomorrow.)

Written in collaboration with Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

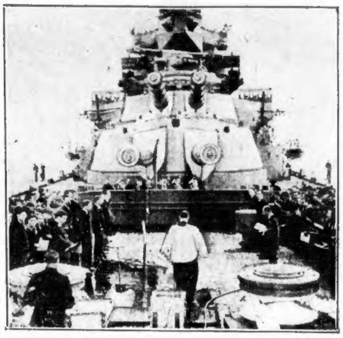
What Do the Angels Think?

Does This Battleship Scene Seem Queer to Them?



MORNING PRAYERS ON THE BRITISH "HIS MAJESTY'S SHIP RENOWN"

This picture, if it survives, will interest our descendants of the year ten thousand.

It may interest the angels NOW, as they look down to the battleship deck whence prayers are rising to the Prince of Peace, the teacher of "Good Will Toward Men."

Each one of the fifteen-inch guns above the preacher's head could blow a thousand men from this world into the next with one shell, well aimed.

Those guns, this gigantic battleship costing many millions of dollars, are BUILT TO KILL and for nothing else.

The clergyman does his duty, carrying his message, perhaps where it is most needed, to the scene of carefully planned killing.

But to the angels, to those that have always lived in Heaven, never been on Earth, to learn how we do things, it must seem a little strange to hear the words: "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us," uttered beneath these guns that forgive nothing and were built to punish those trespassing upon the rights, real or imaginary, of a great Empire.

A picture of "Morning Prayers in the Cannibal Islands," with the "Medicine Man" or other local clergyman offering prayers to some idol with pink eyes and a green nose, painted savages around him armed with hideous weapons waiting to go out and secure a supply of human food, would seem strange.

But, you would say to yourself, "they are only savages and do not realize how incongruous it is to offer prayers even to a green-nosed idol in the presence of horrible weapons with the knowledge of their intention to kill presently.

In the sight of unsophisticated angels, this picture must seem just as incongruous with death in violent form, ever ready, dominating prayers addressed to ONE who said:

"And unto him that smiteth thee on the one cheek offer also the other."

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Your Wish Life

WHAT ARE YOU?

"I'm a businessman," you say, or a carpenter, or a housewife, or a student.

Elsie Robinson

Sometimes the answer comes easily, happily. It is easy to see that you like your job—that it floods your being with pride and content.

But quite as often, the answer doesn't come happily. It lags or rasps. There's discontent or indifference or actual bitterness in your tone. Something's wrong. Whatever you're doing, you're not satisfied. You make excuses. You blame other people. Don't! No one else is responsible for your success or your failure. The answer to all your problems lies within yourself. You have said what you do, what you are, in your outer life. But what do you do; what are you in your wish life? Answer that and you'll solve your every riddle.

Never heard of a wish life? Every man has one, as surely as he has blood and bones. Deep within every heart lies a secret pattern of dream and desire—a secret pattern of what that man wishes to be. And his happiness depends on the adjustment he makes between that wish-life and his outward occupation.

Sometimes he can fit his daily existence to that secret pattern. Then he is a happy man. His life is all of a piece, within and without. His strength is not wasted by secret hungers and rebellions. But tragically often, a man's surface life and wish-life are poles apart. Then he is truly "a city divided against itself." In comparison with that vivid, inner kingdom the actual world seems dull and futile. So he takes refuge in his wish-life from all disappointments and failure, from criticism and consequences. And gradually he ceases to fight or even to face reality, finding all compensation in that secret hide-away.

Half the people you know are leading meaningless, disjointed existences. That is why. They have never been able to find expression of their wish-lives. If they had, they would have been amazingly different. They might have been tramps, where now they are bank presidents. Or ballet dancers instead of scrub-women. Or poets instead of plumbers. But always they would have been happier. For they would have fed an inner hunger, expressed an inner dream. And, because they have found no vent for that hunger, their lives are all awry.

Study your Wish-Life. Study it honestly. Much of it may be pure silliness and conceit. Some of it won't bear the light of day. But, mixed with all the trash, you will find truth. And that truth is the REAL YOU. Do not, if you care at all for your life, stifle that Real You. Find some expression for it; some way of satisfying its hunger. Live the noblest of your wishes, for in them lies your soul.
